CITY IS DRAWING GREAT QUANTITY OF WATER DAILY

Consumption Has Reached 17,500,000 Mark. About 5,000,000 Gallons More Than the Average — The Catch Basins.

St. John's water consumption since the beginning of the last cold snap, has reached the record mark of 17,500,000 gellons a day, so Commissioner Wigmore of the water department said this morning. This is some 5,000,000 more than the average draft he added. In spite of this fact, however, it was found that, when a fire occurred early on Sunday morning in Union street, the pressure was so good that four streams were used against the flames without the assistance of a pumping engine.

No trouble has been experienced so far through the freezing of catch basins, he said, but if the present thaw was followed by a sharp frost it might result in the necessity of having to get the steam thawing apparatus of the city into action.

HOLD-UP WAS NOT ON THE C. P. R.

C. P. R. officials this morning denied a report of a hold-up on their line at Brownville Junction and gave out the following official report:

On Thursday evening, about 6.30 p. m., a stranger who was eating in a small restaurant in Main street, Brownville Jct., when paying for his supper, pulled out a gun and demanded "Hands up," to the girl who was opening up the cash register. She screamed when she perceived the gun pointed at her and her outcry brought out the proprietor from the rear of the restaurant, who demanded from the hold-up man that he refrain from shooting the girl; he took out the bills in the cash register and handed them to the hold-up man. The total of the bills handed over was in the vicinity of $25. The man then promptly disappeared. The street is pretty well deserted at this time of the evening and the man was able to make good his escape. The local sheriff was advised and endeavored to apprehend the hold-up man but without success. So far as it is known at present he is still at large. The train for Montreal from St. John did not pass through Brownville Jct. until 10.20 p. m.

Porter of Andover and arrange for the personnel of the delegation. Hon. D. W. Mersereau, Minister of Agriculture, will be unable to accompany the delegation because of a prior engagement in St. John on Thursday.

The expectation is that the delegation will be chiefly representatives of Carleton and Victoria counties. T. W. Caldwell, M. P., of Florenceville, representing those counties at Ottawa, has interested himself in the matter. It is not known yet whether York County will be represented.

APPOINTMENT GENERALLY APPROVED

That the civic Hydro Commission has added considerably to the strength of its working efficiency by appointing Roy A. Willet accountant-secretary is the opinion expressed by many citizens this morning. Mr. Willet is in the fortunate position of having a wide and thorough understanding of the situation as it is applied to St. John. For nearly two years he has been giving a close study to the hydro question, and was one of the first citizens, if not the first, to realize the immense importance of the Musquash development to St. John. In spite of the then general opinion at the start of the hydro campaign that the Musquash development would mean practically no saving to the light and power consumer, Mr. Willet was convinced otherwise, and has deviated in no shape or form from his original conviction.

As a campaigner for light and power at cost, he has proved himself to be a sticker, taking a leading part in three elections. He is solid and trustworthy, and has had but one object in view, namely, light and power at the lowest possible cost. He is not a man of leisure, and his work on behalf of the community has been done in time that many less enterprising citizens would have devoted to pleasure. His wide knowledge of the hydro situation, coupled with his experience as an accountant, makes him a valuable acquisition to the civic hydro commission.

HUMAN KINDLINESS BASIS OF STATE

LLast Feminine Struggle Was That for Political Rights.

Staying Power Uurged—President of General Federation of Women's Clubs Said Woman Must Go Into State.

(Montreal Gazette.)

Human kindliness as the basis for the state, the motherhood of women reaching out beyond the family and embracing the unfortunate, these were the ideals which Mrs. Thomas Gerald Winter, of Minneapolis, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, commended to the local federation at their meeting held yesterday afternoon in the Mount Royal Hotel.

Although Mrs. Winter spoke for over an hour on subjects which, to be properly grasped, demanded close attention, the four hundred or more women present were, many of them, unwilling to let her go, and detained her at the close of her address in a discussion of several of the points she had raised. Mrs. T. de Grey Stewart presided. A brief address on the work of the Juvenile Court was given by Rev. Jas. B. Fee, chairman of the Juvenile Court Committee, non-Catholic.

In commencing her address, entitled: "This Moving World," Mrs. Winter said: "While it may not be apparent, everything that is worth while in the world has its roots in past ages. The women's movement is not new. Even in the times of Greece and Rome we hear of things we are alking of today."

The position of woman in the past, the part she was enabled to play in public and private affairs during the Middle Ages and at the time of the Renaissance, as well as in the days of the Roman Empire, was indicated. It was when women en masse asked for training and larger opportunities that men's opposition was aroused. Gradually they solved the educational and industrial problem. The last struggle of all was the one for political power, the speaker said, adding: "We are walking into a new world. The girl who is born today is born into that freedom which was dreamed of ages before. I think she is a product of those ages. Personally, I believe even in the flapper and I have come into contact with many of them. But there are lessons the young women of today must learn, that the price of freedom is self-control and that the most expensive thing in the world is love, which must be paid for by sacrifice, suffering and self-immolation.

"Women today, in going out first to protect their own homes are learning the greater lesson of motherhood, and their protection is being extended to those outside their own immediate circle. The home is no longer the castle; as the state comes into the home, so must the women go into the state. Lion and Mouse.

"In anything that you want to accomplish you will be ineffective unless you work together. I remember that a good many years ago I went to a civic official to make some request and he said: 'You have not as much power as a mouse.' I went home and thought it over, and decided to get enough 'mice' together to gnaw through the net which surrounded the lion. No intelligent official would make that remark today."

The evolution of the Federation of clubs from the purely self-centered club organized for the benefit of the individual member was traced, following which Mrs. Winter spoke of the peculiar duty and privilege of women in relation to the highest good of their country, emphasizing chiefly the inestimable value of the work done by women in the home. "Yet," she humorously interjected, "28,000,000 women in the United States are listed as nonproductive because they keep house." "We want," she said, "women to realize what a fundamental work of society rests in their hands; the comfort of the individual, the joy of life, and the relation of the individual to the state.

Law Enforcement.

In presenting some of the aims of womens clubs, Mrs. Winter spoke of the necessity of going to the root of evils. "There are," she said, "still plenty of people to whom philanthropy is more important than reconstruction." I hope you do not have in Canada what we have in the United States, officers who say, 'What laws do you want enforced?' There is no doubt that people of British blood have a stronger sense of law and order than we have."

In closing, she urged that as women had ideals so should they have patience; at present they were inclined to grow discouraged and give up. The test was going to be their power of continuity, the ability to drop little personalities. The most pressing need was courage, courage that would go on in the face of all difficulties and disappointments.

Mrs. Mary Anna Sabins died last week in her 116th year at the home of William Norton in Lakeville, Mass. Only once before, during the influenza epidemic, had she been attended by a physician.

She was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, July 12, 1807. As a girl she came to this country, living first at Warren, R. I., moving 13 years ago to Assonet, near Fall River, and on the death of her husband coming to Taunton to live with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Wardell, at 702 Somerset avenue. Last July she moved to Lakeville.

Her first ride in an automobile was two years ago, when she went to the local cemetery to the funeral of her husband. He died at the age of 90. Four months ago, it was said, she first used a telephone.

A strong feature of your room of compelling interest—and yet a back-ground design of subdued tones.

There you have a notion of the dual character of the 1923 Rugs exhibited along the full sweep of our three enlarged windows. One in the centre—heavy Velvet Pile with a field of Silver Fawn interwoven with Oriential Medallions in a blend of Rose, Old Gold, Wood shades and White, interspersed by leafy traceries of Nile Green. The border—a repetition of these Medallions on a deep Black field.

There certainly is character and atmosphere in the new Rugs—see them.

NO CHANCE AT ALL FOR THE OPPOSITION

(Fredericton Gleaner.)

It is to be regretted that the opposition do not now occupy a fitting position. The party in the House were making some progress up to the end of last session. At that time it could reasonably be said that the party's representatives in the Legislature were clean men, that sound political principles were respected, that the leadership was intelligent and promising and that the party generally were well satisfied with the situation, now that the men who had brought discredit upon public life in New Brunswick were not within the ranks in the Legislature. But a convention, unwisely called while affairs were being well directed, manipulated and dominated by the very influences responsible for the scandals which brought about the collapse of the party, determined to retain the old bunch in leadership and control, set aside the party's leader selected by the people's representatives in the Legislature, and put in his place the treasurer of the St. John and Quebec Railway Company in its very worst days.

It is unreasonable to hope that the Provincial opposition can make progress under present conditions. And with four vacancies since the last session of the Legislature and the leader yet unable to find a seat in the House we have a political burlesque of a character which this province has never before witnessed.

NOW IN SWITZERLAND

Fredericton Gleaner:—Miss Mary Fenety, who has been spending the last eight months with her aunt, Mrs. Moncrieff, in Ireland, has gone to Switzerland for a few months, and Miss Rainsford, who is with her aunt in Belfast, is expected to return to Canada in February.

Brooklyn Eagle Publisher Weds.

New York, Jan. 22—The marriage of Mrs. George S. Baldwin and Hubert F. Gunnison, publisher of the Brooklyn Eagle and a vice-president of the Associated Press, was solemnized in Holy Trinity church, Brooklyn, on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Gunnison sailed for Europe. The bride is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Munro, Balmoral, N. K. Mr. Gunnison's first wfie died in 1903.

A VERY PATHETIC CASE.

(Fredericton Gleaner.)

Two sisters and four brothers, who have been living in destitute conditions in a residence in Waterloo Row for some time, were removed Thursday evening to the York Municipal Home by police officers. The family moved into the city about a month ago from Devon where they had been burned out of their former home during the fall. The father, who is partially paralyzed, remained in Devon with relatives while the mother was removed to the Victoria Public Hospital. An application for aid from the city which was made by members of the family led to an investigation which revealed an almost incredible state of affairs, the family not having had the advantage of the water service which had been shut off for almost a month. As a result of the investigation, the necessary papers were secured for their removal to the Municipal Home in Douglas. Two dogs were also included amongst the inmates of the residence transferred.

IS RECOVERING FROM SLEEPING SICKNESS

(Fredericton Gleaner.)

S. D. Burns, C.N.R. train despatcher, who was critically ill for some time with sleeping sickness at his home on Brunswick street, is now making rapid progress towards recovery. He is now able to be out of bed and sitting up and walking around his room every day.

When Mr. Burns was first taken ill some weeks ago it was given out that he was suffering from pneumonia and other diseases, but after a week or so of illness and no change in his condition his case was diagnosed as sleeping sickness and for days his life hung in the balance. During the past couple of weeks his condition began to improve and today, as announced, he is up and around his room.

Mr. Burns' illness was the second positive case of sleeping sickness in New Brunswick and the only one to recover, the other having proved fatal.
