The Scovil-Robinson Case.

The case of the Trustees of the Scovil estate against Major Robinson has been postponed till February. The Trustees claim that Mr. Robinson has $24,000 belonging to the estate. They put the case thus: Mr. Robinson's name was on bills of exchange issued by Scovil to the amount of $104,000. Scovil, before he failed, gave Mr. Robinson $57,000. The holders of the bills, not being aware that Mr. Robinson held these funds, accepted $33,000, leaving Mr. Robinson possessed of $24,000 of Mr. Scovil's money.

Chinese Mechanics.

There are no better carpenters, masons, or other handicraft men more expert or faithful to their employers than heathen Chinese. When a contractor engages to build a house, for example, he encloses the premises and sets up cooking apparatus to supply his hired workmen with regular meals at the most economical rate. Having taken breakfast, they work till noon, rest one hour, and leave off at 5 p. m., and return to their homes. On leaving, each takes a ticket which admits him next morning. These tickets are daily vouchers of the artisan's presence. Counted up at any time a true account is rendered.

A man on the ground throws several bricks to another ten feet above, and he to another still higher. Thus the masons are supplied as they ascend with the wall. Instead of carrying morter in a hod, it is thrown by a shovel full from one story to another to any required elevation without spilling a particle, so expert are they by continual practice.

With a small brass wire made tense in a bow, notched at the lower side, they saw out artistically complicated puzzles that are surprising specimens of art. Thus they excel in many ways our most skillful artists, almost without tools. In departments of science of which we suppose ourselves in advance of Orientals, they accomplish results quite beyond apprehension. Some of their chemical accomplishments far out-general very learned gentlemen of wide world celebrity. In short, mortifying as it is to make the confession, our wisest men of modern science don't know everything.

Mrs. Spearing, I am as deaf as a post that stands at the top of Fort Howe,
And never heard a word of a row.
But if I was twice as deaf, says Rien Spearing
I could not but heard of Montgomery's, Clearing.
It is a Sale of Silks, Satins, Ribbons, Hats and Dry Goods of all kinds,
At prices that will suit the most delicate minds.
I will try him again—there is no harm in trying;
There is no doubt his Goods are well worth buying.
His prices for Goods were never so low before,
And I must get my trumpet and hurry down to his store,
And for Velvets and Velveteens, Dress Goods Cottons or Lace,
Go to Montgomery's—that's the best place.
When I get my new trumpet, I will make a big sound,
And I will tell all my friends in the country to come down.
I will enter his store with ease and grace,
With my trumpet to my ear, and enquire is this his place.
