The Ideal Oatmeal Porridge.

(From the English Mechanic.)

Clean, aromatic, coarse dry meal must be got from some shop where they know what is good in the way of oatmeal. The meal must be stored as carefully as tea in a covered dry jar, so that neither must, mice nor beetles can defile it. The saucepan must be the pink of cleanliness, and must not have been used for anything other than milk and breadstuffs. Saucepans in which potatoes, greens or meats have been cooked are never pure enough for milk and breadstuffs. With such materials the making of delicious porridge is easy, but without them it is impossible. Bearing in mind the principle on which breadstuffs and milk are to be combined in food, we perceive that the meal must be cooked in water. Therefore, having clean boiling water in the saucepan, we take a small teacupful of meal (two or three ounces) for each pint of water in the saucepan. Draw the saucepan of boiling water off the fire and then sift in the meal through the fingers. The meal must be sifted into the water, so as to be evenly spread over the surface, and to sink free from lumps. Then push the saucepan fully on the fire and boil briskly for a minute or two, so as to thoroughly mix the meal up with the water before it begins to thicken. Next boil slowly for three or four quarters of an hour, according to the coarseness of the meal. Care must be taken that the porridge is just kept on the move, and it must be stirred, if necessary, so as not to burn, and not to get lumpy. Smoke and soot must be carefully kept from contaminating it. The porridge is now cooked so far that all the starch-granules are fully burst, and the meal is properly disintegrated. Now pour out the porridge like a thin custard into a vegetable dish, and leave it to cool uncovered. If successful, the porridge on cooling will set or gelatinise; a brownish skin forms over the surface, and as this contracts the porridge separates all round from the dish to its edge. It becomes a soft, tremulous jelly, perfectly cooked, sweet in flavor, uniform in consistence, and free from contamination by dirty saucepans, by burning, or by the defilement of soot or smoke. It should be be eaten at the end of breakfast with cold milk, and it makes a most excellent supper.

A saucerful of such porridge put into a soup plate and a half-pint mug of good rich new milk is, indeed, a lunch or a supper, or a finish to breakfast which is fit for a king. It is a food on which any man can do anything of which he is capable in the way of labor, mental or physical. For growing children, and youths who are stunted in height or unsound in structure, this is exactly the food that is wanted. It is like bricks and mortar for the growing frame of infants, school-children and overgrown youths. For nursing mothers it is equally valuable, supplying them with the earthy phosphates and other materials out of which good milk is made, without drawing upon the mother's own structures, as is often exemplified by the rapid softening and decay of teeth in women who nurse their children largely upon meat and upon beer.

Mothers! Mothers! Mothers!!
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with the excruciating pain of cutting teeth? If so, go at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately—depend upon it; there is no mistake about it. It is perfectly safe to use in all cases, and pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States. INSURANCE.

LATEST OFFICIAL FIGURES.

The following statement is copied in the main from the advance issue of the Report of the Superintendent of Insurance, dated "Ottawa, April 30th, 1881," addressed to HON. SIR. LEONARD TILLEY, Finance Minister, and signed J. B. CHERRIMAN:

COMPANIES.	INSURANCE IN FORCE.	TOTAL ASSETS ON HAND.	ASSETS PER $100 AT RISK.
ÆTNA LIFE,	$71,051,819	$26,483,449	$33.24
Canada Life,	21,425,953	4,297,852	20.09
Confederation,	6,785,896	679,386	10.01
Sun,	3,892,139	473,632	12.16
Ontario Mutual,	3,031,385	225,594	7.44
Mutual Life,	1,364,459	165,586	12.16
Citizens',	1,141,440	146,508	12.83
Average last 6 Co's,	8,574,126	996,994	15.90

The final column, above, is not found in the Official Report, but its accuracy can easily be ascertained by dividing the first column, minus the two right hand figures, into the second column.

A table of this kind shows at a glance how thoroughly the ÆTNA LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY has been making provision for all who hold its promises to pay. If a business man holds a large amount of a Bank's promises to pay, he likes to feel assured, not merely that the Bank has good hopes of earning, in future, enough to meet its notes as they are likely to be presented, but that it actually has the money on hand, or most of it, to meet all claims, even if an unusually sudden call should be made.

Such sudden call has happened to many banks, at various times, and the weak ones have gone under; such sudden calls happened to American Fire Companies, at the Chicago and Boston conflagrations, and to Canadian Fire Companies at the St. John and Quebec fires, and found many companies unprepared to honour their cheap promises. An unusual call may fall, at any time, upon the Life Insurance Companies of this continent, such as has, at different times visited portions of Europe. So slight an influence as the Epizootic, which visited Canada and the Northern States in 1873, ran the mortality of several life companies up 25 per cent., for one or two years, and caused many to drop their policies. Three large companies paid nearly a million dollars in that one year, in excess of the average of previous and subsequent years.

When the next unexpected call does come to life companies, the wisdom of those insurers who hold policies in the BEST AND STRONGEST COMPANIES will need no approval, but will then get abundance of it.

It is a good thing to be wise in time, and to err, if at all, on the SAFE side, by commencing while in good health an immediate and safe provision for dependent ones, or your own old age, by one of those popular

ÆTNA LIFE ENDOWMENT BONDS.
