Blair, Sir Frederick Borden and Lady Borden, Lieut.-Col. Burland and Mrs. Burland, Hon. D. M. Eberts, Miss Fielding, Miss Florence Fielding, Sir J. Grant, Lady Grant and Miss Grant, Hon. W. Patterson, Mrs. Patterson and Miss Patterson, and Sir Chas. Tupper, Bart. G.C.M.G.B., Lady Tupper and Miss Tupper.

Gas Trust for Boston.

Boston, Sept. 19.—All the gas companies of Greater Boston are to be merged, and eventually will furnish gas for fuel only, as the result of a conference here of some of the most prominent capitalists of the country, says the Advertiser today. The Brookline Company's plant will produce electricity, which will ultimately supersede gas completely as an illuminant. This means the eventual consolidation of all the gas and electric light interests of Greater Boston. Ultimately the gas plants (except that of the Brookline Company) will be closed and sold, or used to produce gas for fuel only, while electricity will be made sufficiently cheap to become the sole illuminant in general use.

Canadian immigration statistics for the last fiscal year show that nearly 70,000 emigrants arrived in the country during the year. Of this number 22,000 came from the United States.

JOHN M'ARTHUR IS FREE MAN; JUDGE TOOK CASE FROM JURY

Evidence of the Medical Experts Responsible.

BLOWS DID NOT CAUSE DEATH

Wounds Found by Doctors Would Not Have Been Fatal Had Ninham Been Healthy.

Not since Walter Herbert answered "Guilty" to the charge of murder has a criminal case taken such a surprising turn as did the McArthur case at the assizes this morning. At the conclusion of the case for the crown, Judge Lount took the case from the jury, and discharged the prisoner. The main reason for his action was that when the medical experts themselves were unable to decide wether death was due to blows, excitement, liquor or exertion, it was not a case upon which a jury could be called to decide.

Judge Lount's action has a direct parallel in the course pursued in the Kavanagh merder case over two years ago, when Chief Justice Meredith stopped the progress of the case and took the matter from the hands of the jury. On that occasion Judge Lount was engaged as counsel for the defense.

In the present case much credit is due the counsel for the prisoner, Mr. J. F. Faulds, for his able conduct of the defense. In cross-examination he brought out many important points, and even had the defense been obliged to put in evidence, and the case gone to the jury, the prisoner's chances would have been considered as very favorable. Mr. Faulds was assisted in the case by his partner, Mr. R. M. C. Toothe.

JUDGE'S ADDRESS TO THE JURY.

It was a few minutes before 11 o'clock when Mr. Clute announced that the crown had no further evidence to offer. Mr. Faulds asked for five minutes' consultation with his partner, which was granted. On his return, Judge Lount turned to the jury and addressed them to the following effect:

He said that it was the duty of the crown in a criminal trial to make out a case which would prove beyond a doubt the guilt of the person charged. The crown must prove that McArthur was the man who caused Ninham's death, and unless that was done the jury should not be called upon to pronounce upon the case. The evidence had been carefully presented and all the facts possible to be obtained had been laid before the court. Having considered the evidence of Drs. Neu and Waugh, said Judge Lount, he did not think the case one to be submitted to the jury for their finding. If the testimony of John Charles were true, a most brutal and cruel assault had been made upon the deceased Indian, but it was necessary to prove that that assault caused the death of Ninham. The jury could not be allowed to speculate on the matter. The doctors had proved that Ninham suffered from a disease of the heart which might cause death at any moment. Judg Lount said he himself would not undertake, either as judge or jury, to conscientiously say that the blows inflicted by the prisoner caused the death of Ninham. When even the medical experts could only conjecture the cause of death, the jury could not be expected to determine the fact. Human life is too valuable to be taken on conjecture. For the reasons assigned, his lordship directed that the jury find a verdict of not guilty.

The verdict was recorded as the judge had directed.

THE PRISONER DISCHARGED.

"Are there any other charges against this prisoner?" asked Judge Lount.

"None, my lord," replied Mr. Clute.

At the judge's command the prisoner stood up in the dock. In discharging him, Judge Lount said that he did not know whether or not Charles' story were true. Only the prisoner himself could know that. If the story were correct, then the prisoner was in law guilty of a higher and graver crime than the one charged by the indictment. Owing, however, to the fact that the medical men were unable to say that death was due to the blows inflicted, Judge Lount had taken the view that it would not be proper to submit the case to the jury. In discharging the prisoner. Judge Lount warned him to avoid evil associations and wrong tendencies. If guilty, his conscience would be his punishment.

McArthur was warmly congratulated by many friends as he left the courtroom. He was followed up Dundas street by a large crowd of sympathizers.

The Morning's Evidence.

Albert Friendship, an employe of Ferguson's undertaking establishment, said that the body of Ninham was not injured in any way while in his charge.

John A. Lawson, living on the side road between Brick street and the Pipe line road, testified to having been awakened at 1:20 a.m. on Sunday, June 22, by news of the tragedy. He went to Baker's farm and was there till after Constable Ward came.

Chas. Bricklin, of London, was next called. He testified to having left the city about 9:15 on the night of Saturday, June 21. Witness was in company with a lady. They drove to Sharkey's hotel, and remained there till about 10:20. Witness saw McArthur there, he having come into the parlor where witness and the lady were. McArthur was singing. Witness did not see McArthur after 10 o'clock. Witness reached the city before 11 o'clock.

THE POST-MORTEM REPORT.

Dr. C. F. Neu, one of the physicians who conducted the post-mortem examination on the body of Augustus Ninham on June 28, was next called. The post-mortem report was produced and Mr. Clute asked to have it put in as evidence.

Mr. Faulds objected to the putting in of the report as evidence. Judge Lount upheld the objection, and held that Dr. Neu must be examined in chief to bring out the facts set forth in the report.

The report, as submitted to the coroner's jury on July 11 last, was as follows:

Apparent age about 40 years. Weight about 185 pounds. Body well nourished. Post-mortem rigidity well marked. Post-mortem lividity on back, neck and upper part of front of chest.

Inspection—A bruise half an inch in diameter, one inch external, to the outer angle of the left eye, and half an inch below. Another bruise on the right elbow, about the same size, just below the outer part of the joint. These were the only bruises visible on the body.

Head—On removal of scalp the following injuries were found: One bruise an inch in diameter, to the right of the median line, just behind a line joining the ears. Another bruise to the left of the median line about three-fourths of an inch. Another bruise two inches behind these, and just over the median line, about the size of other two. The skull was of the usual thickness, and there was no injury to the bone. The brain appeared healthy, and there was no evidence of any injury to it.

Chest—On examining the chest the following ribs were found fractured, all on right side: The second rib was broken four inches from the sternum; the third was broken two inches from the sternum; the fourth was broken one inch from the sternum; the fifth was broken four inches from the sternum. The left pleura was normal. The left lung was normal. The right pleura was more or less adherent throughout from old attacks of pleurisy. The right lung was normal.

Heart—Pericardium normal. Weight 30½ ounces. Heart itself was hypertrophied and dilated, enlarged to about twice its normal size. The aortic valves were diseased. The cavities of both sides were filled with blood. The rest of the heart was apparently normal. Remaining structures in the chest were normal.

Abdomen — Examination of all the organs in the abdomen showed that they were normal and in a healthy condition.

Cause of death — Stoppage of the heart, due to the shock of the injuries received and the accompanying excitement.

C. F. NEU, M. D.,
W. WAUGH, M. D.

On being examined, Dr. Neu described the various conditions present in the body. The bruises on the cheek and the one on the elbow, he said, had taken place eight or ten hours before death, as the healing process had already been begun.

The wounds on the head were apparently recent ones, either just before or a few hours before death. The amount of swelling indicated that they were recent. The head wounds might have been caused by any solid material, such as a human hand, a stone, or a club. The amount of hair on the head would tend to lessen the force of the blows.

On opening the chest, four ribs were found to have been broken.

The heart was found to be more than twice the normal size. The average heart of a man of Ninham's size would be about 12 or 13 ounces, but his was 30½ ounces. The aortic valves were diseased, and the cavities were filled with blood.

The injuries to the ribs were caused after death, as there was no indication of any bleeding around the broken bone. The circulation had stopped when the ribs were broken.

The enlargement of the heart was caused by the extra work forced upon it by the diseased condition of the valves.

The immediate cause of Ninham's death was heart failure. The heart stopped as a result of shock. The shock might have been from injuries received or from excitement.

The excitement of being knocked down with a blow of the fist and a subsequent kicking might cause the heart to stop and death to ensue.

If Ninham had fallen from heart disease, without any blow being given, he could have spoken afterwards.

To Mr. Faulds, Dr. Neu said it was impossible to say how long after death the ribs had been broken.

Dr. Neu said he had heard bohn Charles' statement that McArthur struck Ninham on the left cheek. The post-mortem revealed no evidence of any such a blow being delivered. The only mark on the cheek was that of a bruise several hours old.

The injuries inflicted on Ninham would not have caused death had his heart not been diseased.

There were no outward indications of injury on the left side of Ninham's body. Dr. Neu said that even with no wounds on Ninham's body, there would have been no surprise in Ninham's death.

To people afflicted with heart disease the advice is given to refrain from drinking, from excitement, and from violent exercise. Any of these things might cause death at any moment to a person with a weak heart.

From Charles' evidence it would appear that Ninham was dead from the time he fell to the ground.

Any violent effort, such as striking a blow at another person, might cause death in a person afflicted with heart disease.

If Ninham had been in a fight four or five hours before death, the circumstance would have little effect on the heart four or five hours afterward. Heavy drinking during the day would have affected Ninham's.

Dr. W. Waugh, the physician who attended Dr. Neu at the post-mortuem, said that he had heard Dr. Neu's testimony and entirely concurred in it.

To Mr. Faulds, the witness said he had never seen a heart so large as Ninham's. He had often seen cases of death from heart failure where the heart was in much better condition than that of Ninham.

All the wounds and bruises on the body had been made possibly hours before death, except the breaking of the ribs, which took place after death. Ninham, of course, could not have spoken after the breaking of the ribs.

"That is the case, my lord for the crown," said Mr. Clute, as Dr. Waugh left the box. Judge Lount then took the case from the jury.

The McArthur case being the last business on the docket, the assizes were adjourned after the prisoner had been discharged.

[Yesterday's proceedings will be found on page 8.]

Rheumatism.

The editor of the Medical Herald, in the course of an article on the treatment of rheumatism, says:

"But not until lately, when Tartarlithine has been employed by us, have we obtained results that were even fairly satisfactory in the treatment of gout and rheumatism. By the employment of this preparation I have been able to relieve some of the most distressing afflictions of this class, and now regard Tartarlithine as the most valuable remedy at our disposal in the treatment of this class of affections. In rheumatism and in gout Tartarlithine can be administered with confidence."

THE NEW BOXER INSURRECTION

Reported Killing of Converts in Szechuan Is Confirmed—Many Executions

Pekin, Sept. 19.—The French minister, through Wang Wen Shao, associate minister of foreign affairs and successor to Li Hung Chang as plenipotentiary, has sent word to the court at the summer palace that the French consul at Chengtu, Province of Szechuan, confirms the reports of the Boxer uprising at that place, the massacre of converts and the conflict between the Lantern Society and the Imperial troops. The foreign board disclaims all knowledge of the trouble. It is learned that the prefect and the Neihtai (provincial judge), who are the third and fourth highest provincial officials, are implicated in the disturbances. The Neihtai's son is the Boxer leader. The uprising was organized by an official who was blacklisted for the Boxer crimes of 1900 and exlied to Shansi.

The throne has strongly commanded the officials of Szechuan to suppress the rebellion in that province.

The Boxer attack on Cheng Tu Fu began Sept. 15. The attacking party was driven back and the gates of the city were closed and guarded by troops. Soldiers quelled the disorder within the city. Fourteen Boxer leaders and several other rebels were executed.

JEWS COMING TO CANADA

A Large Number Starting Out From Roumania.

It Is Said They Decline to Labor on the Farms.

London, Sept. 19. — In a dispatch from Bucharest, Roumania, dated Sunday, Sept. 14, a correspondent of the Daily Express says the emigration fever among the Jews of Roumania still continues, and that within the last three months 4,000 Jews have left the country. Tonight, the correspondent goes on, a party of 350 left for Canada and the United States, and small parties of Jews leave the larger towns of the country almost daily. Although the reason given by the emigrants for leaving is their inability to obtain work, the Jews steadily refuse to take up farm labor. Proof of this is found in the fact that within the last three years Roumania has paid for outside Bulgarian labor something like $3,000,000, which might have gone to the Jews if they would only turn their hands to the labor of harvesting. Bulgarian laborers, the correspondent concludes, are well housed and excellently fed while working on Roumanian farms.

The Globe, the only afternoon paper which comments on the United States' note of protest to the parties of the Berlin treaty, sees nothing but selfinterest in Mr. Hay's action. The Globe, nevertheless, hopes that it will lead to a check being placed on the wholesale exportation of undesirable persons from Eastern Europe, both to Great Britain and to America.

LORD SALISBURY CONFINED TO BED

Fears That the Ex-Premier Is Very Ill—His Own Doctor Sent For.

London, Sept. 19.—The Times this morning says: "We much regret to learn that Lord Salisbury, who at present is in Switzerland, is ill and confined to his bed. An English and a Swiss doctor have been attending him, and it is understood that his lordship's own attendant in London has been sent for."

Lord Salisbury has been touring the health resorts of Southern Europe for several weeks. Visitors to Switzerland frequently have seen him on a bicycle. He kept to himself and attracted little attention. For some time past his lordship's health has been gradually failing, and the announcement of the Times, although carefully worded, caused alarm.

Luzerne, Switzerland, Sept. 19.—An investigation of the report in the London Times today regarding the health of Lord Salisbury, the ex-British premier, shows that he is confined to his room here owing to a chill and a slight attack of gout. He will probably be unable to travel for a fortnight, but it is asserted there is no cause for anxiety.

London, Sept. 19.—Private advices received in London indicate that Lord Salisbury is worse than admitted in the Luzerne dispatch on the subject. The symptoms, it is said, by his friends, are not yet considered exceptionally grave. Dr. Walker, who was summoned to Luzerne, attended Lody Salisbury during her last illness.

Luzerne, Switzerland, Sept. 19.—Lord Salisbury is now reported to be better and hopes to leave his bed later in the afternoon.

The forest fires in Washington state are "dying down," according to the telegraphic advices to the interior department, but in the timber sections of the Rocky Mountains from the Wyoming line to Central Colorado—the fires are spreading with terrible rapidity.
