KICKING THE LEATHER.

Opening of the Association Football Season—A Tie Game.

The fine weather on Saturday enabled the Association football men to amble after the round leather. Players all over the city took their preliminary kicks.

Up at the cricket grounds a practice match was played. The Hurons met the Parkdale Collegiate Institute eleven and the game resulted in a tie of one goal each.

The was a dispuse over the Collegiate's gool, which was said to be an unfair one, but the Hurons were obliged to allow it and thus neither side won.

MONTREAL, March 18.—The Montreal hockey team defeated the Victoria team in the first play-off of the ties for the hockey championship Saturday night. The match, which was a grand exhibition of hockey, was won by the Montrealers by three goals to two. Montreal scored the first and the Vics the second and third. Montreal and Ottawa now play off. The following were the teams:

Montreal (3): Goal, Collins; point, Cameron; cover, James; forwards, Barlow, Routh, Mussen, Hodgson.

The Australians Honors.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Three thousand sports paid to see a short, one-sided and unsatisfactory contest between "Young Griffa" and "The Belfast Spider" last night. It was to have been an eight-round "go," but time was called before the third round had fairly begun by the police inspector. The money went to the Australian, but Weir was consoled by a $500 guaranree.

Hartley, were received by the secretary of the Canadian Lacrosse Association after the first lot had been sent out: That this new section be added: That no delegate shall be eligible for any office other than that of president or secretary-treasurer unless he is a resident of the village, town or city where the club he represents has its headquarters.

The Treachery in Matabeleland.

LONDON, March 17.—Most of the morning dailies comment in the severest terms upon the facts laid bare by Dr. Jameson's report. They demand that the affair be sifted thoroughly and the guilty men be punished to the full extent of the law. If the report be found true, they say, the men responsible for the breach of trust must be held responsible also for the subsequent disaster to Capt. Wilson and his party and for Lobengula's death.

Drowned in Richelieu Rapids.

CHAMBLY BASIN, Que., March 17.—An unknown man, said to be from Ottawa, undertook to run the Richelieu Rapids on a round log to-day. He was evidently no novice. After passing two chutes successfully he struck a pier of the C.V.R.R. bridge, lost his pole and fell, but clinging to the log he drifted down the river for nearly a mile. Just when near the old Chambly fort he suddenly disappeared under the water and was drowned.

ROSEBERY ON HOME RULE.

HE EXPLAINS HIS POLICY TO AN EDINBURGH AUDIENCE.

An English Majority Not Necessary To Convince England of the Justice of Ireland's Cause—The Lords, He Says, Cannot Longer Thwart the Commons—Gladstone Still a Political Factor.

LONDON, March 18.—Mr. Gladstone's season of rest at Brighton by no means implies that he has freed himself from the turmoil of politics. On the contrary he is very much in evidence in the political trials now going on before the country. He keeps up regular communication with the Ministers, advising them in all matters submitted to him, and has written to the Liberal whips that he is in readiness at any time to respond to their summons to take part in any important division or debate should his presence in the House of Commons become necessary. The conviction is growing in the inner ministerial circle that the Grand Old Man's retirement is not final. The general expectation is that he will make occasional reappearances in Parliament pending the result of the operation which is to be performed upon his eye.

The Irish Party.

The changes in the Irish Nationalist Committee which took place at the recent three days' meeting in committee room No. 15, in the House, will give the Dillonites a majority, but will not impair the solidarity of the party. The Healyites have accepted the deposition of Arthur O'Connor from the secretaryship in favor of William Abraham with fairly good grace, and have been thrown a sop in the selection of Donald Sullivan, member for Westmeath, to act as joint secretary with Abraham.

Opposition to the New Ministers.

The Unionists have decided to put up candidates to oppose the return of the ministers whose change of office in the ministry has necessitated their re-election to Parliament. The only exception made is in the case of Herbert Gladstone, who was returned yesterday without opposition.

An English Majority Not Necessary for Home Rule.

Lord Rosebery was received in Edinburgh Saturday by cheering crowds. Thousands filled the streets on his route from the railway station to the Corn Exchange. More than 50,000 Liberals had gathered at the Exchange to hear him speak.

The most important part of the Premier's address was his explanation of the statement made by him on March 13 in the House of Lords concerning his attitude to Home Rule:

"When I spoke in the House of Lords," he said, "I declared with frankness and perspicuity my attitude to Home Rule. Unfortunately the interpretation which my opponents put upon my words was not what I meant when I uttered them in the House of Lords. If rightly interpreted my words must have carried the conviction to the heart of England that what I said was a truism, although not at all in the sense in which the Unionists interpreted them. The advocates of Home Rule know that if they were to wait for the predominating vote of England they might never carrying anything. The present Government have carried the Parish Councils' bill for England with the Irish vote. It is not necessary to demand an English majority to carry a Home Rule bill or to beat the English vote in order to convince the English people of the justice of Irish Home Rule." [Cheers.]

The Times the Organ of Dissension.

The situation to which he had referred, he continued, was a familiar one. The House of Lords, for instance, might be said to have England at its back; yet in ordinary circles of the country just now the people had risen ten to one against the Upper Chamber. Why his words had been misinterpreted was quite evident. A certain party sought to sow dissension between the Irish and Liberals. The organ of this party, The London Times, had wilfully misrepresented his utterances.

Will Face the Vital Danger of the Upper Chamber.

After paying his respects to The Times, Lord Rosebery said that he would leave the subject of Irish affairs in which the Government policy had remained exactly as it was under Gladstone, and would speak briefly of the Government's intentions in other directions. He promised that Scottish and Welsh disestablishment should be made Government measures. The Government would also give a day, he said, to debate on the Miners' Eight Hour bill, and would spare no efforts to secure its passage. The Cabinet were determined to maintain the supremacy of the navy as the best guarantee of the peace of Europe. He himself had often pointed out the dangers of an hereditary chamber. The Government must now face the vital danger of such a chamber, because the Commons could no longer be thwarted by the action of a non-elective body of legislators. [Cheers.]

Press Comments.

LONDON, March 19.—The Times says: In Edinburgh Lord Rosebery admitted that Home Rule for all immediate practical purposes was completely shelved. His own instincts are clearly imperial. His speech renders an early dissolution more probable than ever.

The Standard says: Lord Rosebery was scared by his own utterances and the clamor of the Irish. He strove, but failed to explain away his explicit statement in the House of Lords. It was a pitiful attempt to retract an was palpalby insincere.

The Daily Chronicl says: Lord Rosebery proved himself to be a strong honest man. He belongs to the chosen race of the world's leaders.

"AN HONEST HOME RULER."

Edward Blake Is Satisfied With Lord Rosebery's Declaration.

LONDON, March 18.—In addressing meetings held to-day in honor of St. Patrick John Dillon, Edward Blake and Michael Davitt expressed themselves as perfectly satisfied with Lord Rosebery's declaration in Edinburgh concerning his attitude to Home Rule. They agreed that the Premier's utterances proved him to be an honest Home Ruler.

Timothy Healy said he was glad that Lord Rosebery had withdrawn his Parliamentary statement. "If the Parnellites would only join us," he added, "it would be better than any number of English declarations."

Toronto Collegiate At Home.

The staff, pupils and friends of the Jarvis-street Collegiate spent a very enjoyable evening on Saturday last at the William Gooderham Hall in McGill-street. The program was an excellent one, including such well-known artists as Mr. Harold Jarvis, Miss Jessie Alexander, Miss Bella Geddes, Master G. C. Husband, Master C. J. Wagner and the Glee Club of the school. Refreshments were served and promenading indulged in by many fair young pupils and their gallant escorts.

DIED ON ST. PATRICK'S DAY.

James Fitzgerald, a Pensioner, Found Dead in an Area.

James Fitzgerald was found dead in the area of 170 Dalhousie-street at 8.30 Saturday night by Mr. Thompson, the occupant of the premises.

Fitzgerald was a well-known character in the city. He was a pensioner, about 60 years of age, and was better known by the sobriquet of "Derry Wall" than by his own name. When his pension allowance was spent he subsisted by doing odd jobs.

P. C. McGregor saw Fitzgerald, who was under the influence of liquor, at 7.30 in Yonge-street. He started him on his way home, or wherever he was in the habit of sleeping. It is supposed he staggered and fell down the area steps, receiving injuries which proved fatal.

Fitzgerald is supposed to have a son in the employ of the Bowmanville Organ Company. He has been written to by the police.

The body was removed to the Morgue and Coroner Johnson notified. It has not yet been decided whether an inquest will be held.

The A.O.H. Concert.

The Auditorium was comfortably filled with loyal Irish hearts, who gathered to hear, appreciate and applaud the high-class talent that had been engaged for the occasion by the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The platform was adorned with appropriate emblems and mottoes and a life-like portrait of one dear to all true Irish hearts, the G.O.M. A portrait of the late C. S. Parnell also occupied a prominent place.

The concert was under the direction of Mrs. W. J. Mowan, who gave two excellent piano solos. Other leading artist were Mrs. Juliet d'Ervieux-Smith, Miss Florence Mabel Glover and Messrs. Carnahan, Owen Smily and Cameron.

The oration was delivered by Bro. M. J. Slattery, national secretary A.O.H., Albany. It was replete with eloquence and wit. He told of the rise and growth as well as the benefits of their organization. In glowing terms he painted the old but ever new story of the devoted life and marvelous work of their patron saint, whose memory they had gathered to honor. He aroused his audience to the highest pitch of enthusiasm when he recalled the beauties of the land of their birth, the "gem of the seas."

Catholic Celtic League.

Long before the old clock in the fire hall tower pointed to the hour of 8 o'clock on Saturday night crowds of enthusiastic Hibernians were pouring into St. Andrew's Hall to hear the annual concert held under the joint auspices of the Catholic Celtic League and Branch No. 12, E.B.A. The audience was large, and the program, composed entirely of local talent, was good. Mr. Robert Glocking occupied the chair, and opened part 2 of the program with an excellent address. Songs that were gushing with pure Irish humor were given by Messrs. Murphy, Breen and Baker. Miss Lily Evans and Miss E. Farrance with their readings, and Miss Alexander with descriptive songs, contributed to the success of the evening.

I.C.B. Union Concert.

Association Hall was crowded at the Irish Catholic Benevolent Union's celebration of St. Patrick's night.

A program of Irish songs was presented and the artists won much favor. Rev. Father Ryan delivered a lecture on "Ireland Among the Nations," sketching in graphic words the history of the Emerald Isle.

Death of R. W. Phipps.

The many friends of Mr. Robert W. Phipps will regret to hear of his death, which occured at his residence, 251 1-2 Richmond-street west, yesterday. Mr. Phipps has held the position of Chief Clerk of Forestry of Ontario for a number of years, and always took a lively interest in public affairs.

His writings, both in prose and poetry, have been extensively read, and his pamphlet on "Protection" created considerable interest.

He was a native of Toronto, a bachelor, and commanded the respect of his fellow-citizens.

I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

THE TARIFF MEASURE READY

THE BUDGET CONFIDENTLY EXPECTED ON WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON.

Finishing Touches to the Tariff Bill Made Saturday Night—The House Will Adjourn from Wednesday to Tuesday—Archbishop Tache Says the Manitoba Minority Will Not Appeal.

OTTAWA March 17.—The only topics of conversation about the lobbies to-day have been the announcement made by Sir John Thompson on Friday afternoon that the Minister of Finance would make his Budget Speech on Wednesday and the question of the Easter holidays. Of course, as the address has not been passed, it is impossible to say positively that the budget will be delivered on Wednesday, because it is within the power of the Opposition to obstruct the adoption of the address, and so throw the Budget Speech over until after the Easter holidays. From the best information which can be had it does not, however, appear to be the intention of the Opposition to obstruct, and Sir Richard Cartwright's bombastic talk on Friday night about a long debate on the budget is regarded as mere effervescence on the part of that doughty knight and not to have any serious meaning.

The Tariff Bill Ready.

The Government is quite prepared to bring down the tariff measure. Counsel sat all day yesterday and had another meeting last night at which it is understood the last touches to the tariff were made, and Mr. Foster will be quite prepared to go on with the Budget on Wednesday. The present program is understood to be to get through with the address to-morrow if possible and if not on Tuesday. Then Mr. Foster will make his budget speech on Wednesday afternoon and Sir Richard Cartwright will reply and the debate will be adjourned till after the Easter holidays, which will extend from Wednesday night to Tuesday afternoon.

It is said that the Government will not press the continuation of the budget debate immediately after the Easter recess, but will allow a few days to elapse so that the Opposition may have all the time they please to study the tariff changes, and that some of the usual returns of receipts and expenditure which Sir Richard Cartwright will ask for to-morrow may be brought down. All things considered it does not appear at all probable that the delivery of the budget will be delayed, and it may therefore be confidently expected on Wednesday.

Manitoba Minority Will Not Appeal.

It is currently reported, but I have no confirmation of the report, that a letter has been received from Archbishop Tache, in which His Grace states that the minority in Manitoba will not appeal to the Privy Council from the opinion expressed in the Manitoba school case by a majority of the Supreme Court judges. His Grace is understood to say that he does not regard the opinion of the judge as a judgment and that he considers that the Dominion Government still has the power to initiate the remedial legislation and that it should exercise that power.

Canada's Great Opportunity.

We are pleased to see that Lieut.-Col. Denison intends to exploit the question of deepening the St. Lawrence system to 20 feet during the present session. He has given notice of motion to that effect. Twenty-foot canals along the St. Lawrence route will make seaports of a dozen large inland cities. Of all the canal schemes at present under consideration in various quarters of the world none is fraught with bigger consequences than this. Twenty-foot vessels now run as far east as Buffalo. This year a new line of steamships will be put in commission between Duluth and Buffalo. The vessels composing it are to be the largest on the lakes. Like the C. P. R. steamships on the upper lakes they are as suitable for the ocean as for the lakes. The lake and rail traffic between the west and the seaboard would be completely revolutionized if these large vessels were able to pass from the lakes to the ocean and vice versa.

The Edinburgh Sabbath.

In John C. Jeaffreson's delightfully racy "Book of Recollections" just published, the writer says that on one occasion Robert Chambers, the famous publisher and founder of Chambers' Journal, reproved him for saying that the Sabbatarian narrowness of the Edinburgh people would render life in Edinburgh intolerable. Said Mr. Chambers:

"That's joost one of your south-country prejudices and nothing more. There's nae sic teeranny and intolerance in Adinbro, as y' imagine. If you will only have a prudent care for local sainsibeelity, and forbear to fly in the face of your neighbors' opeenions, you may amuse yourse' in Adinbro on the Sabbath vara moch as you can in London on the Sunday. In Adinbro I gane and sup with my friends on the Sabbath joost as I do in London. Of course when I drive out to dine with a friend on the Sabbath in Adinbro, I don't get into the carriage at my ain door, but round the corner just by, where I have ordered it to be waiting for me. And of course I seize the occasion for slipping into it when no folk are watching me. You are quite wrong in fancying the Sabbatarian sentiment in Adinbro is so teeranical as to prevent you from enjoying yourself on the Lord's Day."

"Anyhow, by your own confession, it is so intolerable and tyrannical that you dare not get into a fly at your own door, or even in any neighboring street when people are looking at you. If that isn't social tyranny what the deuce is social tyranny?"

"Ay, that's a soothron's pugnacious way of looking at the question," replied Mr. Chambers, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "If y' had been reared in Adinbro in the right way in your yuith you would not speak so bitterly of the wholesome moral cenfluence of your neighbors."

BLAKE A MISCHIEF-MAKER.

Blamed for Having a Hand in Plunging the Irish Party Into Serious Internecine Trouble.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Harold Frederic cables from London to The Times: The Irish acted in Tuesday's demonstration against Rosebery rather on individual impulses than an ordered plan.

They, themselves, meanwhile, were in the middle of the worst, most stupid internecine mess, which has yet convulsed their party since Parnell's retirement. After three days of sharp quarreling a was reached by 36 to 291 to throw Arthur O'Connor out of both the committee and secretaryship and dismiss Florence O'Driscoll as whip. This purports to be a sequel of a visit of these two men to America last autumn, where they were guilty of telling plain truths about the wretched state to which the egotism, ambition, and intrigues of Dillon, O'Brien and Blake has reduced the Irish Party. What it really means is that Blake was able by help in New York to put together a tissue of misrepresentations which served as a pretext to retire the two officials which the self-seeking group most feared.
