THIRD ARREST IN HARVIE MURDER

Stanley, Alias Cavanagh, Implicates Father of Young Fisher

A FOURTH SUSPECT

Officers Keeping a Sharp Watch on Ed. McCarthy, Who Is Believed to Know All About the Crime—Bloody Handsaw Found Which Assassins Likely Used.

Ellershouse, N. S., Feb. 6—(Special)—The bloody saw, a dull and broken old instrument, with which the murderer of old Freeman Harvie severed the head from the body was found by searchers in the house of the dead man this evening. It was taken to Windsor and deposited with Crown Prosecutor Christie. It is an ordinary hand-saw, only about half of which remains and, while the blood had been largely wiped from it, the wood of the handle was stained with red.

The theory at first advanced, that Stanley pretended to buy the old man's farm and stock, led the Fishers to believe that he was placing them in charge of it, that the then killed Harvie in order that he might have him out of the way and thus be free to dispose of the goods and chattels is more and more confirmed as time passes.

Stanley did dispose of a lot of the stuff and had $53 in his pocket when arrested last night. He now half confesses his guilt, saying that he was only partly to blame, and he tried to incriminate the Fishers and Edgar McCarthy for having had a part in the tragedy. There is a good deal of talk at Ellershouse about this Ed. McCarthy, who was strenuous in pursuit of Stanley and Fisher, and he may be placed under arrest, not only on the strength of his well-known record, but partly because of the statement of Mrs. Fisher that he (McCarthy) said on Saturday night that he knew Harvie was dead, for he had dreamed it, and partly because of Stanley's statements. Whether arrested or not he will be called by Coroner Reid as a witness at the adjourned inquest to be held here at 8 o'clock on Thursday morning.

Stanley a Witness.

Another witness at the inquest on that occasion will be Stanley himself, who will be taken back from Windsor to Ellershouse. McCarthy is under close surveillance at the house of Freeman Harvie.

Early this morning Crown Prosecutor Christie was carefully at work examining the blood marks on the stairway and in the cellar. Relics of the drinking orgie in Harvie's kitchen where Stanley Fisher and McCarthy held high carnival on Saturday night, are in marked evidence in the room. A dozen whiskey flasks and ale bottles lie around.

Sheriff O'Brien absolutely refuses to allow any one to see Stanley, who now says his name is Cavanagh, and that he comes from Ireland.

The crown prosecutor who examined the man's clothes today, says there unare doubtedly blood stains upon them.

Stanley Implicates Another.

The capture of the man Stanley was effected about a mile from Hartville. The constable then drove to the house of David Fisher, on the Dawson road, and arrested Fisher and took both prisoners to Windsor and committed them to jail.

Stanley, of his own accord, on his way out to Hartville, said, when he was taken, he was on his way out to tell about the murder, that he was guilty of a part, but not all, old man Fisher and Jim had more to do with it than he had.

The constable cautioned Stanley not to talk too much and said that he had better not tell them about it.

He said he was talking to old man Harvie Saturday morning and making plans what was to be done. Harvie told him not to have them Fishers there. He didn't mind the old man but did n't want the rest the woman and boy.

Then he, Stanley, left Harvie in his own house and went up to Fishers. The old man and Jim were not home. He asked where they were and was told they didn't know He then returned to the Harvie house and heard loud talking in the cellar. He went down and looked into the cellar and asked who was there. They answered it was the old man, David Fisher and his son, Jim. He knew their voices. He asked what they were doing. They replied they were getting potatoes and turnips. He asked them if they did n't want a light. They said: "No don't bring me a light down here."

He left them in the cellar and went out to feed the hens. He was out a short time and came into the house, and Jim was washing the blood off his hands, and asked him for hot water and soap to wash his hands. It was in consequence of what Stanley said that Constable Singer arrested David Fisher. Fisher protested his entire innocence. He said Edgar McCarthy was the first man who informed him of the murder, saying the body was in the cellar. Those who have seen the disfigured head and body of the murdered man say it was the most horrible sight they ever saw. There is no entrance to the cellar from the kitchen. The entrance to the cellar stairway is from a back porch.

NORTH END LIBRARY

There Were 113 Volumes Added During Last Year

More People Are Using the Reading Room—Financial Accounts—Annual Meeting of Union Hall Corporation.

At the annual meeting of the corporation of Union Hall, held in the library Wednesday afternoon, the officers and directors were re-elected for the ensuing year. They are: James Holly, president; Geo. Hoben, vice-president; Richard Farmer, treasurer; Chas. Miller and J. B. Eagles, directors.

The public library financial account showed receipts to be $834.36, expenditures $779.46; balance of $60.10 to credit less Auer light $5.50. Mr. Farmer also submitted the financial report of Union Hall, showing receipts to be $601.70, expenditures $574.18, with balance of $26.52. Miss Florence Edwards, the librarian, showed in her report receipts of $47.02. Of this amount $18.84 was a balance from February, 1905, while $28.18 had accrued from various sources. The balance now is $17.76.

In the year 113 volumes were added to the library, the most important being eleven volumes of Encyclopedia Brittanica. There were not very many donations. W. H. Kingston, of High street, contributed ten volumes of Pepy's Diary, old and valuable books, and the gift was much appreciated. The subscription list remains about the same. At present there are twenty-one magazines and ten newspapers sent to the library, and the number of readers who drop in is increasing. The books of reference have been largely used. In the year 1903 the number of people visiting the reading room was 4,771. During last season the number had increased to 5,610. During the summer the rooms were renovated, and now present an unusually inviting appearance.

AT TRACADIE

(Newcastle Advocate.)

At the leper lazaretto at Tracadie (N. B.), there are now seventeen patients on the books—ten males and seven females. Those actually in the lazaretto are fifteen—eight males and seven females. There were no deaths during the year. Two new patients, both from neighboring districts, were admitted. One patient, a man of forty, is so apparently cured of all symptoms of the disease that Dr. Montizambert felt justified, at his last inspection of the lazaretto, in approving of his going home on condition of his reporting himself from time to time. He had been in the lazaretto for five years.

The Advance of Learning.

The general reader is apt to think of this as an age of exclusively material progress. While ready to recognize as the basis of this progress the great advances made by the physical sciences, he is likely to overlook the fact that the same incessant and insistent activity prevails in the departments of literary and linguistic research, and has resulted in equally great advances in the two culture subjects of history and literature.

The historical method, made in Germany, has won its most notable triumphs in the domain of physical science in practical England. Yet Germany, the home of scholarship for centuries, still leads the world in the scientific study of language and literature. Dr. Furnival, the venerable founder of the early English Text Society, could not have made such progress in his colossal plan of reprinting the early monuments of English literature without the aid of "General Zupitza" and his devoted band of German recruits. When the University of Oxford founded a chair of English literature she selected as its first incumbent a young scholar of Zupitza's, who had just been "habilitated" or installed as a privat-docent in a German university. The editors of the great Oxford Dictionary are wont to refer the knotty philological problems involved in their work to that great German philologist, Eduard Sievers, as to a court of last resort.

Nor is America behind in her recognition of Germany's leadership in these departments. She has no tariff wall against German professors. The name of Munsterberg is probably best known to the reading public, but there are others at Harvard not less distinguished, even as Chicago can boast of other names than that of the late Professor Von Holst, the greatest authority of his day on American constitutional history. Johns Hopkins called Haupt for Assyrian, and the sister institution at Bryn Mawr, sometimes playfully nicknamed the "Jane Hopkins," called the renowned Collitz for Aryan. Many are the wondrous tales of the fabulous sums that those favored darlings of the multi-millionaires have held out as baits to the great Teutonic specialists, not infrequently in vain.

Far more potent than this direct influence of the imported German professors, has been that of the German-trained Americans. For a time a German Ph. D. was almost an essential requisite to a good university appointment in the United States, while those already appointed spent their Sabbatical year's leave of absence in post graduate study in the Fatherland. Under these circumstances the trend of higher teaching on this continent has naturally followed that in Germany, and an advanced specialization has taken the place of the old-fashioned general college course which a quarter of a century ago was still the common prerequisite to a B. A. degree.

Time was when in one of our Canadian universities the same man lectured on history (ancient, medieval and modern), English, Italian, and Gothic; in another the Professor of Classics and the Professor of Modern Languages and English depended for assistance on a single all-round linguist, while in a third the Professor of Modern Languages was also Professor of Hebrew, and acting Professor of Greek and Latin, and spent his spare time looking after the interests of English. Less than twenty years have passed, and today the work of these three individuals is distributed between twenty-two members of the various faculties concerned. From this concrete example one gets an idea of the advance of learning in these departments of university work, none of them, be it observed, belonging to the so-called scientific side.—Professor Keys in February Canadian Magazine.

MAKE CHICAGO A SEAPORT

Project is Feasible; Would Cost $31,000,000

Twenty-two States Favor the Plan and Are Trying to Persuade Congress to Agree—Would Bring the Middle West Nearer to the Orient.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Interests representing twenty-two States are trying to persuade Congress to provide a navigable waterway from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico by way of the Chicago drainage canal, the Illinois river and the Mississippi. The government engineers have reported that the project is feasible and fix the estimated cost at $31,000,000. It is represented to the committee on rivers and harbors of the house that most of the expense will be incurred in making the Illinois navigable. A new channel will have to be provided in this river and a series of locks installed. The drainage canal, it is asserted, is already deep enough and wide enough to answer the purpose. The engineers note in their report that it will also be necessary to do a good deal of work in the Mississippi River north of St. Louis.

The committee on rivers and harbors is asked to make immediate provision for this great work in order that the waterway may be ready to receive traffic by the time the Panama Canal is completed. It is pointed out by the commercial bodies of the Middle West that are advocating the great improvement that the Central West will be brought one thousand miles nearer the markets of the Orient by such a waterway—that is to say, the country interested will be one thousand miles nearer by water transportation. It is also argued that if the United States is to derive the greatest possible benefit from the construction of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama the opening of a navigable waterway from Chicago to the Mississippi is imperative.

Much the same line of argument is used by the Ohio River Improvement Association, which is asking for the expenditure of an enormous sum of money on the Ohio. The request is that the Ohio be provided with a series of locks that will enable the maintenance of a nine foot stage of water at all seasons of the year. It is pointed out that such an improvement would be a great boon to the farmers and manufacturers of Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky, by giving them a short and cheap water route to the markets of the east, which the United States hopes to control after the Panama Canal is opened. Apparently there is a good deal of sentiment in congress in favor of both of these propositions but the committee on rivers and harbors is disposed to be conservative. Possibly no step will be taken at this session that will commit the government to either improvement. The disposition of the committee seems to be to wait until the Panama Canal is well under way before laying the groundwork for such costly interior improvements in the United States. It is pretty certain, however, that both improvements will some time be undertaken.

MONCTON LIQUOR SELLERS DOUBTFUL ABOUT NEW COUNCIL

Rumors That Scott Act is to Be Enforced Worries Them.

MONCTON, Feb. 6.—There is some apprehension among hotel and saloon keepers as to the attitude of the present city council in reference to the enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act. A few intimations thrown out by some of the aldermen has left the impression that drastic steps may be taken to rigidly enforce the act, although it is very doubtful if any such move is contemplated. There has been considerable dissatisfaction expressed among temperance people with the way the act has been enforced and some of the new aldermen are being urged to stand for a more rigid enforcement. It is generally admitted, even by dealers in intoxicating liquors, that there are altogether too many small places about town where liquor is sold to the boys of the city. Many of these places, by doing business in comparative obscurity, have been able to escape the eye of the law, and it is possible that the new council may instruct the police to wage a war on this class of saloons more particularly.

Rev. J. B. Ganong, field secretary of the N. B. S. S. Association, is in the city today.

A. D. Richard, registrar of deeds of Dorchester, was in town today.

G. M. Jarvis, district superintendent I. C. R., Truro, is here on railway business.

Hon. F. J. Sweeney left today for Fredericton, to be present at the opening of the legislature.

ST. LOUIS FAIR PRIZE OF $25,000 WON BY CONVICT

Lincoln, Neb., Feb. 6.—The winner of the $25,000 prize for correctly naming the attendance at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, was Frank Campbell, a convict in the Nebraska state penitentiary, who still has about one year to serve. Campbell was convicted of embezzlement. He will receive only $12,500 of the prize, as he, fearing difficulty in securing the money while he was imprisoned, agreed to pay a lawyer half of the prize in case of success in securing it.

STOMACH TROUBLE.

The Agonies of Indigestion Can be Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

All over the land there are people whose lives had been made miserable through the pangs of indigestion, who have been restored to the enjoyment of health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. One of these is Mr. Wm. Moore, of Welland, Ont. Mr. Moore is the manager of the electric light plant in that town, and stands high in the estimation of the citizens. He says: "It is really a pleasure to speak in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For four years prior to 1903 I suffered great torture from indigestion and stomach trouble. I could not eat solid food without experiencing great agony, and for over two years I had to resort to a milk diet. I had grown emaciated and was almost unfit for active work. I was treated by doctors and took advertised medicines, but without any lasting benefit. One day a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I began their use, but I must confess that it was without much hope that they would cure me. After taking a couple of boxes I could see an improvement, and this gave me encouragement. I continued using the pills until I had taken eight boxes, when I was completely cured and was able to eat any kind of food I desired. I shall always praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they saved me from such miseries as only a dyspeptic knows. I might add that my wife has also used the pills for troubles that afflict her sex, and has been fully restored to health."

Bad blood, poor blood, watery blood, is the cause of nearly every ailment that afflicts mankind. It is because every dose of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills makes new, rich, red blood that they have such wonderful power to cure such ailments as indigestion, anaemia, rheumatism, neuralgia, St. Vitus' dance, heart trouble, kidney and liver troubles, and the special ailments of women, young and old. But you must get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," on the wrapper around each box. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRITAIN'S UNEMPLOYED LOOKING TO CANADA

Montreal, Feb. 6—(Special)—A special London cable says: The feeling is rapidly growing that emigration to Canada is the solution of the problem of Britain's unemployed. The latest evidence of this comes from Leith (Scotland). The distress committee called in Bruce Walker, immigration agent at Glasgow, to explain the conditions of life in Canada to a party of twenty unemployed men. He frankly told them it meant hard work, but offered splendid opportunities. He was enthusiastically corroborated by a returned immigrant, and as a result all expressed their willingness to go.

TO AUCTION ST. JOHN BARQUE

The Low Wood to Be Sold in Boston to Satisfy Dock Charges

(Boston Globe, Tuesday.)

Literally eating herself up in dock charges and other expenses, the British barque Low Wood, of St. John (N. B.), is lying at National dock, East Boston, where she has been moored for months waiting for a charter or for a purchaser.

The vessel arrived here March 18 of last year, and since that time she has been lying idle, her owners under a heavy expense for wharf charges and the wages of a watchman.

At the time of her arrival her owners were offered a charter for lumber to the River Plate, the rates at that time being $6.50 to $7. The offer was declined, however, the owners holding out for $8 a thousand feet. So the vessel found no employment and no one came along who wanted to buy her.

She had had an unprofitable trip here from Rio Janeiro, having made the passage without cargo. On the way she encountered boisterous weather and lost one of her foreroyalyards.

On June 27, while lying at National dock, she was struck by lightning and her maintopmast was splintered.

Now the corporation owning National dock has filed a libel against the vessel, for wharfage, and to satisfy the claim she will be sold at U. S. marshal sale at noon, Saturday, together with her boats, tackle, appurtenances, etc.

The Low Wood is an old vessel, having been built at St. John (N. B.), in 1878. She is 186.6 feet long, 37.3 feet beam and 22.3 feet depth of hold. Her net tonnage is 1,091, and gross tonnage 1,137. She is owned by Troop & Son, of St. John.

10,000 Coal Miners on Strike.

Dubois, Pa., Feb. 7—All mines along the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg railroad, operated by the Clearfield & Jefferson Coal & Iron Company, were closed today, pending settlement of trouble at Yatesboro, Helvetia and Sykesville. Fully 10,000 miners are affected by the strike. As a result of the mining strike, orders were issued by the railway authorities tonight discontinuing all coal and coke shipments. This move will affect about 2,000 railway men, besides about 500 mechanics in the shops of this place.

William Moody, formerly of this city, was married in Boston, Jan. 13, to Miss Maud Smith. Rev. John March was the officiating clergyman.
