[FOR THE CHRONICLE.]

ON THE DEATH OF LORD RAGLAN.

Peace to the dead, a final crown
[illegible]

Time, empty Ope, time property gleamed
O'er wintry dead, is closed and cold.
No more the Clarion Bugle's call
Shall continue him to Battle Field,
No more the Banner gaily flank
O'er high winds, Death hath made to yield.
The Hero of a hundred fights
No more shall hear the Battle exploit,
His military spirit, a lively a soul,
Shall on all the Ethereal plains
And Heroes of many an Battle hearts
In glorious deed and will sound.
While England's history has a page,
Or Patriot on the earth shall sign,
In letters of Gold, be made to one,
And loyal hearts have shown his Bier,
The mighty dead, and martial strain,
Shall be the theme of a year.
The sculptor's art shall spent his hands
"Immortal Arms," and warlike shields;
His warm sculptor doth a sigh
For him, who gave so dear commands.
And Albion's Queen sincerely grieves,
And mighty Queen has bow'd a head,
But fervently paid up a prayer
In reverence, for her Hero dead.
The sculptor's art shall speak his fame,
And unborn millions read with pride,
How great, how good, was RAGLAN's name
How brave he fought, how calm he died.

BE KIND TO THE WIDOW AND ORPHAN.

BY MRS. SARAH T. BOLTON.

Be kind to the widow—her hopes are crushed,
The light of her spirit is flown,
The dark cloud that evil consigned her is hushed,
Her pathway is dreamy and lone.

Be kind to the widow—the rainbow that cast,
Its beautiful hues on life's stream,
Has vanished away, and the joys of the past
Are nothing to her but a dream.

Be kind to the widow, for sorrows and fears,
Have stolen the light from her brow,
Her cheek once so lovely and faded with tears,
Her heart is all desolate now.

Be kind to the widow at eve through long hours
Alone by her cottage door,
While others are sportively gay garlands of flowers
And swinging the moments with mirth.

Be kind to the orphan, and teach him to meet,
With firmness his Father's last home,
The home that to him, once enjoyed very dear,
Sleep now in the night of the grave.

Be kind to the orphan—he cannot forget
The last smile which lighted his face,
And far from the home and the hearth where they met,
He weeps that they meet never more.

Be kind to the orphan, for many a love,
With tenderness fond to wonder nursed,
O! teach him that virtue alone will endure
When life with this dream fades away.

Be kind to the orphan, the lone one apart,
Bowed down by the chastening rod—
O! guide his young footsteps, and teach his young heart,
To trust in the promise of God.

VARIETY.

Miss Leslie on Slang.—"There is no wit," says the author of the behavior book, "in a lady to speak of taking a "snooze" instead of a nap—in saying of a man whose dress is getting old that he looks "seedy"—or in alluding to a diverting incident, to say that it is "rich." All slang words are detestable from the lips of ladies. We have little tolerance for young ladies who having neither wit nor humor set up for both, and having nothing of the right stock to go upon, substitute coarseness and impertinence, not to say impudence, and try to excite laughter and attract the gentlemen by talking slang. Where do they get it? From low newspapers or vulgar books? Surely not from low companions. We have heard one of these ladies when her collar chanced to be pinned wrong, say that it was put on drunk—also that her bonnet was drunk when it cocked upon her head. When disconcerted she was "floored." Sometimes she "did things on the sly." She talked of a certain great vocalist "singing like a beast." She believed it smart to use these vile expressions. It is true, when at parties she always had half a dozen gentlemen about her; their curiosity being excited to know what she would say next. And yet she was a woman of many good qualities, and who boasted of having always "lived in society."

The Heart.—A modern writer thus beautifully treats of that "harp of a thousand strings," the human heart.

What an odd thing experience is! now turning over so rapidly the book of life, now writing so much on a single leaf. We hear of the head turning grey in a single night—the same change passes over the heart. Affection is the tyrant of a woman, and only bids her to the banquet to suspend a cutting sword over her head, which a word, a look, may cast down to inflict the wound that strikes to the death, or heals but with a scar. Could we ding back the veil which nature and society alike draw over her feelings, how much of sorrow—unexpected because unexpressed—would be found! how many a young and beaming heart would show disappointment graven on the inmost core! what a history of vain hopes, gentle endeavors, and anxieties and mortifications, laid bare! There is one phrase continually occurring in conversation—"O, a woman never marries the man to whom she was first attached!" How often—how highly is this said! how little thought given to the world of suffering it involves! Checked by circumstances—abandoned from necessity, the early enthusiasm which youth brings, but leaves not."

Object of Salt in the Sea.—Professor Chapman, University College, Toronto, has published an interesting paper on the object of sea water being salt, and after giving his objections to the usually received opinions, he urges the theory that the object is to regulate evaporation. If any temporary cause renders the amount the saline matter in the sea above its normal value, evaporation goes on more and more slowly. If this value be depreciated by the addition of fresh water in undue excess, the evaporating power is the more and more increased. He gives the results of various experiments in reference to evaporation on weighed quantities of ordinary rain water, and water holding in solution 35 per cent. of salt. The extent of loss of the rain water compared with the salt solution was, the first twenty four hours, 0.03 per cent.; at the close of forty-eight hours, 0.14 per cent., so on in increasing ratio.

The heat at Adelaide, South Australia, was recently so intense for seven days that apples were actually roasted on the trees, by the fierce rays of the sun, as perfectly as though they had been in a furnace.

The Subscriber having been appointed Agent to the above Company for New-Brunswick, begs to announce that he is prepared to receive Proposals for FIRE AND LIFE ASSURANCE. The large Capital of the Company, and the number and influence of its Proprietors, enable it to rank with the most eligible Offices, either in America or Europe, with respect to the advantages offered to the Public.

FIRE BRANCH.

Persons Assured by this Company are not subject to any covenants or calls to make good losses which may happen to themselves or other, nor do they depend on any uncertain fund or contribution, the Capital Stock of this Company being an unquestionable security to the Assured in case of Loss or Damage by Fire.

LIFE BRANCH.

In addition to the more customary methods of Insurance, the Company likewise Assures Lives on any of the following contingencies:—

For the terms of One Year, Seven Years, or any other definite period.

For the whole continuance of Life.—The Premiums to cease, after a limited number of Annual Payments.

For Two Joint Lives.—The sum assured to be paid on the death of either.

On the longest of Two or Three Lives.—The sum assured to be payable at the death of the last survivor; or,

The Survivorship.—To secure the payment of the sum assured, if it be A die before another life B.

For a sum to be payable at age 60, or at death.

Premiums on Credit.—A portion of the Premium on Credit. Assurances may be effected in various ways not enumerated, to meet the convenience of parties.

The advantages to be derived by the Company in the Life Branch will include the following:—

The Guarantee of an ample Capital, and Exemption of the Assured from liability of Partnership.

Moderate Premiums.

Large Participation of Profits by the Assured amounting to Two-thirds of its net amount, which may be applied at the option of the party effecting the Assurance:—1st. By the immediate payment of the sum so apportioned.—2nd. By an equivalent increase of the sum assured.

Short Charge for Management.—The expenses of our Office being borne in due proportion by the two Branches.

Immediate settlement of Claims.

Policies issued by mail, dispensed of the Premium may be secured within three months, by paying the premium with a fine of 10s. per cent. on the production of evidence to the satisfaction of the Directors of the good health of the life assured.

The Company will always be prepared to Purchase the Policies of this Office at their equitable value or will grant a New Policy in lieu thereof without any further payment of Premium, for a sum to be agreed on.

Extra Premiums, suitable to special circumstances, will be accepted to enable a party possessing a Policy on the life of another to guard against the possibility of its being vitiated by the Life departing beyond limits, or by any other cause.

Thirty Days are allowed for the Payment of Premiums after the day on which they respectively Additional Advantages offered to Lives Assured with this Company at St. John, N. B.
