THE DOMINION PARLIAMENT

BUSINESS DESPATCHED IN THE HOUSE YESTERDAY.

Sir Richard Cartwright's Many Questions—Sir John Thompson Says Wait for the Report of the Commission—Mr. Maclean Makes His Maiden Speech in Favor of Lower Railway Fares.

OTTAWA, June 15.—For exactly one hour and ten minutes this afternoon Sir Richard Cartwright occupied the time of the House in putting 31 questions to the Government with reference to the letters, receipts, etc., which have appeared recently in The Toronto Globe. At the end of the first long question, Sir John Thompson gravely replied: "The members of the Government who receive The Globe are aware of the publications referred to." This reply was made to the first seven questions, after which Sir John contented himself with saying, "Same answer." After these preliminary questions Sir Richard asked the first of his series of ten es to what the Government intended to do. It was as follows: "Whether the Government have observed that the said documents, if authentic, prove that a very large fund was created and placed in the hands of the said Hon. Thomas McGreevy for the purpose of influencing the election in the several constituencies referred to and that the said fund was regularly distributed in accordance with a careful preconcerted arrangement." To this Sir John Thompson made the following reply, which fully covers the position taken by the Government with respect to this attempt on the part of Sir Richard to re-open the Caron matter.

Sir John Thompson's Reply.

"The publication of the statements and documents quoted in the preceding questions, referring as they do to expenditures alleged to have been made in the year 1887 in the elections for the Parliament whose term expired in 1891, was evidently made in pursuance of the charges which were preferred in this House by the hon. member for West Ontario, and which were interpreted by that gentleman and two or three members of this House in opposition to the Government as charges that the Postmaster had diverted by subsidies from the purpose for which they were granted by receiving for election purposes large sums of money out of such subsidies and out of moneys raised on the credit of such subsidies, and so forth, as stated in the resolution of this House passed on May 4, 1892. This House on that day resolved that it was expedient that inquiry should be made as to the truth or falsity of the allegations and charges, and that the evidence relating to the same should be taken by commissioners under the statute which provides for such inquiries being made by commissioners, and that the evidence when taken should be laid before this House. Two eminent judges have been selected to be such commissioners, and their appointment has been approved by the House without any dissent being expressed as to their fitness and impartiality. Ample powers are being conferred on the commissioners, and when their labors are concluded the result of such labors will be laid before the House for such action as may seem proper under the circumstances. The Government do not intend to ask the House to interfere with that investigation, or to substitute for it a method of investigation which would be less complete and less impartial, nor do they propose in the meantime to express any opinion on the questions which that inquiry will involve or on the facts which are to be proved or disproved before the commissioners."

Sir Richard's next question received a similar reply, but to the enquiry whether His Excellency's attention had been called to the publication of these letters Sir John Thompson replied that such communication had been had with His Excellency, and such advice given him as the Government considered it was its duty to give—a statement which was received with applause from the Government side of the House, which was renewed when Sir John stated in reply to another question that the Postmaster-General had made a statement to his colleagues with reference to the matter.

The last question was whether the Government intended to cause a committee of the House to investigate the matter and Sir John replied that the Government proposed to await the report of the commission already appointed with respect to these matters.

The Redistribution Bill.

The House then went into committee on the Redistribution Bill, when Mr. Mills moved an amendment to the second clause to the effect that the constituencies should be fixed on the old county boundaries, subdivided. The debate was continued by Mr. McMullen up to recess.

When the House was in committee on the Midland Railway Bill to-night, Mr. Maclean (East York) moved an amendment to the effect that the maximum rate for travel on the road be two cents per mile, as the initial step towards extending the principle to other roads. For 30 years the passenger rates on railways in Canada remained the same. It was time that it was now reduced. He promised his constituents during his election that he would move in this direction and now he was doing so, and would continue to do so until a statutory enactment was passed to that effect. Instead of diminishing the receipts of the roads it would increase them. The adoption of the system in England satisfactorily proved this, although Old Country railway companies were first opposed to the idea.

Hon. Mr. Haggart said that if the member for East York would withdraw the motion he would have a chance of moving it when the bill to amend the general railway act came up.

Mr. Maclean: "Will the Minister of Railways give me the promise that that bill will be pressed this session?"

Mr. Haggart gave his promise.

Mr. Sproule seconded the amendment in a brief speech.

Mr. Tisdale thought it was too late to press the matter this session.

Mr. Mills (Bothwell) suggested to Mr. Maclean to move for a special committee so as to have an opportunity to examine railway men and others. This would best attain Mr. Maclean's object and railroad interests would be protected in this way.

Mr. Sutherland supported the amendment.

Mr. Maclean said he was willing to withdraw it and take the suggestion of Mr. Mills into consideration, but he intended to educate the House—[hear, hear]—and the House could stand to be educated on this matter—[hear, hear]—until such time as the law was changed.

The bill passed.

New Members Introduced.

Two new Conservative members were introduced this evening. Immediately after recess Mr. Calvin, the newly-elected member for Frontenac, was introduced by Sir John Thompson and Hon. Mr. Bowell, amid considerable applause. Almost exactly at midnight and just before adjournment Mr. Jeannette, who was elected by acclamation on Saturday for l'Assomption, was introduced by Hon. Mr. Chapleau and Hon. Mr. Ouimet.

Changes In the Bill.

The announcement made by Sir John Thompson to-night that no change would be made in the county of Russell, and that Clarence township will remain in the same electoral division of Russell instead of being placed in Prescott, was received with such bad grace by the Opposition as to make it doubtful whether the rumor which is afloat to-night that it is also intended to leave the city of London unchanged and to divide the county of Ottawa East and West instead of North and South, may not be incorrect. The rumor is that the Government has decided to make these two changes in the Redistribution Bill in addition to the one announced to-night and by so doing eliminating every feature of the bill to which objection could be taken. If these changes are made the effect should be to quickly shorten the debate.

The whole of the evening session was taken up discussing Mr. Mills' amendment to the second clause of the Redistribution Bill, the only marked feature of the debate being a little difference of opinion between Hon. Mr. Haggart and Mr. D'Alton McCarthy.

The Judge's Report.

On motion of Sir John Thompson to-day, the report of the trial judge in the Chicoutimi and Saguenay election was laid on the table. In this case it will be remembered that the judge reported extensive corrupt practices, which prevents the issue of a writ without action by the House. Sir John announced that he would move that the writ be issued.

The House adjourned at 12.10 until Friday.

CORNELL-PENNA. BOAT RACE.

Cornell an Easy Victor by Five Boat Lengths.

ITHACA, N.Y., June 15.—The Cornell-Pennsylvania boat race took place at 5.30 o'clock this afternoon. Both crews seemed in the pink of condition as they rested on their oars at the starting point.

Cornell got the best of the start, and at the quarter both crews, pulling at 42, Cornell led by a length. When the half was reached Cornell had gained three-quarters of a length, pulling at 36, Pennsylvania at 38. The race then became interesting, as Pennsylvania spurted and gained half a length at the three-quarters. Cornell pulled stronger, and when the mile was reached Cornell led by 2½ lengths, pulling 36. At the 1½ miles Cornell was 2½ lengths ahead. Pennsylvania was still in the race, pulling 36 strong, but Cornell's stroke told, and at two miles Cornell was three lengths ahead. At the 2¾ mile mark Cornell had gained one-half a length, both pulling at 36. Then came the finish, and to everybody's surprise neither crew raised the stroke. Cornell passed the line an easy winner by 5 lengths in 17 min. 26 sec., Pennsylvania 17 min. 46½ sec.

The course was three miles straightaway.

THAWPLED TO DEATH.

Sad Fate of a Galt Man Who Tried to Stop a Runaway Horse.

GALT, June 15.—John Chater, an employe in Goldie & McCulloch's Safe Works, aged about 60 years, while on his way back to work during the noon hour, attempted to stop a runaway horse, and was run over and almost instantly killed. The horse, which belonged to Mr. James Anderson, veterinary surgeon, was left tied in front of the Queen's Hotel. The escaping of steam from a Grant Trunk engine in the vicinity frightened the horse, which broke loose. Deceased was an Englishman by birth. He leaves a widow and grown-up family.

Married in a Cemetery.

BALTIMORE, Md., June 15.—One of the strangest marriage ceremonies ever witnessed was performed yesterday morning in Greenmound Cemetery. The groom was Col. Hendrick von Stamp, ex-Minister of Denmark to the United States and a Knight of the Order of the Danenborg, and the bride was Miss Mildred Hammond, daughter of the late General Hammond of this city. The ceremony was performed while the two contracting parties stood upon the graves of the bride's parents. The selection of such a place for the service was due to the sentiment of the bride and her devotion to the memory of her father and mother, who died 20 years ago.

Romulus and Remus sat upon the wall.
Watching mighty meteors thro' the ether fall.
Tho' the vestal virgins tailored for the twins
Very little clothing decked their manly shins.
Scanty styles prevailed in those early moons,
Kilts were not in favor, nor were pantaloons.
This is a digression, just a hint out-thrown,
That the current costume was but flesh and bone.
Here and there a feather and a stroke of paint
Showed the native Latin in an aspect quaint.
Here and there the nobles, like the kingly pair,
Decked themselves in sunshades when they took the air.
Rapt in contemplation gazed they on the stars—
Remus gaped at Venus, Romulus at Mars.
"Hither bring the vates, prophet of the clan,"
Thus the noble Remus suddenly began.
"Romulus, my brother, scest thou up there
Stars of purest lustre, two beyond compare?"
Straight the royal hero to his knees uprose,
'Gainst his brother's finger placed his Roman nose,
Gazed to where he pointed in the azure vault,
Lost his kingly balance, turned a somersault.
Ere he had arisen in his grief and shame,
To the dual presence, lo! the vates came.
"Welcome," then said Remus. "May your fame redound,
Yonder stars that glitter, are they to be found
In your Book of Wisdom?" Sire, the prophet said,
"May all earthly triumphs rest upon your head.
Yonder stars that glitter in their magic sheen
Are the mighty brothers, Sidera Dineen;
In the distant ages shall their triumph be
Clothing heads of mortals most resplendently,
Hats of every color, hats of every size,
That the heart can gladden, that—the prophet lies!"
Thus exclaimed the monarch, in fierce ecstasy:
"One was meant for Romny, t'other one for me!"
Picture the commotion, reader, if you can,
How the brothers chastened! How the prophet ran!

Rev. Dr. Wild.

The genial face of the Doctor was seen in the streets yesterday. He had just returned from the meeting of the Congregational Union at Montreal. The Doctor preached on Sunday evening in Emmanuel Congregational Church with great acceptation and all his customary fire. The large church was packed and many were unable to gain admittance. Rev. Mr. Pulsford has resigned the pastorate of this church, and such was the favorable impression created on Sunday that many of the members at once hit upon Toronto's Polymath as the very man for the vacant pulpit. The World hopes that the Bond-street Prophet will not be enticed away from Toronto, but according to a despatch from Montreal it looks very much as if he will have the refusal of the position. It would be Montreal's gain and Toronto's loss.

Sons of Canada.

The proceedings of the closing session of the Sons of Canada were open ed yesterday by the receiving of reports from the Finance and Legislation Committees, which were thoroughly discussed and adopted. During the afternoon the officers-elect were installed by Bro. P. P. Saunders. A vote of thanks was passed to the newspapers for their daily reports. The next annual session of the superior lodge will be held in Port Perry in June of 1893.

Mr. Wiman Not In It.

"There is no possibility of Mr. Erastus Wiman representing the Toronto Board of Trade at the London Conference of British and Colonia Chambers of Commerce," remarked a gentleman well posted in Board of Trade matters to The World, "his views on our trade policy not being in accord with the pronounced policy of the board."

IT STIRS ALL THEIR HEARTS.

THE INVITATION BY THE IRISH LEADERS TO MR. BLAKE.

It was the Universal Topic Yesterday—What People Think About It—It is Generally Regarded with Feelings of Pride by All Classes—Ald. Hallam Gives His Views.

The invitation of the Irish leaders to Hon. Edward Blake was the big topic for discussion everywhere yesterday. Home Rulers of all shades of opinion were in transports of delight, this feeling being shared as well by Conservatives as by Reformers. The latter were of course particularly proud that such a vast career seemed to be opening up for the great Canadian Commoner. Young Canadians, too, spoke glowingly of the possibilities that were thus put in the way of the first of Canadians. There is a general feeling that the time in which a decision must be arrived at is very short. Mr. Blake is not the man to take so serious a step without knowing the ground upon which he is about to stand, and to arrive at this understanding may consume a great deal of time. There can be no doubt, however, that Mr. Blake's acceptance of a seat in the Imperial Parliament would be a source of peculiar pride to all Canadians. The following letter from Ald. Hallam explains itself:

Canada is Honored.

Editor World: I see in this morning's papers that Edward Blake has been invited to stand for a constituency in Ireland by the Irish Home Rulers.

This is a great compliment to the honorable gentleman, and I hope he will accept and be returned triumphantly, as there is no man in Canada understands the principles of Home Rule better than Mr. Blake. He would be a great help in formulating a scheme of Home Rule that would be just to all parties in Ireland.

England has tried to rule Ireland for the last 700 years in various ways; coercion, castle rule, keeping a large number of soldiers, also a large and expensive constabulary. Everything yet has failed to conciliate the majority of the Irish people. I think the time has arrived when some other plan should be tried, and it seems to me that a measure of Home Rule and a good system of municipal government would be the best scheme to adopt.

The honorable gentleman's opinions are well known on this subject and need no commendation from me, and I am sure that he would not be a party to loosen the ties which bind Ireland and the British Empire together.

It will be a great honor to Canada if Mr. Blake accepts and is returned as a member of the British Parliament.

I am of the opinion that he would not suffer financially by doing so, as his extensive knowledge of Canadian affairs, both politically and commercially, would be invaluable to the Colonial Office, and the many cases that come before the Supreme Court of England that affect Canadian interests would readily secure him employment.

Wishing him every success I remain,
Toronto, June 15. JOHN HALLAM.

Other Local Opinions.

Mr. Robert Jaffray: "I would be sorry to see Mr. Blake out of Canadian politics for good, but it is a splendid opportunity. He would be a great figure in the Imperial Parliament and he should accept the offer, an offer that would give free scope to his splendid abilities."

Mr. George A. Cox: "If Edward Blake enters the Imperial Parliament I believe that he will be Gladstone's successor."

Opinions at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Ont., June 15.—There has been much discussion to-day of the announcement respecting Mr. Blake. The general opinion is that the late leader of the Opposition will wait until Mr. Gladstone requests him to join his ranks. Should the leader of the Liberals do this, there is no doubt in the mind of the majority of the membership that Mr. Blake will accept a place in St. Stephen's.

How Mr. Laurier Views It.

Said Mr. Laurier, when asked his opinion: "To the Irish Parliamentary party he will prove a tower of strength. His experience in Federal Governments will be most valuable to the Home Rulers, and, in fact, will be useful to the whole Imperial Parliament. While his accession will be most valuable to the Home Rulers Canada's loss will be great. I think his return to our own Parliament was only a matter of time."

Sir Richard Cartwright said: "I think Mr. Blake will almost immediately become the leader of the party which he will join. While his statesmanship will be of value to the Home Rulers, his knowledge of constitutional law and his experience in Federal Government will make him one of the most prominent figures in imperial politics. Canada will be a gainer, inasmuch as the mere fact of this country being called upon to send a man to aid an imperial party will say much for Canada."

Hon. David Mills: "I think Mr. Blake will accept the offer, and if Gladstone ever more assumes power you will probably see Mr. Blake Secretary of State for Ireland. That he will within a short time become leader of the Irish party is a certainty."

WILLIAM O'BRIEN SPEAKS.

The Anti-Parnellites Will Make No Concession.

DUBLIN, June 15.—William O'Brien, M.P., spoke at Cork yesterday. He said that the proposals for an armistice offered by Mr. Harrington were not intended to be accepted; they were merely intended for consumption in America. It was less important, he said, to avoid petty election squabbles than to allow Ireland to speak with no uncertain voice.

This is regarded as an indication that the anti-Parnellites will make no concession, and will go into the general election separately and without regard for the Parnellites.

THE IRISH EDUCATION BILL.

Concessions to the Nationalists—State Aid for Catholic Schools.

LONDON, June 15.—In the House of Commons to-day the Irish Education Bill was under discussion. Mr. Balfour accepted all the amendments offered by Mr. Sexton of Belfast on the subject of public aid to the schools managed by the Christian Brothers. The Government consented to a compromise, whereby the schools in question should be enabled to receive state subsidies. The Irish members thereupon withdrew their opposition to the bill and it will doubtless pass. This compromise is certain to arouse vehement criticism in certain quarters that strongly oppose state aid to any schools managed by Christian bodies.

Home Rule and Unity.

LONDON, June 15.—The National League of Great Britain, Pierce Mahony, president, has issued an address to Irishmen in America, saying:

In view of the fact that Mr. Redmond is among you, we, your fellow-exiles, appeal for your aid and sympathy, which will be able to do much to restore the solidarity and influence which the party held under Mr. Parnell's leadership, without which Home Rule will be postponed indefinitely. The refusal of Mr. Harrington's terms will lead to a repetition of the regrettable contests in Kilkenny and Cork, will result in a loss of Gladstonian seats in England and will reduce Mr. Gladstone's chance of producing an effective bill.

The bride's gown was of grey crepon, with hat to match, while the bridesmaids wore white Bedford cord costumes, with white hats trimmed with yellow, and each carried a bouquet of yellow roses. The bride carried a bouquet of white roses. The groomsman was Mr. C. G. Boalt of Painesville, Ohio. PRINCE MICHAEL THE IMPOSTOR.

Efforts to Suppress the Evidence Being Made Public.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 15.—The trial of Prince Michael was begun here to-day before Judge Kinne. The moral and godly residents regard it as a great injustice that so sensational a case should be tried in their midst. Several clergymen have done all in their power to have the public excluded and a publication of the proceedings forbidden, but their attempts have been unsuccessful. Judge Kinne at first refused the motion of counsel for the defence that their witnesses on the case be subpœnaed at the expense of the county, on the ground that if the prisoner could afford to employ high-priced attorneys to defend him he could pay his own witnesses. But the counsel for the defence took the witness box and swore that his services were donated, and that he had also been compelled to pay "Lucifer's" fare to Ann Arbor. He had discovered that all the property in Michael's name was held in trust for the colony. The judge then ordered that the witnesses be sent for at the expense of the county. A number of these witnesses are from Toronto and the neighborhood.

HURLED TO DEATH.

Two Reckless Boatmen Tried to Shoot a Dam.

BELLEVILLE, June 15.—From additional particulars of the drowning accident at Burnell's dam, it appears that John Walterhouse and Edmund Huddleston, both young men, actually attempted to shoot the dam in their punt. The descent of the river is very rapid at this point and the boat fairly flew over the dam, accompanied by a drive of Rathbun's logs which had been started down the river. The fall stunned the young men. Walterhouse succeeded in getting on a log and this saved his life. Huddleston was just in the act of pulling himself out of the water when a passing log struck him with great force and he was thrown back and hurled to death on the rocks.

Farewelled for England.

PETERBORO, June 15.—Ensign and Mrs. Steele, who for the past ten months have commanded the Salvation Army corps in Peterboro, were last night tendered a grand farewell banquet by the local warriors. There was a parade and open air service, after which a large crowd assembled in the Simcoe-street barracks, where the farewell meeting was conducted. Brigadier Philpott of Toronto led the services. He spoke very feelingly of the work accomplished by Ensign Steele during his seven years' residence in Canada. The brigadier performed the impressive ceremony of dedicating the young son of Ensign and Mrs. Steele. Ensign Steele has had command of over 20 corps since his conversion in London eleven years ago. Among his other stations were No. 1 corps, Toronto; No. 1 corps, Montreal; and Quebec. The Ensign and Mrs. Steele will leave for England.

Their situation was desperate in the extreme.
