On Thursday a young lad named Charles Small living at Rosevay, N. S., found a piece of dynamite in a basket, where it had been placed two years ago by minors and forgotten. This he placed on the ground and struck with a stone. The explosion that followed knocked him twenty yards into a pile of rocks. He has since been unconscious.

Mr. Dunn, the defeated candidate in Gloucester, has issued an address to the electors in which he says that if he had been successful he would have given an independent support to the Thompson Government during the life of the present parliament. However he explains that his arrangements are with Mr. Laurier, and that if he is a candidate at the next election it will be as a supporter of the opposition leader.

The Summerside Agricultural says: a man named William O'Leary, of O'Leary, was arrested by Policeman McNeal, on the Northumberland, Wednesday, on a charge of drunkenness. The arrest was made after leaving Summerside, and officer McNeal brought Woodside back to Summerside that evening. Woodside was accompanied by a girl who was leaving the Island with him, although he has a wife and family at O'Leary.

The "Saturday Night," a new weekly to be published at Halifax, will make its appearance about the end of May. Its special field will be the Maritime Provinces, and its endeavors in the interests of Maritime Provincialists. A thoroughly wide awake journal. Its departments filled with information on subjects in which every one is interested, its columns open to fair discussion of public affairs, "Saturday Night" should receive the support and encouragement of the people.

A very sad drowning accident occurred at Lazy Bay, C. B., on Sunday. A boat containing three fishermen, in going out of the harbor, was filled by a sea, sinking immediately. The men were Neil McKinnon, James and Frank Rankin. A party of workmen saw the accident and hastened to the place in a boat, and succeeded in saving James Rankin and McKinnon, but McKinnon, sinking, was drowned before help could reach him. Within half an hour the body was washed ashore a short distance south of the scene of the accident. McKinnon was about fifty years of age and leaves a widow and large family.

The public will be pleased to learn that Dr. J. D. Maher of St. John, whom the St. John papers including the Progress, Sun Telegraph, Globe, Gazette, Record and Workman have been praising to such extent the past six months, intends giving the citizens of Charlottetown an opportunity of having their teeth removed without pain by the famous Hale Method. By this method any number of teeth can be removed at one sitting. Dr. Maher has been invited by Dr. J. F. Murray to demonstrate the method at his office on Queen Street on the days of June 4th and 5th, as will be seen by to-day's advertisement. When Dr. Maher was demonstrating at Fredericton the following appeared in the "Gleaner": "Dr. Maher of St. John who is now extracting teeth by the painless method at the office of Dr. Barbour in this city has been one of the busiest men in town for the past two days. The run of patients has been so well satisfied with the new method." Dr. Maher will also demonstrate at his office of Dr. A. A. Dwyer, Summerside, on June 8th he has hundreds of testimonials from the leading citizens of St. John, the following is one copied from the St. John papers given by a well known Methodist minister of that city.

"Dear Dr. Maher—At your request, I am pleased to state that I have watched you at the chair extracting a number of teeth by the Hale Method and have heard the patients say that they experienced no pain. I can for my own part state that of the many teeth which I have had extracted the one you extracted, although in a very bad condition was the easiest I ever had taken out. I am thus pleased with the filling you did for me and feel more than pleasure in recommending you to the best offices of my friends. Yours, etc.,

Rev. J. B. Champion.

There will be no extra fee for this wonderful method.

Good News

Sometimes it is easier to find the staff for your dress than to get it made. We have been trying to help you out and have secured a splendid assortment of costumes, (skirt and jacket readymade) in Black and Navy Serge, and also a nice variety of fancy patterns. The prices are so low that you can save dollars on every dress. In fact these costumes will not cost much more than an ordinary jacket.

The summer time table of the Prince Edward Island Railway will go into operation on the first of June.

On Monday a two and a half year old son of W. A. Martin of Milltown, Lot 49, was drowned in Martins Mill Pond. The body was found near the waste gate.

Nearly all the buildings of Mr. John McEachern, Cherry Valley, Lot 49, were destroyed by fire on Saturday. The fire originated in the tannery. It was with difficulty that any of the buildings were saved.

The barns and outbuildings of Mr. Peter Robertson at Marshfield were burned down on Saturday afternoon. Six calves, a self-binder, two mowers, rakes and other implements, were destroyed. The dwelling house was saved. Mr. Robertson's loss is partially covered by insurance.

To-morrow will be the seventy-fifth birthday of Her Majesty the Queen. A royal salute of 21 guns will be fired from Fort Edward in honor of the occasion. In the afternoon a game of football will be played on Victoria Park between the second team of St. Dunstan's College, and the junior Abegweits.

The new paper to which we referred last week made its appearance yesterday. It is called the Prince Edward Islander and is a four page six-column sheet. It will be issued semi-weekly, and will join its voice in the chorus in behalf of the grit party. Its typographical appearance is excellent. The publishers are the Islander Publishing Co., Queen Street.

Capt. John Hughes the well known coal merchant, has transferred his business to his son, James A. Hughes. Mr. James Hughes will conduct the coal business lately managed by his father and will keep on hand coal of all kinds to suit customers. Mr. Hughes is a well known and popular young man and we have no doubt he will be preferred in the management of the business. We wish him success.

Messrs. J. S. Macdonald & Co. have moved their stock of dry goods and boot and shoes from the store on the east side of Queen Street, recently built by Mr. Macdonald, to the store of Mr. William Dodd, on Queen Street, directly opposite the Market House. The new store is nicely fitted up, and in every way well adapted for the extensive business of the firm.

A new gallery has just been added to the Seven Mile Bay Church, of which Rev. J. J. Macdonald is pastor. The carpenter work was done by Mr. John Perkins, and the painting by Mr. Sobey, of Capt. Tavernor, brother of Mr. R. E. Sobey, Summerside. Both did their work admirably, and the new gallery is a handsome addition to the seating accommodation of the church.—Journal.

The boys of the League of the Cross give one of their excellent and popular entertainments in St. Patrick's Hall to-morrow evening. The concert promises to be very good in advance of all previous ones given under the auspices of the League. The proceeds are for the purpose of defraying the expenses incidental to the tutorship of the League's band. Encourage the boys then by your presence, and show Mr. Father Hogan and his assistants that their laborious and untiring efforts to make good citizens of our Catholic youth are appreciated.

Mr. Doherty, of Pettcodiac, N. B., was shot in the leg Sunday night by tramps who have been turning around Pettcodiac for some days. About twelve o'clock that night Mr. Doherty heard some one trying to break in the back door of his hotel and proceeded to investigate. The burglars became alarmed and left. Mr. Doherty followed them down the street. On reaching a certain point one of the men turned and discharged a revolver at Mr. Doherty shattering his shin in the leg. The police are investigating the matter and it is thought that the shooters will be brought to justice.

Wednesday evening, about 6 o'clock, three young men, Peter Stewart, John Morrison and Andrew McKenzie, were returning from their traps off the north coast of Cheticamp, near Pictou, N. S., when their dory capsized, throwing them all into the water. They had on their fishing clothes, and these heavy in themselves, becoming water soaked, made swimming almost impossible. However, Stewart and Morrison struck out for the shore, which was not far distant, thinking that McKenzie was following in their wake, but not so. Poor McKenzie sank and was drowned in 8 feet of water. The body was recovered shortly afterwards.

The steamer Florida arrived here from Boston about 8.00 o'clock Thursday with a large cargo and the following passengers: Mrs. J A Lambert, E M Rankin, S V Baldwin, Francis Tobin, Miss Emma Tobin, Mrs. J Hensley, Fred McEachern, Miss Clara Kiehl, Dr. J O Baker, W E LePetes, Joseph Carver, Wm Hucklins, E M Rankin, W J Collins, Joe Delaney, Wm Tobin, Mrs Kate Stone, Miss Maggie Driscoll, Mrs Carver, Mrs Mary Dalton, Miss L Stevenson, Mrs Margaret Mitchell, Miss G McDonald, Mrs Mary Bliss, Miss Emma Barlow, Miss D McGregor, Mrs W J Collins. The dead bodies of Judge Hensley and Mrs. Hilas Quan formerly of Summerside, also came on the steamer. She sailed on return for Boston Friday evening with cargo and the following passengers: Nellie Stewart, Annie Nicholson, Katie McDonald, Clara Llewellyn, Gilmore Jardine, George W Turner.

The True Irish Hearts Co played to good houses in the Lyceum on Monday and last evening. The company is an excellent one, and their productions struck the popular chord. On Monday night they played "True Irish Hearts" and on last night the "Cruiskeen Lawn." Both pieces were admirably rendered. The acting of Charles McFarney as "Rakish Paddy," in "True Irish Hearts," and "Paddy Miles," in the "Cruiskeen Lawn" captured the audiences at the outset and kept them in roars of laughter right throughout both pieces. His sayings, actions and comical situations are very mirth provoking, and are calculated to trump up a laugh even if one never before lightened up your countenance. The song and dance specialties are also strong features of the company. Mr. McNurney's playing on the Irish pipes was excellent, and the audience could not get enough of it. To-night the company again play, by request, "True Irish Hearts." We would say to all who wish to enjoy a good laugh to go to the Lyceum to-night.

About People Here and Everywhere.

Very Rev. James M. Quinan, V. G., Arichat, C. B., celebrated the silver jubilee of his priesthood yesterday.

Hons. Frank Smith and MacKenzie Bowell, it is generally believed, will be among those knighted on Queen's birthday.

John Sharples will likely be the government candidate in Quebec west. Thomas McGreevy it is said also intends running as an independent.

J. S. Cozzy, the commonweal leader, has been nominated by the People's party for Congress in the Eighteen district of Ohio. The nomination was by acclamation.

We had a pleasant visit Thursday from Mr Ronald J McDonald, ecclr., who recently returned from Rome. We were pleased to see our young friend looking so well, and trust that his native air will speedily repair the injury his health sustained while in sunny Italy.

Sir Henry John Wrixon, member of the Legislative Assembly and ex-attorney-general of Victoria, and Messrs. Simon Fraser and Nicholas Fitzgerald, members of the Legislative council, have left Australia for Ottawa to represent the colony of Victoria at the Ottawa conference.

Father Cesar Luzzi, the sub-librarian of the Vatican, while examining some papers which had been undisturbed for many years, found a Codex of Dante's "Divina Commedia." It is beautifully illustrated in miniature and bears the date 1450. Wonderful are the hidden treasures of the Pope's palace. Perchance this century will roll past, and the next will follow, before all the relics of history, literature, art, science and religion, that the Vatican holds, will be brought to light. It is a world in itself.

HOOD'S CURES.

In saying that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures, its proprietors make no idle or extravagant claim. The advertising of Hood's Sarsaparilla is always within the bounds of reason, because it is true. It always appeals to the sober, common sense of thinking people, and it is always found substantiated by endorsements which in the financial world, would be accepted without a moment's hesitation. FARMER'S COLUMN.

PASTURING COWS.

Pasture is a very convenient manner of feeding cows, but it is a serious question if it is a profitable practice. The higher value of land, the ever increasing taxes the temporary nature of the pasture in the dry and hot American summer climate, all go to combine against this practice. At the best it is only a makeshift to occupy the land at the end of a rotation, and thus to turn the light poor herbage into manure, which at the best is only thin and unevenly scattered over the ground. But if there were nothing else, it might be well to be contented with it, as the best that can be done. But it is not the best; on the other hand it is about the worst use the land can be put to, for it takes from it scarcely as much as will pay for the milking of the cows and, there are other and better ways. Years ago in the previous condition of our agriculture, it was permissible because there was nothing else to be done. The land was of no other use at the time and the means to do without it were wanting. This however is now all changed, and there are substitutes for it and better uses for the land.

Since the advent of the silo, things have changed very much in the business and management of a dairy farm. By the use of the silo it has been made possible to lessen the cost of feeding cows through the winter to a fourth or less than the former cost, when dry feeding was the rule. And now the excessive cost of summer pasture as compared with the cheap winter feeding brings all its imperfections so clearly into light and view, that it seems imperative that a change must be made. Indeed this is unquestionable, for the dairyman cannot possibly feed his cows on pasture in the summer on account of the increased number he is able to feed in the winter upon ensilage. And thus the business has become thrown out of balance and either a way must be found to abolish pasture or get only a small advantage from the silo, as compared with what might be with a substitute for the former. For if the dairyman keeps twenty cows on the produce of as many acres through the winter, he cannot afford to devote fifty or more to the summer feeding as is the case under the present method. This takes too much land and leaves no room for other crops, thus compelling the use of purchased foods to use with the ensilage.

Soiling is the precise counterpart of the silo. It goes hand in hand with it. It leads to the same economy of land and labor, and the same increase of product. The crops grown are the same. There is the same kind of management, and it follows the silo as a matter of course and actual necessity, as one improvement makes others indispensable. It consists of the same manner of feeding, the same increased quantity of manure, and the same addition of fertility to the land. The cows are under the same easy control and the labor involved in the work is lessened in the same manner; and as the unavoidable result of more economical and skilled work the profit is increased. It is equivalent to doubling the area of the farm by the greater produce made from it.

At first it may be possible to give the cows the freedom of a field as a relief from the confinement of the winter, and this is done by sowing the corn land, which made the ensilage, with rye, for this purpose, and to gain the time for the necessary clover to make a full growth for cutting for the cows. And for feeding this and other green crops to be grown, some suitable small fields of grass near the barn, or provided with the needed sheds for the feeding and the milking, are kept. There should be several of these small fields provided with feeding racks and a light shed at the corner of each so as to be used in common for all the fields, for milking and occasional shelter for the cows.

The land appropriated for the feeding crops should be adjacent to the feeding places. It should be in one undivided field, and laid out for the crops in long rows running from the feeding racks so as to make the bringing in of the crops fed most convenient, and thus save work. The first feeding, as said, will be rye, either cut and fed in the racks or pastured when half grown, and then ploughed and put in some other feeding or ensilage crop. After this comes the clover and orchard grass, to be fed with it for variety. After this has been cut off, a part of the land sown with pea-vine clover, which matures a month later than the small red kind will come in, and will carry the cows along until the first of the early sweet corn is ready early in August or late in July. After this it is easy work, for more corn will fill out the whole season, helped for a change by second growth of clover or orchard grass, saving enough of these for hay. Later kinds of corn and second plantings on the land from which previous crops have been taken, will fill out the feeding until the time has arrived for housing the cows for the winter and the silage is then fed.

Experience has shown that one acre of land is more than enough to liberally feed one cow, leaving a surplus generally to go into the silo. Fifteen cows have thus been fed from ten acres by making the best use of the land and replanting it as soon as a strip is cleared and ready for the plough. In fact, feeding and planting go on together, through the season. It has been objected by those who have not tried this method that it is costly in labor. So it may be said that every improved method is, for it is a necessity of the case that nothing is to be got without working for it. But this is not the point at all. Is it profitable? That is the question. Of course one cannot get three or four times the product from the land without more labor, but this is not in proportion to the products made. The labor is not more than would be necessary to grow half the produce on twice as much land, in fact it is less, for the preparation of the land is the same, for the doubled product is not more costly by the acre than for the small crops.

The tools needed for this method of feeding are a one horse mower, a horse rake and a small wagon; and the work for thirty or forty cows may be all done by a stout boy who will cut the fodder, load it, bring it to the feeding sheds, or the barn, and take out the manure ready for the next ploughing, and all at a cost of not more than three cents a day for each cow. At the same time this extra expense will be the only charge to go against the largely increased product of milk made by this system. And this is no more an objection to the method than is the greater expense of the twice as many cows to be kept and milked, as under the old ineffective and unprofitable method of pasturing.

A SURE CURE FOR BILIOUSNESS.

Mr. M. Rooney, a well known Halifax merchant, writes: "I am using Hawker's Liver Pills and can recommend them as a sure cure for biliousness." AWFUL HEADACHES.

2 YEARS OF SUFFERING.

LIFE A TORTURE.

Kendrick Outhouse, of Tiverton, N. S., says: For several years I suffered from nervous attacks of biliousness, which came on periodically, about every ten days. I had awful headaches, and the smell of anything cooking turned me sick. I became weak and nervous, and had no ambition or strength to work. I passed many sleepless nights, and for days could not retain food on my stomach. My friends began to be uneasy with pills and bitters, and my life was a continued torture to me. I became weaker and my friends gave up all hopes of my recovery. My brother brought me a bottle of

HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC and a box of HAWKER'S LIVER PILLS.

I had not taken them long before I commenced to improve and in a short time I was completely cured. I grew strong and vigorous, my appetite returned, I slept well and in a few months had gained 50 pounds in weight. I have not suffered from piles or biliousness since, now 2 years, and am as strong and hearty as any man could wish to be. I firmly believe that

HAWKER'S NERVE AND STOMACH TONIC AND LIVER PILLS

Saved My Life.

I hereby certify the above statement is correct in every particular.

A Splendid Remedy.

Bras.—I think it my duty to make known the great benefit I received from B. B. B. I was troubled with constipation and debility, and used three bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters, which relieved me from suffering. I consider this a splendid remedy above all others and recommend it to all suffering from constipation.

WOOL. WOOL.

HAVING rented the store lately occupied by the Woolen Co., North Side of Queen Square, (Walker's Corner), we are going into the Cloth and Wool business. Our idea is to give you the best possible makes, and to take Wool for them in exchange in the usual way; also, the highest Cash price paid for Wool. It will be our aim to please you as we have done in the past. For the fourteen years we have been in the above Company's employ, we tried to give our Customers every satisfaction, and to-day we are just as anxious to do the same. We will be pleased if you will give us a call when in want of anything in our line, or have wool to sell for Cash.

Cloth, Flannels, Blankets,

Etc., Etc.,
