At the House.

FRIDAY, May 21st.

Mr. Kent presented a petition signed by the Horwood Lumber Co. Bowring Bros., Bishop, Sons and Co., Franklins Agencies, M. S. Sullivan, M. E. Martin, P. Templeman, Monroe & Co. and others asking for exemption from the export tax of $1 per cord on pit props cut during the past season. Mr. Kent stated that he was not personally or politically interested in the petition but was merely asked to present it, and would therefore recommend it to the Minister of Finance and Customs for his careful consideration.

The Minister of Finance replied that the matter was already under consideration.

Mr. Coaker called the attention of the House to the delay in tabling answers to questions asked by the Opposition. He said that some of the departments were giving every satisfaction in the mater, but others were not at all prompt. He gave notice that if the questions long since asked of the latter departments were not forthcoming by Tuesday next, he would move an address to the Governor on the matter.

The Premier offered to enquire into the matter and asked Mr. Coaker to give him a list of the questions yet unanswered.

The Speaker then announced that the Upper House had passed the Permanent Marine Disasters' Fund Bill with some amendments.

The Bank Fishery Bill passed its third reading.

The American Newfoundland Packing Co.'s Bill and Retiring Allowance Bill passed through the Committee stage.

The Newfoundland Products Co. Bill was read a second time and will go into the Committee stage on Tuesday next. Before the motion was put Mr. Kent moved an amendment that the passing of the contract be deferred for a year pending further information, which was lost on a strict party vote.

Mr. Coaker called the attention of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries to the fact that the S. S. Euphrates plying between Bell Island and Kelligrews was considered unseaworthy and asked for enquiries to be made in the matter.

Mr. Lloyd wished to point out to House the desirability for an improvement in the public news service. He was of the opinion that more attention should be given to the editing of the said news as it very often happened two or three mesages of the same in substance were forwarded on the same day. He emphasized the necessity of a better service. The amount paid for the compilation at Halifax was $260 a year. This amount was too small to allow of editing of messages. It was actually divided between two men, who were now giving a seven day service of 24 hours a day for less than 40 cents a day each. It was marvellous we got so much work for so little money. It would cost the Government less in the aggregate and the service would be of greater variety and shorter, if the senders were remunerated to edit the despatches.

Messrs. Morine, Coaker and the Colonial Secretary took part in the discussion and all were of the opinion that the compiler of the public news is insufficiently paid and that on the whole the work was faithfully performed, the repetition of messages being to some possible overlapping between Mr. Wier and his assistant. The matter will be taken up by the Colonial Secretary with a view to improving conditions.

The House adjourned at 4.30 p.m., till 3 p.m. Tuesday next.

None of his fellow-officers are mentioning the subject of "boots" to Lieut. Chas. Porterfield of the Eaton Motor Machine Gun Battery these days, and there is very good reason for the omission. Having heard a great deal about the qualities, good and bad, of the Canadian military footwear, Lieut. Porterfield decided to import a pair of high boots from England. He sent $25 to pay for the boots, but when they were delivered he had to give $17 for duty and $10 for express and other details, making a total of $52 for the one pair. He intends to wear them out as quickly as possible.

Unsportsmanlike.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger:—No man with any sporting instinct can look with toleration on the use of asphyxiating gases in warfare. It is like hitting below the belt in a boxing match. The honor of a soldier has become proverbial. He will treat his enemy fairly and defeat him in straight combat under recognized rules or or he will accept the consequences uncomplainingly. A soldier in uniform caught within the lines of the enemy receives the honors of war because he is playing fairly. But a soldier in disguise is a spy and is shot or hanged.

Something to Remember.

By RUTH CAMERON.

A great deal has been said in these last few months about the absurdity of the way some of the warring nations ask the Lord to help them inflict suffering and death upon their enemies.

It certainty is a strange boon to ask of the Prince of Peace but is it after all, no more absurd attitude than some of us who criticize, hold.

God made man in his own image, and man did the same for God, is an epigram of which I sometimes think when I realize the pathetic littleness of our conceptions of God.

A Strange Warning.

I know a girl who had a very ardent and religious suitor. She firmly declined his suit, whereat he was most indignant at her and wrote her that he felt he must warn her. Terrible things, he told her, death, misfortune disgrace, etc., had come upon people who had opposed his will and brought him unhappiness. He would hate to have anything like that happen to her but he wanted her to know that God was apt to punish his enemies.

His conception of God was evidently that of some Big Person in league with him and willing and eager to punish any slights offered him.

But What About His Enemies' Relatives?

Now, unquestionably some of the people who crossed his will must have had relatives to whom they were very dear and to whom their death or misfortune would have been a terrible punishment. What about them? Perhaps they were as good people as the ardent suitor; perhaps they were praying to God for the preservation and happiness of those whom they loved. What about it?

As there is some question as to whether the suitor in this incident was well balanced or not, perhaps that is hardly a fair example. However, here's what a letter friend wrote of an acquaintance of hers, presumably perfectly sane.

"I remember an old lady who told me that God had been so good to her and had given her such a fine day for moving. I could not help being a cat and asking her what was the matter with God the day she had sold most of the furniture; the sale had meant so much to her and it had poured pitchforks, there were only a half a dozen people at the sale and things went for nothing."

When Prayers Must Conflict.

Incidentally one wonders whether there may not have been farmers who were praying for rain on that day which was so fine for moving.

Every day there must be someone who is praying for rain and someone who is praying for pleasant weather.

Now please do not think I mean to be irreverent or to attack your faith in a God who cares about your little joys and griefs. I only want to remind you—and myself—that we must remember that everything that happens to us affects our fellowmen, too, and to help us broaden our conception of God into a Power that has to deal with millions of conflicting wants and wishes and not with ours alone.
