WELCOMES HINDOOS.

Bulletin Special.

Montreal, Dec. 22—Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, speaking today of the influx of Hindoos into British Columbia, stated that while the company was only interested as a carrier, the Hindoos ought to be welcomed in view of the great demand there is on the Pacific coast for all kinds of labor in mines as well as in the field, such is occasionally the wq fw ivy,

Yorkton Regina Line

Fort Qu'Appelle, Sask., Dec. 17.—The final survey of the Grand Trunk Pacific line between Yroton and Regina, is being made nore this week and the announcement has been made that it is the intention of the company to go right ahead with the construction of this line first thing in the spring of 1907. The line passes through the valley at the town of Fort Qu'Appelle.

The old valley town which has for many years been an outpost without a railway, is in a great flutter of excitment nere today. People are stoppin gon the streets to talk of the railway future, and on every hand the words "Grand Trunk Pacific" are heard in the land. The reason of this excitement is apparent. A large party of engineers, some 20 in number, are camped here and their work is the making of the final survey to the capital city.

The crossing of the valley which was reported at one time to be giving trouble to the engineers is now overcome and presents an easy task. The dump will be filled in and the grade taken down one of the many coulees. It is anticipated that at some time many years hence, perhaps there will be a high level bridge erected here for the crossing of the great gulch, but for the present the trains are to go through the lowlands.

The construction of the line is to be pushed. That much is a certainty. In an interview with the Standard correspondent, the engineer admitted this, and it is reported on good authority that the delegates from the board of trade who waited upon the engineers have the positive assurance that early next spring the grading will will be commenced, and construction rushed to an early completion.

When the grading is underway, it will not be laggard, for it is the intention of the company to place subcontractors on the work at the same way as they did in the case of the main line, and the whole branch will therefore, be in shape for laying rails at the one time. The branch between Yorkton and Regina is to be one of the first constructed and is expected to be a direct feeder to the main line of the transcontinental.

The country opened up by the new line is one of the richest in western Canada, and as yet it is far from all cultivated. It combines the richness of the valley land and the ranching industry consequent, with the arable prairie which gives the heavy crop.

PREMIER SCOTT ILL.

Bulletin Special

Regina, Sask., Dec. 22—Premier Walter Scott is down with an attack of pneumonia. His temperature today was up to 103, and while the malady will have to run its course no serious results are feared.

TO AID STEAMER.

Bulletin Special.

Port Arthur, Dec. 22—The steamer Ionic has been reported from Middleton, but a snowstorm is blowing, and it was deemed advisable to have help at hand in case of stress of weather or any untoward event, and two tugs left here this afternoon to proceed down shore and escort the steamer on its way to Port.

DIED FROM OLD WOUND.

Bulletin Special.

Binghampton, N. Y., Dec. 22—Burr Hilton, civil war veteran, of Great Pa., died today as the result of a bullet wound received in the civil war, which had never healed, and in which blood poison recently developed.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT PROROGUED.

Bulletin Special.

London, Dec. 21—The King's message proroguing Parliament was read in the House of Lords this afternoon before the members of both houses.

VIOLATION OF THE GRAIN ACT.

Numerous complaints have been received by the secretary of the Saskatchewan Grain Growers' association with regard to irregularities in the loading of cars and placing "bogus" names in the car order book.

The Manitoba Grain Act, section 58, sub-section 5, states— "Nothing in this act shall be construed to permit any applicant to transfer or sell his right to any car, and any applicant so doing shall be guilty of an offence under this act, punishable upon summary conviction before a justice of the peace, by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, and not more than one hundred dollars; and any person who, contrary to the provisions of this act, obtains the placing of a name on the order book as an applicant shall be guilty of an offence punishable, upon summary conviction before a justice of the peace, by a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars, and not more than one hundred dollars."

If the farmers make themselves familiar with the terms of the grain act they will have gone a long way in muzzling the line of the grain exchange.

ABOUT LIVING.

To live in the simplest sense of the word is to be a part of the mysterious principle we call vitality, a part which has organized for itself out of the elements in the midst of which it exists, a palpable, physical form, animal or vegetable. It does this unconsciously and in obedience to laws which it does not know, and is either in due time absorbed back into the great life reservoir from which it came, to emerge again in similar or different form, or, as some suppose, dies, and is wholly extinguished. These forms may be animal or vegetable, and they are varied beyond imagination and numerous beyond counting. In the lowest form it is a single cell, and in the highest only an aggregation of cells, endlessly differentiated.

Until we reach man in the ascending series, every form while it lasts lives its life to the full. The tiniest blade of grass takes in to its highest capacity the sunshine and the rain; the limpet, clinging to the rock, is drenched in every pore with the ocean tide which feeds it; the insects of an hour, the birds, the animals that range the forests, all live out to the utmost the life they have while it lasts. We assume that unlike ourselves they are unconscious of the joys and sufferings of existence. Be that as it may, they all make the most of it as far as they can.

When we come to man we find a different state of affairs. Most of us, instead of reaching out for every possible means of growth and enjoyment and opening up every avenue of our being for the inflow of the radiant life and beauty all around us, settle down to a dull round of plodding routine, or fix our attention upon some single object of pursuit, which absorbs all our energies, leaving most of the faculties and susceptibilities with which we are endowed uncultivated and undeveloped. This is not living; it is only existing, for life was meant to be for all of us, the full possession of all that the environment in which we dwell has to offer, and the free and joyous exercise of all the powers and capacities which we possess. No one truly lives who does not love, truly and unselfishly, or who has not so developed himself, whatever he may have been originally, as to draw out the love of some one. No one truly lives who does not realize that he is a part of the great human family, entering into its joys, feeling its sorrows, taking part in its struggles, striving for its happiness, knowing something of the glory and tragedy of its history and sharing its destiny. No one truly lives who does not sometimes glow with generous emotions, to whom never comes admiration and sympathy, or reverence for high and noble deeds and character, who never turns aside to aid the suffering and needy, who is not thrilled and enraptured by poetry and music, who can look unmoved at the glittering firmament, or to whom the sights and sounds of nature bring no message that touches a responsive chord in his being.

Nor does he truly live who does not to some extent gain the self mastery he was meant to have, and who has not so trained his intellect and cultivated his susceptibilities as to be capable of taking possession of and enjoying the inexhaustible resources of the universe about him. All these things belong to every man, and are meant to enter into and make up life.

No matter where our lot is cast, or how humble the task assigned us, what is best and most essential to a full life is within reach. No matter how circumscribed the daily walk, the mind is free, and can range the universe and soar beyond the stars.

ROUND THE TEAM.

Medicine Hat, Dec. 21.—The Sounding Lake detachment of the R.N.W.M.P. report having found the horses which Albert Larocho, a well known young rancher, took with him from that point on Nov. 2e, on a search for lost stock. The young man was caught in a blizzard in the country between Sounding Lake and Red Deer river, being separated from a companion named Woods. After the blizzard blew over the snow was two feet deep and Woods could find no trace of Laroche. As there are no settlers within twenty-five miles of where the men separated and snow is still on the ground, no hopes are entertained that he is still alive.
