WOMEN WILL DONATE PRIZES FOR HISTORY

Canadian Club To Make Awards For Proficiency to Grades 7 and 8.

Announcement is made in a communication from Administrator V. K. Greer's office that the Women's Canadian club will again donate prizes this year for general proficiency in British and Canadian history

The prizes are to be competed for by each class in Grade VII and Grade VIII throughout the public schools for work of the year, September, 1924, to June, 1925. The winners are to be announced by May 8 in order that the prizes may be presented on May 22 as a feature of Empire Day celebrations.

In awarding the prizes there will be taken into consideration the work of the pupil throughout the year in the subject of history, the attitude of the pupil toward the subject and the interest in the reading of historical books, as well as the marks made on examinations.

Last year the books donated by the club were written by Arthur Hemming, a Canadian writer. This year the books have been chosen from the works of Charles G. D. Roberts, another prominent Canadian author.

The object the Women's Canadian club has in mind is, of course, to encourage the pupils in the senior grades of the public schools to become acquainted with the great men and women of Canadian history and with present-day Canadian authors.

ART EXHIBIT DRAWS CROWDS AT AYLMER

Illustrated Address Given by Dr. Perry Dobson of Alma College.

Special to The Advertiser.

Aylmer, March 22.—The art exhibit at the public school closed Friday night with an interesting address on art, illustrated by lantern views, by Dr. Perry Dobson, principal of Alma College, St. Thomas. The kindergarten room was filled by an interested audience.

The exhibit held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings drew large crowds each night, being one of the most popular and instructive entertainments in Aylmer for some time. More than 200 pictures, copies of great masterpieces, displaying Canadian, American, Italian, French, Spanish, Dutch and other national art, were arranged on the walls in chronological order, beginning with Egyptian art and coming down to modern American art.

Principal McGregor and his staff of teachers were responsible for bringing the art exhibit to Aylmer, and the proceeds from the admission fee charged will be used to purchase pictures for the school room walls.

Each evening a program of recitations, instrumental numbers and solos was given by the pupils, assisted by adult talent of the town. Lunch was served each evening, and the Baptist Sunday school orchestra played. A feature of each program was a description of most of the great masterpieces by some pupil of the school.

PARKHILL COUPLE EARLY PIONEERS

Mr. and Mrs. John McGregor Celebrate Golden Wedding Anniversary.

Special to The Advertiser.

Parkhill, March 22.—Mr. and Mrs. John McGregor of Parkhill celebrated their golden wedding anniversary on Tuesday, March 17, amid the happiest surroundings. Both are in good health and of their family of six all were present. There are eleven grandchildren. An excellent banquet was characterized by toasts and speeches and talk of the good old times.

Mrs. McGregor is Canadian born, having been born at New Salem, near St. Thomas. Mr. McGregor hails from Argyleshire, in Bonnie Scotland, and came here in 1856 with his parents and their family of ten, in a sailing vessel that took six weeks to cross the "big pond." Those who remember these days, are in the decreasing minority, but their experiences were unique and always interesting.

The McGregor family came first to Hamilton and drove up to West Williams, before the government highway was surveyed. The next year they moved to McGillivray, lot 21, concession 5, where Mr. McGregor spent the greater part of his life. Sixty-one years ago Parkhill was not marked on the map. Pinehill, Sylvan and Nairn were flourishing villages with prospects of becoming "cities," but the advent of the railway changed all that, and the places dear to the old people, because of sacred memories and associations, have almost ceased to exist.

Mr. and Mrs. McGregor retired some years ago and resides in Parkhill. His family, with many others, helps to form that group of people who may be passed in the rush of the modern world, but who nevertheless constitute the sane, stable and steadying elements in Canada's society.

Their children are: Mrs. Moore of Dutton, Mrs. Frank Steeper of Corbett, Mrs. Wesley Dowker of Parkhill, John Hugh on the hometsead at Greenway, Mrs. James Arrand of Saskatoon and Stewart McGregor, B.S.C. of Windsor.

Among those present were Mrs. Cannell of Toronto, his two brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Peter McGregor of Grand Bend and Mr. and Mrs. Dan McGregor of Corbett, and Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Shepherd of Parkhill.

Among the letters of congratulations received was one from the session of St. Paul's Presbyterian church and one from the town council, on which Mr. McGregor served for many years.

Among the many presents are two pins given to the old couple by Mrs. Cammell, each containing a cairngorm. These are particularly prized.

MISS KATHLEEN GIBSON,

who is playing the important role of Bo Peep in "Fi Fi of the Toy Shop," to be presented at the Patricia theatre on Thursday and Friday in aid of a new Y. W. C. A. building. The costumes, which arrive today, are said to be exceedingly attractive.—Portrait by Sanders' studio.

PYJAMA GOWN IS SMART FOR TEA

Fashioned With Black Satin Trousers and Short Japanese Kimono.

New York, March 23—Mark Twain's jumping frog has at last gotten itself into fashion. For the frog is one of the newest ornaments to grace the stubby handles of the new spring umbrellas. This particular frog jumps, just as did the specimen told of by Clemens, revealing a cavety in the umbrella handle for mirror, powder puff and lipstick. Figures of dogs, parrots, and green-eyed cats also are popular handle ornaments.

The winter of our discontent means more than a quotation to women inclined to stoutness, for many put on flesh in the cold season. Now, however, they are convincing their friends they are slimmer than ever. The answer is the brassiere and girdle combination. This substitute for the oldtime corset if properly fitted, gives the figure the appearance of slenderness without the uncompromising boyish flatness which has ceased to be so desired.

Many women in these days of taxicabs will not carry an umbrella, but they can at least wear one. The latest afternoon frock reported by Paris despatches is cerise crepe with a very short skirt, rounded neck, no sleeves, and a tunic shaped like an inverted umbrella of Irish lace.

Naturally it is to London one looks for tea gowns to accompany the English five o'clock tea habit. The latest fad there is the pyjama tea gown. This consists of rather tight black satin trousers, with a stripe of gold embroidery down each leg, and a short Japanese kimono of printed crepe tied at the waist with a sash.
