AN UNEXPECTED DECISION.

LONDON, June 24.

Further indication of the possibility of a speedy settlement of the coal crisis appeared to-day. In the House of Commons Sir Robert Horne, President of the Board of Trade, said the situation was "at the most critical point, when there appears to be a real chance of getting a settlement." Because of the delicacy of the situation, he declined to discuss the question further. Earlier in the day it was rumored at a Labor Party conference in Brighton that the Miners' Executive Committee, which will meet in London to-night, was about to make "an unexpected decision."

BANDITS ATTACK GENERAL.

DAMASCUS, Syria, June 24.

An attempt was made yesterday to assassinate General Couraud, commander of the French Army in the East, as he was travelling in an automobile from Damascus to the Sea of Galilee in Northern Palestine. The General was uninjured, but had a narrow escape, a bullet passing through his left sleeve. The Governor of Damascus, who was with him in the automobile, was slightly wounded. The bandits had disguised themselves as Gendarmes.

DE VALERA.

DUBLIN, June 24.

Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican leader, was arrested Wednesday night near this city and later released. It was definitely established today. It appears certain that De Valera was arrested either in error or through over zeal of the official concerned. It is declared here that there is no intention on the part of the authorities in Ireland to arrest De Valera.

COAL AND LABOUR.

LONDON, June 24.

As the Labour Conference has expressed much sympathy with the striking miners, but has offered nothing more tangible in the way of support, doubts are now offered that there will be a conference of all Unions to discuss the advisability of calling a general strike. The Times, to-day, published an appeal from three working miners in Nottingham to offer a square deal, which will leave no stigma of defeat.

YALE DEFEATS HARVARD.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 24.

Yale 'Varsity crew won the annual boat race from her ancient rival Harvard, to-day, in one of the most thrilling and grimly fought struggles that has ever been waged over the historic Thames course.

CAPTAIN COURT-MARTIALLED.

LONDON, June 24.

Captain Edward Kennedy was tried by Court Martial yesterday, charged with neglecting to take proper measures to suppress the mutiny of Naval Reservists, at Portsmouth, last April. It appeared that the men's grievances were confined mainly to such subjects as food, leave, etc. But one of the chief engineers is said to have told Capt. Kennedy, "nine out of ten of the men are Trade Unionists, and would lay down their arms if they were called on to use them against their fellow workmen." The result of the Court Martial has not yet been announced.

ALBERTA ELECTION.

EDMONTON, Alta., June 24.

The Stewart Administration will appeal to the country in the Alberta Provincial elections on July 18, on a platform largely built of natural resources, scientific research and irrigation policies.

NO SYMPATHY WITH SINN FEIN.

GULFPORT, Miss., June 24.

A telegram signed by more than 400 citizens of Gulfport, was sent to-day to Senator Pat Harrison, protesting against his criticism of Rear Admiral Sims. The telegram read: "Four hundred unhyphenated Americans resent attack on Admiral Sims. Ninety per cent. of Mississippians have no sympathy with Sinn Feiners wherever expressed."

A. F. L. STANDS BY CONSTITUTION.

DENVER, June 24.

After a lengthy debate the Convention of the American Federation of Labor voted down the proposal calling for an addition to the constitution of the United States, taking the power of declaring war from Congress and placing it in the hands of the people by a referendum vote.

MURDERED BY MINES.

BELFAST, June 24.

A troop train, conveying soldiers from Belfast to Dublin, was wrecked to-day at Aberfoyle, near Dundalk, by an explosion of a Sinn Fein mine. Two soldiers and one of the train guards were killed and many others were wounded.

Foreign Wheat Free Food for England.

On Friday, June 26, 1846, Corn Laws were abolished in the British Houses of Parliament with the consent of Queen Victoria, so that thenceforward that article of food should be imported into the British Isles from foreign lands without any duty being paid. Thus any person in this country could claim more cheaply than staff of life, as bread is called, upon which everyone can depend. Of how great importance this change was may be proved by the enormous quantity of it thus obtained in one year. For example, in 1885, no less than 61,453,000 hundredweights of wheat were imported. In 1895, the wheat imported to the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland amounted to 67,615,785 hundredweight, value £18,617,377. This important Act of Parliament passed just ten days before Sir Robert Peel ceased to be Prime Minister, which he had then been for four years and 303 days. Another celebrated work of his was introducing the present effective system of police for protecting persons and property, who have therefore been jokingly named after him "Bobbies" and "Peelers." Just two days beyond the week to which this article refers (on Friday, June 26, 1850) Peel spoke in the House of Commons for the last time, for next day, in riding up Constitution Hill, his horse started, and he was thrown over its head. After being conveyed home, he died on July 2.

Why Winds Blow.

Winds are caused by the sun. The heat draws up the atmosphere, thereby creating a vacuum into which the cooler air rushes.

Vapour in the atmosphere causes winds that blow away from the place of evaporation, while showers leave empty air spaces into which air rushes from all points of the compass.

The diversity of these winds varies according to the degrees of vapour, the rotation of the earth, and the obstacles encountered by the winds—a wind cannot penetrate a mountain, of course, so after striking it is goes off at a tangent.

What we call a strong wind, ordinarily, is really a wheel of winds, that rush in curves to a centre like the curved spokes of a pulley-wheel. In a storm that centre or hub of the wheel to which the winds rush in a dead calm.

The east wind is air from the eternal snows of the Polar regions deflected by the rotation of the earth. Owing to the low temperature at which it starts the east wind is a relatively dry air. It is this dryness which makes its cold breath so unpleasant. It conducts heat and moisture from our bodies, thereby sapping our vitality and lowering our resistance to disease.

The Best Ford Story.

It is not perhaps generally known that Mr. Henry Ford keeps a book in which are pasted all the many hundreds of different jokes that have appeared in the American and English newspapers concerning his ears.

So far from resenting these sly digs he rather welcomes them, as affording him a good free advertisement, and recently he himself told this one in public, with the added comment that it was the best of the batch.

The head of a Government department at Washington (said Mr. Ford) wanted a car, and rang up he garage when they were kept.

"Sorry," came the reply. "We've only a couple of Fords in just now."

"All right, send one along. And I say, while you're about it, send a squirrel with it, will you?"

"Squirrel? What do you want a squirrel for?" asked the puzzled garage keeper.

"To pick up the nuts."

PYORRHEA.

Pyorrhea is the most destructive, the most difficult to treat, yet one of the commonest of all the diseases of the teeth. It is present in the mouths of countless thousands of adults who fondly think their teeth are in perfect condition. It progresses slowly, and in its early stages, painlessly. The gums become soft and bleed easily, then they grow sore and become inflamed. Pus forms at the roots of the teeth and they loosen in their sockets. When the disease reaches this stage it affects the general health and usually extraction is the only remedy.

EVENING HOURS.

The day with its worries is ended at last, its troubles and hurries are things of the past; the sun has descended, the night shadows close, the evening is splendid, it brings me repose. All day I was drilling and ...ing around, and mowing and ...g and pawing the ground; I ...d the onions and wrestled with trees until I had bunions on fingers and knees. And oft in my toiling I murmured, "By James! What profits this moiling? What good are men's games? We labor and labor, and labor some more, till Death with his saber comes up to the door. We're plowing or hewing or building a wall; what good are we doing? What use is it all? We fill up the hollow, we drain out the weir; and people who follow won't know we were here." And now in the gloaming my rest is so sweet, I think of my roaming around in the heat, and know that it fitted my soul for this hour, and toil is acquitted of charges so dour. I carried my burden until the day's close, and this is the guerdon—a tired man's repose.
