NEW YORK, July 27.—A modern Jack Sheppard was arrested yesterday by the police in the person of a New York gamin named Jimmy McGowan. He is scarcely 15 years old, a medium-sized lad and rather good looking. He was arrested for burglary on the night of June 13, while disposing of his booty to a pawnbroker, and was sentenced to the Catholic Protectory. On the way there in the Black Maria he stripped off his handcuffs and pried open the door of the van with some sharp instrument and made his escape. Since then he has broken into several other houses and stolen considerable property. Yesterday young McGowan was captured by a detective while skulking through Hester street and locked up.

"It is the little things that tell," says an old adage. Yes, especially the little brothers.

Mr. J. R. Allen, upholsterer, Toronto, sends us the following: "For six or seven years my wife suffered with Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Inward Piles and Kidney Complaint. We tried two physicians and any number of medicines without getting any relief, until we got a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. This was the first relief she got, and before one bottle was used the benefit she derived from it was beyond our expectation."

Big Benzine Blaze in Cincinnati — A Wisconsin Town Wiped Out by Fire.

CINCINNATI, July 27.—A locomotive on the switching tracks of the Cincinnati Southern Railway at Ludlow, Ky., late yesterday afternoon dropped a few coals of fire on some powdered rosin on the track, which set in flames the storage warehouses of the Standard Oil Company, adjacent to the track. The large warehouses contained 20,000 to 25,000 barrels of benzine. Eight freight cars, two tanks of turpentine and 1,000 feet of railway siding were also destroyed.

WEST SUPERIOR, Wis., July 27.—The town of Iron River, Wis., 40 miles east of here, was wiped out by fire on Sunday. The entire business district and the buildings of the Northern Pacific and Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic railroads were burned, together with most of the residence district. The loss is roughly estimated at $200,000. The town was practically without protection. It was practically built this summer. It was a mill town, and growing rapidly.

ST. THOMAS, July 27.—Three barns owned by H. F. Brown, of Malahide, were destroyed by fire on Monday. Very little of the contents were saved. Over 50 tons of hay in one of the barns was consumed.

HAD HIM TRAINED.

It Took This Bride Only a Few Minutes to Break Her Refractory Husband In.

[From the Utica Observer.]

They were certainly a very likely and respectable looking young couple, and they were as loving and tender toward each other as though they were not yet married. The probabilities are that in the early part of June, or, at the greatest, not longer ago than the middle of May, they were made one and inseparable, and on this particular occasion they were to be parted for a brief few hours for the first time since their marriage day. At any rate they were at the West Shore station very early in the morning, and the appearances indicated that the young wife was going home to spend the day.

"You surely will not miss the train to-night?" he inquired for the fifth or sixth time.

"Oh, no," she assured him, solemnly and impressively.

"If you should, I would just about go wild," he declared.

"So should I," she replied.

"Well, then, you must be sure and not miss it," he repeated, with a scared look in his eyes.

"No, I certainly must not," she said, with an earnestness that carried conviction with it. Then she continued, "You will find me a real nice seat, won't you, dear?"

"Yes, I will get you a seat all by yourself," he said, with an assurance that meant that if he shouldn't happen to find a vacant seat in the car somebody would be thrown out of the window to make room for his birdling.

"And you will not be afraid to kiss me good-by right in the coach, will you?" she inquired, looking tenderly into his eyes.

"Oh, I guess I'd better kiss you here, before we get into the car. People always stare so," he answered evasively.

"But I like to have you kiss me the last thing," she pouted; "and I don't care how much people stare, do you?"

"None" he replied. But I thought it might be unpleasant for you. I guess I'd better kiss you in the depot before we go out."

"Well, if you are ashamed of me probably you had" she flashed. "I didn't think you would be ashamed of me so soon," and her lips trembled.

"I am not ashamed of you, my dear," he began; "only I thought that there might be some coarse persons in the car that would make fun of us if I should kiss you good-bye there."

"I'd like to know what that is but being ashamed of me!" she exclaimed. "I just don't care a snap whether you ever kiss me at all or not! I think you have no business to treat me so, and I don't care if I do miss the train to-night."

"Settle it! settle it!" shouted a voice over in the other corner where a drowsy drummer was stretched out with his head on his grip and his legs over the end of the seat. "Kiss her in both places, or else let me."

And the young people walked out on the platform and around the other side of the building. When the train came fifteen minutes later he walked right into the car and found her a seat, and then bent down and gave her a smack that sounded like the blowing out of a cylinder head. As the train moved away the drummer turned around and said: "I congratulate you, young lady. You've got him well broke."

The Merritton Disaster.

ST. CATHARINES, July 27.—Following is the verdict of the jury at the adjourned inquest in connection with the late Merritton disaster: "That Sayer Chapman, Peter Hunt and A. H. Van Slyke came to their death by being killed in a collision between train No. 52 and train No. 53 on the Welland branch of the Grand Trunk Railway near the boundary line between the municipalities of St. Catharines and Merritton on the morning of July 18, 1882, and further, this jury finds that the authorities of the G. T. R. are culpably and criminally negligent in not having attached air brakes to train No. 52, and in allowing excursion train to be run without air brakes, to the imminent peril of human life. Further, the jury do censure the G. T. R. authorities for permitting such dangerous discrepancy to exist in the time-pieces in the several stations, whereby this deplorable accident was rendered possible. The jury further find that the operators should not be called upon to discharge any duty except that to which they should be compelled to exclusively devote themselves."

Put Him on a War Footing.

(Watford, Ont., Guide-Advocate.)

To the honorable reeve and councilors of the township of Warwick:

Gentlemen,—As a ratepayer, and as authorized by bylaw No. 6, 1891, I started to drive a flock of sheep to William Hume's pond, on or about June 11, when Mr. Caughlin (who, I understand, is Thomas Gavigan's hired man), with a few curses took them by force and drove them back to Thomas Cavigan's place, and the aforesaid Thomas Gavigan has threatened personal violence. I would pray, therefore, that you would give me permission to carry defensive weapons, as I am made to believe by a magistrate this is the proper method to get leave to carry the same, hoping that your honorable body will assist in keeping the law and punishing Mr. Caughlin if he has violated any law. I remain, yours tru'y, T. B. LAWS.

Warwick, June, 1892.

It was moved by Mr. Brandon, seconded by Mr. Kersey, that the reeve grant leave to Thomas Laws to carry a 42-pounder, muzzle-loading cannon. Carried.
