CITY CIRCULATION AGENT

Of Leading Montreal Daily Endorses GIN PILLS

FIVE long years of suffering from Kidney Trouble—two boxes of GIN PILLS—and it's all gone. That has been the experience of Mr. Eugene Quesnel, Chief City Circulation Agent of La Patrie, of Montreal. He describes it feelingly:

Montreal,
May 3rd, 1912

"I have been suffering from Kidney Trouble for over five long years. I had also Rheumatism in all my bones and muscles, could not sleep nights and on some occasions could hardly walk. I had been treated by some of our best Physicians but without relief and I lost over fifteen pounds. One day I met one of our leading hotelkeepers, who had been cured by your famous GIN PILLS, and he advised me to try them. So I bought two boxes at my druggist's and before I had used one box I felt a big change. Before I finished the second one I was completely cured.

I can assure you I can hardly believe it for if I had only known what I know now I would not have spent over One Hundred Dollars for nothing when two boxes of GIN PILLS cured me."

EUGENE QUESNEL.

GIN PILLS are gaining a world-wide reputation, by the way they conquer the most obstinate cases of Rheumatism and all kinds of Kidney Trouble.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It's awfully hard to keep the dead past buried.

Necessity is the mother of hard work with most of us.

No man is as good today as he is going to be tomorrow.

It is as hard to tell a fool anything as it is unnecessary.

Life is one continuous struggle for something to eat and wear.

Give a woman a pretty handkerchief and she can cry over anything.

The position a man gets away from home is never as good as his folks say it is.

A girl may have taking ways who is neither a kleptomaniac nor a camera fiend.

Occasionally a man's friends get the best of him while he is watching his enemies.

The piano next door is always out of tune.

"'TIS WELL TO KNOW A GOOD THING" said Mrs. Surface to Mrs. Know-well, when they met in the street. "Why, where have you been for a week back?" "Oh, just down to the store for a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil," and Mrs. Surface, who hates puns, walked on. But she remembered, and when she contracted a weak back there was another customer for Eclectric Oil. m

The Difference.

A priest was giving a lecture on the evil of great wealth. In the audience was a man the priest knew. The man was the father of seven girls, and the lecturer pointed to this man as an example. "Think," said the priest, "of being the proud father of seven daughters. Think who is the happier—the man with the million dollars or the man who is the father of seven daughters. I will ask you, Mr. Sheldon, who do you think is the happier?" said the priest, pointing to the subject of his argument. The man arose and said: "Father, I think that a man with seven daughters is the happier. A man with a million dollars worries for more. A man with seven daughters never does."

NEW SUMMER DRINKS.

Some Very Cooling and Gratifying Beverages From Foreign Lands.

Although the "cups" and "punches" of America have a wide reputation, foreign lands have equally refreshing beverages. England and India excel in the variety of their cooling mixtures, and Persia is the original home of the julep, but in that faraway country mint is never used; roses take its place.

A beverage from Turkey is called "sanec amour." Take the juice of three lemons and two oranges and the grated rinds of one lemon and one orange. Stick a lemon with cloves and hold over the fire until it is thoroughly roasted, then slice in thin slices, add a handful of fresh rose petals and one large cupful of honey. Pour boiling water over all and let cool gradually. When ready to serve chill in a shaker and serve in lemonade cups.

French egg pique is very refreshing on a hot day when one is too exhausted to eat. Put two tablespoonfuls of fruit sirup, any flavor desired, and one egg in a glass and fill with bottled soda that has been chilled. Mix thoroughly in a shaker until foamy, then pour out, add a dash of phosphate and sprinkle over the top a little grated nutmeg or fresh ground cinnamon as preferred.

English Lemonade.—Pare two oranges and six lemons as thinly as possible, steep them in a quart of hot (not boiling) water for four hours. Boil one and a quarter pounds of granulated sugar in three pints of water. Add to the two liquors the juice of six oranges and a dozen lemons. Stir well, then strain through a jelly bag and ice.

EVERLASTING YEAST.

An Excellent Recipe That Has Been In Use For Years.

A special cooking of potatoes for yeast is never necessary if the water in which potatoes are cooked for a meal is saved. Instead of draining into the sink, strain the proportion of five cupfuls of potato water over one-half cupful of sugar. When cool add a starter of yeast foam, or by keeping in a warm place, such as the top of the warming oven, in two or three days it will ferment without aid, a white foam appearing on the top, when it can be placed in a jar and kept cool.

Use no other liquid for bread. Three and one-half cupfuls will make three loaves of bread. The yeast can be added to from time to time by saving the potato water, adding sugar and when cool putting into the yeast jar. In this way the yeast keeps indefinitely, with no extra work, and is always ready for use. Always save a cupful for a starter. Yeast with the starter can be made at noon and be ready to make bread at night.

A Play Pinafore.

Old blue denim is used for this sturdy play apron, which is a simply cut model, bound at the edges with braid.

APRON OF BLUE DENIM.

A printed nursery rime on the front should delight any little wearer.

An Inexpensive Soup.

Many people think soup is a luxury and cannot be a part of dinner probably more than once a week. Following is a recipe for a soup which, besides being very inexpensive, is very beneficial and will prove a boon to people suffering from loss of appetite:

After lunch put one-half pound of barley in two quarts of water, add a little salt and let simmer for two hours. About one and one-half hours before dinner slice into the barley and water one good sized raw carrot and one small onion, sliced fine. About one half hour before taking from fire add two teaspoonfuls of worcestershire sauce.

This is exceptionally good and well worth a trial. Barley costs 5 cents, carrot 2 cents, onion 2 cents, worcestershire sauce 1 cent, total 10 cents. It will give as much nutriment to the system as 40 cents' worth of meat.

Two New Ideas.

If you wish to give your lingerie frock the very latest whim of the fashion realm add narrow bands of brown fur. These bands of fur edging flounces and drapery of the most transparent and filmy net and chiffon dresses were one of the most marked features of the drag race at Auteuil. It is one of those curious combinations in which the French revel, but at the same time it is effective.

Another popular fancy is the scarf of malines attached to the gown on one shoulder and thrown around the figure in artistic abandon. In fact, malines will be found surprisingly useful in refreshing slightly worn gowns, whether used as scarf, neck ruche, sash or finishing the sleeves. There is now a waterproof malines on the market which neither the dampness of the shore nor an unexpected shower can wilt.

BUSY CELL TOILERS.

The Marvelous Work They Constantly Perform in the Blood.

The blood cells are important members of the cell community and are exceedingly numerous, there being over 75,000,000,000 of the red blood cells alone. These red blood cells move in the blood currents, carrying through the arteries each its little load of oxygen, which it transports to the distant tissues that they may be invigorated and vitalized anew, and, returning, carrying through the veins the debris and waste products of the system to the great crematory of the lungs, where the waste is burned and thrown off from the body.

Like the ships that sail the sea, each cell carries its outgoing cargo and returns with another one. Some of these cells perform the office of special repairers, forcing their way through the walls of the blood vessels and penetrating the tissues in order to perform their special tasks.

There are several other kinds of cells in the blood besides the carriers just mentioned. There are the wonderful soldier and police cells, which maintain order and fight battles when necessary. The police cells are on the constant lookout for germs, bacteria and other microscopic disturbers of the peace of the body.

When these tiny policemen discover vagrant germs or criminal bacteria they rush upon the intruder and, tying him up in a mesh, proceed to devour him. If the intruder be too large or vigorous a call for assistance is sent out, and the reserve police rush to the assistance of their brothers and overpower the disturber of the peace.

Sometimes when the vagrants are too numerous the policemen throw them out from the body by means of pimples, boils and similar eruptions. In case of infectious diseases an army corps is ordered out in full strength, and a royal fight is waged between the invading army and the defenders of home and country.—William Walker Atkinson in Nautilus.

CHINESE SIGNBOARDS.

Poetic Gems to Attract Business to Shops In Peking.

W. Simpson in "Meeting the Sun" writes: "I saw in Peking a list of signboards, and a few samples of them will illustrate their general character: 'Shop of Heaven Sent Luck,' 'Shop of Celestial Principles,' 'The Nine Felicities Prolonged,' 'Mutton Shop of Morning Twilight,' 'The Ten Virtues All Complete,' 'Flowers Rise to the Milky Way.'

"In these signs we can see that the Chinese can combine the soul of a poet with the pocket of a shopman. Contrast such efforts with 'The Noted Eelpie House' of the London streets, and one must feel that we are outer barbarians. Carlyle quotes a Chinese signboard, 'No Cheating Here,' but I could not find anything like it in the list. 'Good and Just According to Heaven' ought to satisfy the ideal notions of the author of 'Sartor Resartus.'"

"The Honest Pen Shop of Li" implies that other pen shops are not honest. The "Steel Shop of the Pockmarked Wang" suggests that any peculiarity of a shopman may be used to impress the memory of customers. Snub noses, squint eyes, lame legs and hump backs might all be used in this way.

A charcoal shop calls itself the "Fountain of Beauty," and a place for the sale of coal indulges in the title of "Heavenly Embroidery." An oil and wine establishment is the "Neighborhood of Chief Beauty," a description the realization of which it is hard to conceive anywhere in Peking. "The Thrice Righteous" one would scarcely expect from an opium shop.—London Globe.

Blocked by an Iceberg.

Discussing the iceberg question, Professor John Milne of London writes that the year he visited Newfoundland one of these ice mountains had stuck in the Narrows, which is the entrance to St. John's harbor. The capital of Newfoundland was bottled up. "A fort pounded at the intruder for a time, but it might as well have pounded at the Karakoram mountains. The monster stopped all traffic either in or out. On the third day, however, it heeled over and sailed away."

SANDWICH TIME.

Here Are Some Delightful Novelties Which Will Appeal to the Palate.

With the vacation season at its height the demand of the moment is for trifles such as hors d'oeuvre and sandwiches. Suppers served from buffets are in order. There are teas, picnics, little festive gatherings of so many different kinds that the cook who has a skilled hand is much in requisition. Here are some delightful sandwich novelties:

Savory Sandwich Butter.—Cream or knead about four ounces of fresh butter and mix it with one teaspoonful of any one of the following ingredients: Finely grated horseradish, chopped parsley, green herb puree, curry paste, anchovy paste or bloater paste. Krona or paprika pepper is also used for mixing with butter and makes a capital sandwich butter. The above will be found decidedly good for buttering thinly cut bread for sandwiches.

Stuffed Eggs a la Russe.—Shell four hard boiled eggs and cut each in half crossways, then carefully remove the yolks and rub through a fine sieve and mix with a little seasoned mayonnaise cream. With this refill the white of eggs. Cover the surface with a good layer of seasoned caviar. Range the halves of stuffed eggs thus prepared neatly on a dish on a bed of small cress or else finely shredded green salad, preferably lettuce. Keep the dish on the ice till required for table.

Princess Sandwiches.—Pound in a mortar till smooth about eight ounces of cooked chicken, free from skin and bones, then add one ounce of butter and mix thoroughly; now add one dessertspoonful double cream, one teaspoonful lemon juice and season with salt and a good pinch of paprika pepper. Work the mixture until quite smooth and then put on a plate. Blanch, drain and skin four walnuts or six almonds and cut them into thin slices. Spread the prepared mixture upon thin slices of buttered bread, arrange the sliced walnuts upon the chicken puree. Press the slices together in the usual way, then cut them into desired shapes, dish up, garnish with sprigs of watercress or parsley and serve.

Hamburger Sandwiches.—Cut very thinly the required number of slices of smoked German ham sausage. Butter some thinly cut slices of white or brown bread, spread over each with a little German or French mustard and then a layer of thinly sliced gherkin. Lay the slices of sausage between each two thin slices of buttered bread and proceed to trim and finish the sandwiches in the usual way.

Harvesting Wheat.

Wheat should not be allowed to get overripe before being cut because there is more waste from shelling, and it does not make so much or so good flour if the outer covering becomes too thick and hard. More goes to bran. The practice of setting it up in round shocks and capping with two sheaves broken over in the middle is not favored as much as it used to be.—American Cultivator.

The city man who imagines that the farmer has only to plant and sow and harvest and then deposit his cash has still a few things to learn.

Awful Ignorance.

Young Man With Lavender Tie, Pink Shirt and Bright Purple Socks—Say, Jim Lawrence is a queer duck. He pronounces his words so queer! The other day he was telling some girls about going to the Blank inn for a "tahbledote" dinner. As soon as we left the girls I asked him what he meant and come to find out he meant table de hotey! Ha, ha, ha!—Chicago Tribune.

Her Discourse.

"My dear," mildly expostulated her husband, "I said only half a dozen words and you have talked about them for forty-five minutes."

"Well," snapped Mrs. Vick-Senn, "the preacher does that sort of thing every Sunday morning and you never kick about it."—Chicago Tribune.

At Sixes and Sevens.

"I married my first husband for money and my second for love."

"Then you are very happy now, I suppose?"

"No. Alas, no! You see, my first husband married me for love and my second for money."
