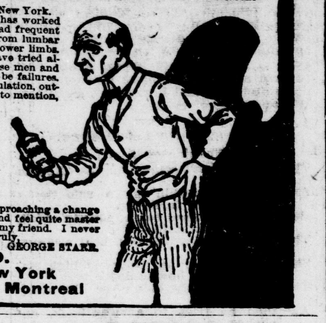
RADWAY'S READY RELIEF

RHEUMATISM, SCIATICA

Strong Testimony of Emigrant Commissioner the Hon. George Starr, as to the Power of Radway's Ready Relief in a Case of Sciatic Rheumatism.



Van Ness Place, New York.

Dr. Radway—With me your Ready Relief has worked wonders. For the last three years I have had frequent and severe attacks, sometimes extending from lumbar regions to my ankles, and at times to both lower limbs.

During the time I have been afflicted I have tried almost all the remedies recommended by wise men and fools, hoping to find relief, but all proved to be failures.

I have tried various kinds of baths, manipulation, outward application of liniments too numerous to mention, and prescriptions of the most eminent physicians, all of which failed to give me relief.

Last September, at the request of a friend (who had been afflicted as myself), I was induced to try your remedy. I was then suffering fearfully with one of my old farms. To my surprise and delight the first application gave me ease, after bathing and rubbing the parts affected, leaving the limbs in a warm glow created by the Ready Relief. In a short time the pain passed entirely away.

Although I have slight periodical attacks, approaching a change of weather, I know now how to cure myself and feel quite master of the situation. Radway's Ready Relief is my friend. I never travel without a bottle in my valise. Yours truly,

GEORGE STARR.

ZOO CROWD SEES MEN FIGHT PYTHON

Twenty-Foot Snake Could Not Shed His Skin and Keepers Had to Help.

New York, Oct. 3. — Battling with a 20-foot python, two men were watched by a breathless crowd at New York Zoological Park, in Bronx Park. The spectators were astonished by the fearlessness of the men as they worked inside the cage of the most dangerous reptile in the park collection.

The keeper's perilous task was made necessary by the condition of the python, one of the largest in captivity, and the especial pride of Curator Ditmars. About this time of the year these reptiles shed their skin. This they accomplish easily when not in captivity. When caged, however, assistance becomes necessary, and the keepers face grave peril, for if the python should swing its huge coils around one of the men no human arms could break the grip.

Several days ago the big python began to shed his skin. He became restless, suffered intensely, and was inclined to resent intrusion. On Saturday it was decided that Keepers Snyder and Fowler must help him.

While one covered the head of the reptile with a blanket and sat upon it, the other proceeded to remove the dead skin. Time after time the powerful body swung around and the keepers, while maintaining a firm grip, would have to dodge the huge coils. The work was continued all day Saturday and was completed Sunday.

When the old skin was finally removed, the keepers made flying leaps from the cage, banged the doors, and gave a sigh of relief.

THEY NEVER KNEW FAILURE.—Careful observation of the effects of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills has shown that they act immediately on the diseased organs of the system and stimulate them to healthy action. There may be cases in which the disease has been long seated and does not easily yield to medicine, but even in such cases these Pills have been known to bring relief when all other so-called remedies have failed. These assertions can be substantiated by many who have used the Pills, and medical men speak highly of their qualities.

The Pennsylvania railroad was chartered in 1846. Construction was begun in the following year, and the road was opened in 1854. Trains to Chicago were first run over this road in 1858.

IT LAYS A STILLING HAND ON PAIN.—For pains in the joints and limbs and for rheumatic pains, neuralgia and lumbago, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is without a peer. Well rubbed in, the skin absorbs it and it quickly and permanently relieves the affected part. Its value lies in its magic property of removing pain from the body, and for that good quality it is prized.

AIR SOLD FOR GAS; HOOSIERS IRE UP

Learn They Have Been Paying 90 Cents a Thousand for Wind.

Indianapolis, Oct. 3. — Citizens of the Hoosier capital are up in arms over the discovery that for years they have been using common, everyday wind for illuminating purposes, and that the Indianapolis Gas Company has been charging them thousand-feet rates for the privilege.

With Philosopher Dooley, the Indianapolitans think that if the gas company is going to charge them for ordinary poor illuminant at best, they might as well detach their gas piping from the meters and connect the same with the ventilators and save expense. At the same time the seriousness of the situation has aroused a feeling that presages real trouble for some magnates of the city in the near future.

For years the people have wondered and speculated as to why the quality of illuminant furnished by the Indianapolis Gas Company was so varied. Sometimes it burned with considerable candle power and then again it flickered and sputtered worse than an old tallow dip in the last stages of dissolution.

The explanation came yesterday when, following a report from City Chemist Underwood on the ingredients of the so-called gas consumers had been using, City Engineer Jeup and his assistants suddenly invaded one of the company's plants and found the pumps that had been installed to force common air into the gas mains in full operation.

Engineer Jeup made his discovery at the Longsdale avenue plant, where the manner in which the company had been selling air to consumers long had been a joke with the employes, who had named the meter and apparatus for forcing the air into the gas mains the "air-gag."

A rotary fan similar to the blower under an up-to-date blacksmith's forge had been installed. The blower, which was a large one, had been geared up to a shaft which made from 125 to 200 revolutions per minute. But the shaft was reduced so that the fan would revolve at terrific speed, taking in the air and forcing it through a pipe which ran under the floor to a large, old natural gas meter made of cast-iron and intended for heavy pressure. Only the dial of the meter showed above the floor.

General Manager Graff, of the Indianapolis Gas Company, stood by while the city officials were examining the dial, which registered eighteen feet of air a minute during the period of observation. While the astonished officials watched Mr. Graff indignantly denied that air was mixed with the gas. Then, with a show of defiance, he declared it didn't make any difference whether air was mixed with the gas or not. Finally he refused peremptorily either to deny or affirm any charges.

Tacit admission that the mixture of air with the gas furnished to consumers has been a common practice is contained in the declaration of the gas company officials that it didn't make any difference if such was the case as long as the product supplied the candle power called for in the franchises. The city officials replied the real trouble was that the required candle power was not maintained at all times, and the answer to this was that the city had not been making tests with the right kind of burners.

Discovery of the conditions placed before the citizens of Indianapolis was the outcome of an investigation which was planned some months ago, the city
