THE EXHIBITION.

compare with the people of that country as producers. Many varieties of grass and grain are shown, and the whole is so arranged as to permit of a careful inspection by those who are desirious of becoming acquainted with its nature.

AT THE DRILL SHED.

No one should visit the exhibition without making a complete tour through the drill shed which is being utilized for the better display of the carriages and sleighes. Here is assuredly one of the best of the exhibits. Manufacturers in St. John have ved with each other and with firms in other places in producing a creditable article, and the hundred buggies, phaetons, dogcarts, pungs, buckboards, pony carriages and wagons collected together give proof of the ability of Canadian manufacturers to compete successfully with any others in this particular line. Fredericton is well represented here by Messrs. John Edgecombe & Sons, and Mr. Geo. R, Cooper both of whom have gone to considerable expense to bring large exhibits to St. John. A number of Toronto exhibitors, too, have taken this method of advertising their manufactures, while St. John is represented well by Messrs. Crothers, Henderson & Wilson, Kelly & Murphy and Price & Shaw. Every article in the drill shed is placed in order, and visitors are thus facilitated in pursuing their investigations. At the entrance Messrs. Edgecombe have a handsome show horse, imported from Ohio, which is harnessed to a sulky and which has attracted no little attention and favorable comment. The exhibit of this firm is then placed in rows and other exhibits continue to the end of the shed, making as a whole a thoroughly good one, and highly creditable to the manufacturers and their art.

THE PEOPLE.

Yesterday 1531 people passed through the turnstiles into the exhibition. Considering that yesterday was the first day of the fair, this number was in excess of what was expected. To-day there was a liberal attendance, and the crowd is expected to be very large this evening. About the hotels there are many strangers and visitors are arriving hourly although the big rush will be sure to come on Saturday.

Everybody who has friends in other parts has invited them to be present at the exhibition, and many household men are finding difficulty in stowing away the numbers who have taken advantage of the invitation. The streets about the city present a lively appearance, and business houses as a general rule are doing considerable business. Each train arriving has its quota of visitors, as has also each boat, and the probabilities are that, as we are having fine weather, and lots of excitement the visitors will remain for a week or more.

The exhibition is open early in the morning, and as there is much to be seen, Prof. Washington can supply you with a first class meal at his big tent on the grounds. Lunch can be had there, and the trouble of walking home obviated. Lunch can be had also at a stand within the building, which is loaded down with good things of every description. Messrs. Woodburn and Ganong are doing a rushing business with the people who are fond of cream chips, and molasses candy, the linked sweetness long drawn out. Both of these firms have fine exhibits of creams and confectionery of all kinds. The Wilmot mineral water company are vending out their Belfast ginger ale and waters at a surprising rate while just around the next corner the guessing competition for the big cake of Surprise Soap and $75, is occasioning fun and anxiety to all hands.

THE PETERS' ORGAN.

In the gallery of the southern wing, at the lower end, stands the huge pipe organ, a cut of which appears above. Mr. F. A. Peters has gone to both trouble and expense to put the instrument up, and the organ recitals which are daily given are a source of pleasure to every one of the visitors to the exhibition. The Peters organ fills up the lower end of the gallery and is very attractive in appearance. Besides affording pleasure to the people, it shows just what class of instrument can be manufactured in our own city. Its tone is good, and under the clever manipulation of Prof. Morley the organ peals out its notes deep, loud and clear.

THIS AFTERNOON.

The Artillery band was in attendance this afternoon and played an excellent programme. People are droving into the building at all hours. This evening the grand pyrotechnic display will take place on the grounds, and the grand stand is being repaired in order to accommodate those who wish to have a comfortable view of the fireworks.

The Owens Art School.

We have few bequests by rich men, but some years ago—one of our leading merchants, John Owens Esq. left in the hands of his friend, Robt. Reed Esq. a large sum to provide a Gallery of Art in this city which he did so much for while living.

Mr. Reed has purchased and placed there paintings, which one never tires looking at, and has provided for the poorest scholar in the land what the millionaire has only to himself by enormous expenditure, as for instance, Sir Donald Smith, in whose gallery are paintings which cost him $15,000 to $45,000 each. Here we have pictures by some of the first painters living in a gallery, which Mr. Hammond presides over; where are some of his own productions, and he is an artist, whose works adorn some of the first houses in Halifax, St. John, Montreal, Toronto; having been seen first in the art rooms of Paris and London, from which they have found a resting place in the land of their birth. There are also products of his pupils, our own sons and daughters, led by the wife of our respected Governor, Lady Tilley, the vice-president of the Owens School of Art. Let our visitors call here, it is on the line of horse railway, at the corner of the Valley church, only one minute's walk from the cars. We often drop in. "We have been there, and still want to go," for the education of eye and heart goes on here imperceptibly. In the educational exhibit in Lower Cove, we see the beginning of the work by pupils of six and eight years, which goes on, until it culminates in the work of our art schools, under the teaching of such masters of this useful art; which is the foundation of architecture, design in manufacturing, and of much that ministers to our better nature. Go to our art school, and bless the memory of John Owens, and encourage those, who are carrying out so well his dying wish to aid St. John.

Police Court.

John Maher and Ellen Hayes, drunks were fined $8 each.

Joseph Sullivan and John McBrine for the same offence, were fined $4 each.

John Devine was arrested last night for stealing a coat in the exhibition building. He was brought bfore the court this morning and remanded.

NO "TICKER" PHOTOS at Climo's. Only genuine photographs are made. Our special cabinet the public should see: 85 Germain street.

SHOW CASES FOR HIRE.
LeB. ROBERTSON.

GOOD BY TO BIG HEADS.

This Season's Fashions in Canes and Umbrellas.

The fashionable young man no longer carries a massive, silver headed cane or umbrella. The tomato can trade has run them out. "What is the tomato can trade?" asked a reporter of a dealer the other day.

"That's what we call the manufacture of cheap imitations of fashionable articles. As long as the big headed canes were made of silver and cost from $10 to $15 they were all the go in fashionable circles. When, however, it got so that every boy on the street flourished a counterpart of the genuine article, and they were offered for sale in the dry goods and hat stores for about one dollar apiece they took a sudden tumble, and this winter they will be anything but the proper caper. Silver patchwork is the craze now. That is, the natural stick is used for both canes and umbrellas the knots in the wood being covered with patches of polished silver. The handles are medium size and much easier to manage than the massive heads which they have superseded.

"A great many persons," continued the umbrella man, "suppose that a long stretch of rainy weather like we have just had makes a big boom in umbrellas for us. Indirectly it does. So much rain wears out good umbrellas as well as poor ones, and eventually they must be replaced. The big rush, however, is for cheap umbrellas on a rainy day. The good ones are sold in clear weather when the buyers have plenty of time to make their selections. The most of the cheap ones are sold by the big dry goods houses, so we don't profit so much from a rainy spell as is generally supposed."

The Editor's Grief.

It is now that the editor
Fidgets and grieves,
For the poet of Spring
Is beginning to sing
Of the death of the flowers
And the fall of the leaves.
