BRITANNIA

LIFE ASSURANCE COMPANY,

PRINCES' STREET, BANK, LONDON

CAPITAL, ONE MILLION STERLING.

THE Undersigned, in giving notice of the REMOVAL of his OFFICE to 46, Great St. James' Street, begs leave (whilst thankfully noticing the great and decided success of the Institution in this Province) to inform the Public that some misunderstanding and misrepresentation has taken place on the subject; that the Rates of the Britannia are lower than those of any Company, or well established Life Office, doing business in this country, and subjoins below a statement of Rates, at the age of 30, of several Offices. He would also beg leave here to mention that the Britannia Office was established for the express purpose of granting at immediate Bonus to the Assurings of Assuring their Lives, by not taking high Rates than absolutely required to render business safe.

Those who wish to participate in Profits, are referred to Tables combining both the Mutual and Proprietary principles, which are deserving the attention of the Public.

The undersigned would, however, remark, that from the opinion of many well versed in the subject of Assurance, it is the choice of a Table, which secures the greatest possible payment, if it be made with Safety, is the most advantageous.

Agent for Canada.

EXPOSITION OF A DESIGN

To Establish in the City of Montreal

A JOURNAL,

INTENDED TO ADVOCATE THE PEACEABLE SEPARATION OF CANADA FROM IMPERIAL CONNEXION.

THE permanent subjection of the Canadian Provinces to British rule has ceased to be the doctrine of any class of British Statesmen. The termination of Colonial dependence can only be delayed so long as, split up into hostile parties, and torn by internal dissensions, the people of Canada shall continue to waste their energies upon fruitless expedients and to neglect using the power, they inherently possess, of applying a decisive remedy to their manifold ills. But though delayed, union and organization for a common purpose will yet prove the remedy for Canadian ills.

The common purpose is already apparent. It warms the heart of the aspiring, cheers the timid, and assists in sinking into oblivion asperities of every kind, whether growing out of irrational political attachments, or differences of religion and race. In fact, the predicted day and hour are at hand. Independence is the inevitable solution of the convulsions which now distract the Province.

The desire for independence is no longer confined to a scattered few; it has its most ardent votaries among the agricultural and laboring classes. External causes have aided in producing this healthy political feeling.

English Free-Trade is a death blow to the Colonial connexion. The Canadian is no stranger to the fluctuations and temporary stagnations of commerce; nor is he tempted to despair, when suffering from their effects. But under the altered commercial system of Great Britain, he loses all hope of future prosperity. London and Liverpool become foreign, and not friendly, ports; and he turns to New York and Boston as the natural outlets for the products of his industry.

The traveller who crosses the line which severs Canada from the United States is compelled to make painful comparisons. On the American side, he beholds well compensated industry, unceasing activity, untiring enterprise, liberty of action, and security of property from Government exactions. He leaves behind him commerce in decay, a country bereft of life, a desponding people, a corrupt government, and an aimless social condition, embittered by foolish jealousies and strifes.

The opponents of self-government are staggered when they contemplate such results, and are constrained to admit, that where the soil, climate, and the people have so many features in common, the advancement of the one country, and the languor of the other, must proceed from the difference of their political institutions.

The enervating influence of Imperial rule is felt in every department of life. The intellectual inferiority of the Canadian Colonist to the American Citizen, is but too well established by comparative statistics of art, science, literature, and education.

The Canadian Colonist holds a very humble rank in the estimation of the Metropolitan. The Roman pride in presence of the Provincial is renewed in his case. He commands no voice in the Imperial Senate, and has, consequently, no share in Imperial Legislation, even when it specially affects his own interests. Consigned to an obscurity which stifles talent and checks ambition, he drags out a measly and discontented existence. His country is chiefly valuable to British Statesmen, as affording facility for assailing a rival maritime power; and his soil becomes the inevitable battle-field, whenever a continental war arises.

As year has succeeded year, the public mind in Canada has been gradually moulded to circumstances by the contemplation of a great revolution in their relations with the Parent State; to many reflection has appeared to be the only solution of the innumerable embarrassments brought upon this country by the total abandonment on the part of England of her old Colonial policy;—and recent events have brought to maturity principles and yearnings which were already germinating in the breasts of a large majority of the people.

A Convention, chosen by the masses, will assemble in August next. This Convention, called into existence by the present critical state of affairs, will inaugurate a movement, to terminate, it is hoped, in providing permanently for the peace and happiness of a distracted and suffering people.

The moment is deemed opportune for the establishment, in the City of Montreal, of a Journal which shall advocate the peaceable emancipation of Canada from the Imperial dominion, and the institution of a form of Government harmonizing with the commercial and elective principles of the United States.

The boundaries separating the Canadas from the contemporaneous States are purely artificial, and under any form of Government except a Colonial, those boundaries must disappear, and commercial intercourse, the interchange of products and the combined use of capital become as free and unrestricted as between adjoining Commonwealths of the Union.

WANTED, IMMEDIATELY—Two smart YOUNG MEN, to CARRY a ROUND of the "MONTREAL COURIER." Liberal wages given. Respectable references required.

August 31.

ONE DAY LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE BRITANNIA WARHOUT.

This steamer has arrived at New York.

M. DeTocqueville has presented his credentials with the Italian policy pursued at Rome, to Pope Pius's letter, and that it was in entire conformity with the views of the Cabinet.

The correspondent of the Morning Chronicle, writing from Paris, says:—

I have this day received a letter from Vienna, of the 12th instant, which brings the announcement of an event of some importance in a political point of view, namely, the official recognition of the Bey of Tunis by Austria. The following is an extract of the letter:—

Vienna, Oct. 12.

The refusal of the Porte to deliver up the Hungarian refugees to Austria has led, as the first result, to induce the Imperial Cabinet to recognize the political independence of the Bey of Tunis, thereby imitating the example of England and France.

The commercial relations between Austria and Tunis, which have been interrupted since 1845, are about to be definitely renewed, and with that view an Austrian Agent and Consul-General is to be sent, who will be accredited to the Bey of Tunis, without being provided with the Sultan's Firman to that effect.

M. Mariste, the Consul-General at Tripoli, has now been elevated to the rank of Agent and Consul-General at Tunis.

The appointment of M. Mariste will be announced in the Official Gazette, of Vienna, to-morrow, and that gentleman will forthwith start for Tunis.

As regards the dispute between the Porte and the Governments of Russia and Austria, with respect to the extradition of the Hungarian refugees, there is not a doubt that they will have a pacific solution. The Divan is quite willing to send the refugees out of the Turkish territory.

Austria, as far as she is concerned, is contented with that concession, although Russia still appears to persist in the extradition of the Polish refugees. Austria does not appear to be much disposed to be made the cat's-paw of Russia in the affair, for she well knows how necessary the integrity and independence of Turkey is to the political equilibrium of Europe. On this account Austria is anxious to take away from Russia all pretext for war with Turkey; and the Vienna Cabinet is using all its efforts to bring the Turkish quarrel to a pacific solution.

From the London Times.

CONSTANTINOPLE, October 8.

Bem, the Hungarian hero, the Polish patriot, the victor in many a battle, has fallen—not in the field, for then his fate would have been glorious; nor has he perished on the scaffold, to which Russia had condemned him, for then he would have been a martyr. He has ceased to command either our admiration or our sympathy; he is no longer the victorious General—the devoted patriot. Bem is a renegade. He has repudiated the religion of his fathers; he has renounced his country and the noble cause with which his name was so closely identified. Bem has become a Mussulman; he has embraced the religion of Mahomet, and from being the hero and patriot, he is now Mutud the renegade. Humiliation and shame were the sentiments excited in the minds of the friends of Hungary at Constantinople, when the news arrived that not only Bem, but all his staff, had become apostates. It is impossible to give an idea of the contempt which the name of renegade inspires in Turkey, even amongst the Turks themselves.

Sixty thousand men were yesterday reviewed at Ten Daghlar, on the coast of the Bosphorus, by the Sultan, Sir Stratford Canning, and General Guyon. Ambassadors were honored with an audience by the Sultan.

Her Majesty's steam frigate Odin arrived here this morning from Corfu and Athens, with dispatches for Sir Stratford Canning. It is understood that the Odin is to remain here for some time, under the orders of the Ambassador. She arrived outside a great number of the boats with the news that the English and French fleets were now expected at Vourla-bay, near the mouth of the Dardanelles.

The Times contends that an intimation has been given by Lord Grey to parties interested in emigration to the Cape of Good Hope, that the plan of sending convicts to that Colony has been withdrawn.

The Paris correspondent of the Times writes as follows:—

"With respect to the Turkish question, it is stated that on a recent occasion, and in the presence of certain influential persons, M. Thiers expressed himself in strong terms on the subject.—That the President and the Government are decided on acting with England in supporting the Sultan in his refusal to comply with the exigencies of the Emperor of Russia, there is no doubt. During a conversation which took place on the occasion referred to, M. Thiers is said to have declared himself hostile to the Men of France going to war—if, indeed, matters were carried to such an extremity; and he also expressed his belief that the majority of the Assembly would, in case of necessity, agree with him in that opinion."

The Paris correspondent of the Chronicle has the following:—

"M. de Kisseleff, the Russian Chargé d'Affaires in Paris, waited yesterday, accompanied by General Aupick, one of the Czar's Aides-de-Camp, on the Minister of Foreign Affairs here. He declared to M. de Torqueville that, if the French fleet approached the Dardanelles, Russia would consider the fact a casus belli. The French Council of Ministers, on the other hand, has decided that France will consider as a casus belli the entry of a Russian army on the Turkish territory.

THE BOOK TRADE OF ENGLAND AND AMERICA.—The American papers state that a suggestion to English publishers, by which they hope that some of the evils arising out of the want of a copyright law between the two countries will be rectified—namely, that they shall offer the English edition of all the best books to the transatlantic public at half-price. We are told that after several editions of Macaulay's "History of England" had been sold in the United States, the London publishers sent out a large number of copies to be sold there at half of the usual price at home; and they are found fault with for not having done this at first—as in that case, it is said, they might have sold at least 20,000 copies. Possibly, and perhaps if they would have consented to give it far much later—or for ever—they might have distributed as many more. We are not fully alive to the remuneration of acting the same book in London for two guineas, in New York for one dollar, if the former want of low quotes of a work being pirated, the author and publisher already pirated have at least the satisfactory solution of a protest against the injury. What is now effect of this? It simply is, whatever the present A Loss of consideration to their own, has to be compensated to them. It is stage 6-d as 2.5 duty against robbery, that day shall reduce the price below the point at which the gain is worth stealing. The English books have a fixed market privilege of being first to the "Bear" for the benefit of his own market, and the "Bear" has the first refusal of him in the Bro-dwy. The suggestion has the merit of being a step in the right direction. A very different question of the copyright question is mooted; and now that an English court has ruled that by the terms of a treaty, some one American cannot sustain a right to take from a country in this country, it is probable that the Government of the United States will be induced to take the steps towards an agreement of the matter. We probably may not, now, see an American work, by the author, more ready to find the copyright, like of the recent decision in the Supreme Court, made in London. We know of one that will be very
