THE JUBILEE VISITS

Multitudes were engaged on Sunday in performing the Jubilee visits. The confraternities of the St. Vincent de Paul Society and the branches of the Sacred Heart League of five parishes made the rounds of the churches, accompanied in each instance by hundreds of members of the congregations both men and women. So perfect was the order that only at St. Basil's Church did one congregation have to wait for another. St. Mary's and St. Paul's people met at St. Basil's, and St. Helen's had to wait for a little while on both. Between three and four o'clock there must have been not less than five thousand people passed through the park between St. Mary's and St. Basil's churches. The crowd in front of St. Michael's College was at one time dense, and although no regular processional order was observed the different congregations were able to keep together and appear at each of the churches at the hour arranged for. It was a most edifying sight, a powerful testimony of the faith, to see such multitudes moving from church to church without any of the external attractions of processions or banners. The day was very warm and the way was long; but the people almost all went on foot, and lost little time by so doing.

"THOMAS BECKET" AT ST. MICHAEL'S COLLEGE.

Active preparations are being made by the management and students of St. Michael's College for an elaborate production of Irving's great play, "Thomas Becket," to be presented in the College Hall on Wednesday evening, May 22nd. The play is under the able direction of Mr. H. N. Shaw, which is a sufficient guarantee of its success. New scenery is being built and many alterations have been made about the stage, particularly in placing of new lights. The students are working hard, and show remarkable talent, and the Dramatic Society of '01 has determined to make this the greatest production ever given at St. Michael's College. Those who saw the "Great Umbrella Case" were enthusiastic over the clever comedy work of the students, but they are said to be even better in drama. The tragic story of Thomas Becket is an admirable vehicle for good emotional acting, and this is the first time the public will have an opportunity of seeing Sir Henry Irving's famous play at popular prices.

DEATH OF MRS. BLAKE.

Intelligence of the death of Mrs. Blake, wife of the Hon. S. H. Blake, was received in the city by cable from England on Sunday. Mrs. Blake passed away in London, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Edward Blake, with whom she had been visiting.

Mrs. Blake was a member of a well-known family of Irish origin, being the third daughter of the late Right Rev. Benjamin Cronyn, the first Bishop of Huron. A year previous to her marriage to Mr. Blake her sister married his brother, the Hon. Edward Blake, M.P. She was in her sixty-fourth year, and leaves a family of three, the daughters being Mrs. F. H. Moss of Toronto and Mrs Rhinelander of New York, and the son Mr. W. H. Blake. Her death will be sincerely mourned in Toronto.

REVIEWS.

IN THE FORUM.

The story of "How London Was Saved," as told by Mr. John Martin in the May number of The Forum, points a moral for municipal reformers in this country. Under the somewhat revolutionary title, "The Spoiled Parent," Mr. Wilbur Larremore expounds the doctrine that the duty of filial obedience has its limitations, at any rate in the case of children of adult years. Prof. W. S. Scarborough, one of the leading educators of his race, recommends, in an article on "The Negro and Our New Possessions," that American statesmen should consider the possibility of utilizing the acquisition of the islands of the Philippines as a means of solving the colored problem. Hon. Charles Denby contributes, from his own experiences at Peking, a bright and instructive account of "Some Chinese Traits." The connection between "Bryanism and Jeffersonian Democracy" is traced by Mr. Albert Watkins in a paper which calls attention to several facts generally forgotten by Democrats and Republicans alike. Mr. W. H. Hobbs, writing on "Art as the Handmaid of Literature," treats especially of the recent movement toward the collaboration of author and artist in the illustration of books and magazines. ST NICHOLAS FOR MAY Boys or girls with weak hearts are not just the ones to enjoy the most Cleveland Moffett's "Bridge-Builder" article in the May St Nicholas. The dim and perilous heights frequented by the workmen on the new Brooklyn bridge, as a matter of daily routine, are appalling to the imagination, and Mr Moffett has nothing to gain by minimizing the perils to which these stout-hearted fellows are constantly exposed, nor do the illustrations contradict what he says on the subject. Mark Twain appears as an inventor in a pageful of pictures accompanying an article in this number on the Patent Office at Washington, the subject being a "game apparatus," patented by S. L. Clemens on the 18th of August, 1855. An ingenious bicycle lamp devised by a sailor lad, is the theme of George A. Williams' article, "A Young Inventor." The general reader will be surprised to learn, from an article by George E. Walsh, what progress has been made of late years, in this country and abroad, in the breeding and training of carrier pigeons, which now make little or nothing of a flight of five hundred miles a day.

OBITUARY.

MRS. HAYES, HAMILTON.

Mrs Hayes, wife of Mr. Matthew Hayes, of the Imperial Hotel, Hamilton, died suddenly Saturday afternoon from heart trouble. The deceased lady had many friends who were greatly shocked at the news of her sudden taking-off. She was about 40 years of age and left a husband and four children. The funeral took place on Tuesday morning to St. Mary's Cathedral.

JOSEPH LOMAS.

Hamilton May 4.—Yesterday afternoon Joseph Lomas, a member of the Army and Navy veterans, died at his residence, 124 Hess street north, after a short illness. The deceased formerly belonged to the Twenty-ninth Regiment, and was stationed in Hamilton at the time of the Trent affair. After his discharge he came back to Hamilton, where he has resided ever since. He had seen no active service, but was in possession of good conduct and long service medals. The funeral will take place to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock to St. Mary's Cathedral, thence to Holy Sepulchre cemetery.

MR. J. D. LAWLOR.

The death of Mr. J. D. Lawlor, of Montreal, occurred at Perryville, N. Y., on Friday. The body was brought home on Saturday, and after service on Monday at St. Jean Baptiste Church was interred in Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

MGR. FARRELLY'S GOLDEN JUBILEE.

A correspondent of the Kingston Freeman writes;—I suppose it is generally known throughout the Diocese of Kingston, that on the 22nd of May next the Right Rev. Mgr. Farrelly, Rector of St. Michael's Church of this city, will have the rare distinction of celebrating his Golden Jubilee in the priesthood. For more than thirty years he has been pastor of St. Michael's Church, and during that long period had been repeatedly honored by being appointed administrator of the diocese, the delicate duties of which office he has invariably discharged in an able and highly satisfactory manner. He has, moreover, been highly honored by the Sovereign Pontiff who now so gloriously rules the Church, in appointing him to the high dignity of a Monsignore. Nobody will say that he has not well earned all these honors and distinctions, and now when he has grown old in the service of the Lord, who has thus signally prolonged his years of usefulness, it is meet that some fitting recognition should be given to his long and faithful service. The matter is now in the hands of an able and energetic committee, who will spare no pains to make this noteworthy event a grand success. In this the committee has the solid advice and wise council of our tireless and energetic curate, Rev. Father Sheedy, in whom all have the greatest confidence. And when associated with him we find such men as C. D. MacCauley, barrister; E. F. Butler, barrister; James F. Dolan, M.D.; Col. Hendrick, U.S. consul, and F. P. Carney, merchant, all young men who are an ornament to the Church, and who would shine in any community of the world, we can be well assured beforehand that the event will be carried out in a manner worthy of the occasion. And to be sure that nothing will be lacking, we find also on the committee some of the older heads, such as Ald. Doyle, Jas St. Charles, J. M. Hurley, ex-M.P., and Frank Dolan.

REV. FRANCIS CARNEY'S APPOINTMENT.

Fredericton, May 6.—Rev. Francis Carney, M.A., of Carleton County has been appointed pastor of Fredericton parish, succeeding Bishop Casey, who has been appointed to the head of the Diocese of St. John.

A BROCKVILLE NOMINATION

Mr. D. O'Brien, barrister, is the Conservative nominee for the Legislative Assembly in Brockville.

A New Catholic Work.

Catholic readers will be pleased to know that a new Catholic prose work, "Canadian Essays, Historical and Critical," will soon appear from the pen of Dr. O'Hagan, the young Canadian author. This volume will deal with the Catholic Church in Ontario, the Martyrdom of the Jesuits at Penetanguishene, French-Canadian Life and Literature, the Life and Work of the Hon. and Right Rev. Alexander Macdonnell, Pioneer Bishop of Ontario, Canadian Women Writers, Canadian Poets and Poetry, and the True Story of the Acadian Deportation; upon which Longfellow's "Evangeline" is based. Dr. O'Hagan is also bringing out a new edition of his third volume of poems, "Songs of the Occidental." Both volumes will make

MONTREAL

The first concert of the season under the auspices of the Catholic Sailors' Club was given on April 3rd, and was attended by upwards of 300 sailors and citizens. Mr E. P. Langlois presided, and among those present were Lady Hingston, Rev. Fathers Kavanagh, and Leroux, and Mr F. B. McNamee.

CATHOLIC GIRLS' CLUB, MONTREAL

It may be of advantage to many young women, who for business or pleasure visit Montreal, to learn that they can procure the best accommodation on the most moderate of terms by applying to Mrs. Mahoney, at the Catholic Girls' Club, 20 Victoria St. This establishment is especially designed for those who are employed in stores, offices, or shops, as stenographers, typewriters, salesmen, etc., but during the summer months will be free to all feminine visitors to the city, it is all and conveniently located, with the cleanest and most comfortable of apartments and the best of meals.

SIR WILLIAM HINGSTON HONORED.

Montreal, May 7.—Sir Wm. Hingston, was the object of a pleasing demonstration at the Hotel Dieu, on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary of his entering the hospital as a surgeon. Sir William has now reached his seventy-third year, but still continues the practice of his profession, and within the last few days performed two critical operations at the Hotel Dieu, where he has labored so long. The ceremonies opened with the celebration of Mass in the chapel of the hospital by Archbishop Bruchesi. After the religious ceremony, the surgeons of the Hotel Dieu presented Sir William an address accompanied by an urn of great value. The students of Laval gathered in the operating room, where they presented their professor with an address, and handed Lady Hingston a splendid bouquet. The sisters of the institution also paid their respects to Sir William, and presented him with some relics brought over from France by Mlle. Mance over two hundred years ago, and since preserved by her successors.

PETERBOROUGH.

Perhaps the most intelligent and appreciative audience that has ever assembled in the Peterborough opera house gathered together on April 24 to witness a production of the Merchant of Venice by local amateurs.

The honors of the evening, says the Examiner, were almost equally divided between Mr. T. J. Begley and Miss Nellie McCabe. Both possess wonderful talent in this line and their splendid acting last night was both a surprise and a treat to the audience.

Mr. Begley, in Shylock, was grand and surpassed the expectation of every body. Of course he was no stranger to a Peterborough audience and all who saw him in this same character last year were very anxious to witness last night's performance. Shylock is a wonderful production and it is doubtful whether any actor ever efficiently represented the more delicate traits of character that lie beneath the greater passions of the Jew's heart. His subtle malice and energetic revenge are the main ideas to be brought out, but Mr. Begley did not only portray these but also the majority of the other minor qualities. Certainly, his acting, for an amateur, was something wonderful and would do credit to a professional. His rating of Antonio in the first act, his passionate outbursts in reply to Salarino and his venomous threats to Tubal won for him golden opinions, while his rendering of the speeches in the trial scene were without blemish.

When it is borne in mind that Portia is perhaps the most beautiful character ever described by pen we have an idea how difficult a task lay before Miss Nellie McCabe. But she proved worthy of her steel and not only mastered the sentiment of the selection but expressed it perfectly. She is a promising elocutionist who possesses a well modulated voice and distinct articulation while her graceful gestures and carriage were admired by all. Her playful conversation with Nerissa was splendidly carried out; her speeches in the casket scenes held the audience spellbound, while her rendering of the "mercy plea" proved the hit of the evening and brought down the house. The remaining selections in the trial scene and the dialogue of the fifth act were also beautifully taken. Miss McCabe's equal would be hard to find and she deserves the highest praise for her good work last night.

Antonio is one of the most beautiful of Shakespeare's characters. He does not take a very prominent part in the drama; he is a sufferer rather than an actor. Mr. T. Packenham certainly did justice to the part. He possesses a very flexible voice capable of giving expression to a most passionate outburst as well as to a speech of greatest pathos. This was shown last night by his almost perfect rendition of the scornful outbreak against Shylock in the first act and afterwards of the mournful farewell he takes of his friend.

Shakespeare's Bassanio is a manly generous gentleman although a gay and somewhat dependent gallant. Mr. Jack McCabe, in his personation of this character proved that he had made a thorough study of it and had mastered all the fine traits. Mr. McCabe's gestures and facial expressions were splendid and his elocution almost faultless. His speeches and acting during the casket scene were especially worthy of note, while his argument with Shylock in the fourth act and his quarrel with Portia in the fifth were excellently carried out.

Mr. A. F. Saunders played Gratiano and Morocco in good form. He is the owner of an excellent voice of which he had perfect control. The boastful speeches of Morocco could not have been delivered better, while it would be difficult to improve on his rendition of Gratiano's witty sallies and original speeches. His acting in Act V.

Miss Ethel Primeau in Nerissa was all the dramatist intended, a clever confidential waiting-woman, who possesses a tinge of her lady's elegance and romance and mimics her mistress with good emphasis and discretion. Miss Primeau's interpretation of the character was correct, and her elocution of a high-class order. It would be difficult to pick on her best parts so well did she handle the whole selection. Her playing in Act V. delighted the audience who thoroughly appreciated it.

Mr Jas Mulligan seemed to have caught the spirit of Lorenzo, and played the part excellently. He proved to be an adept at love making, more particularly in Act V.

Miss Fanny Holmes was certainly "a most beautiful pagan—a most sweet Jew." She possesses a clear, distinct voice, and her articulation and expression were perfect. From the moment she appeared on the stage she had the audience with her, and commanded their undivided attention whenever she entered.

Mr Geo Lynch in Launcelot was indeed the jester of the evening, and promises to make a first-class comedian. He took the house by storm and called forth rounds of applause by his witty although slightly foolish speeches. Mr. Lynch's acting showed that he had discovered the humor of the part, and kept the audience in peals of laughter, even when his emotions overcame him and he wept. He also played Salerio in good style. In fact it was the opinion of a great many that he excelled in this character. The two characters are entirely different and Mr. Lynch must be remarkably clever at acting to play both so excellently. His speeches in the latter were characterized by feeling, force and distinctness. His appearance was always warmly applauded and his work on the whole brought him fadeless laurels.

The Duke of Venice was taken by Mr. Angus McPherson—his deep sonorous voice suiting well his white hairs and pompous manners. His appeal to Shylock is especially worthy of note, being minus a single defect. His accent and expression were beautiful.

Mr. Ed. Dillon played Tubal and Old Gobbo very satisfactorily, while Mr. M. Fitzsimmons as Stephano was all that could be desired.

Messrs. W. Young, J. Fitzsimmons and W. A. Jackson made three very imposing court guards, while Messrs. J. Carey and T. McGrath acted as Portia's attendants.

During the evening several delightful overtures were rendered by the Philharmonic Orchestra, under Mr. R. Gliddon. Miss Lottie Bell, violiniste, in her rendition of "The Palms" scored a triumph, and in response to an encore played a beautiful arrangement of "Annie Laurie." Mr. A. F. Saunders, baritone, sang in excellent voice "Love's old sweet song," and for a recall number, "Answered." He is the possessor of a magnificent voice.

Miss Maggie McCabe filled very efficiently the position of pianiste of the evening.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER
ABSOLUTELY PURE

No other article used in the domestic economy of the household has so many enthusiastic friends among the housekeepers of America.

No other article of food has received such emphatic commendation for purity and wholesomeness from the most eminent authorities.

The great popularity and general use of the Royal Baking Powder attest its superiority.

The "Royal Baker and Pastry Cook"—containing over 800 most practical and valuable cooking receipts—free to every patron. Send postal card with your full address.

Avoid the imitation powders. They are sold cheap because they are made from alum. But alum is a poison dangerous to use in food.
