Easter falls on March 29, an unusually early date. The earliest date on which Easter can fall is March 22, and this only in case the moon is full March 21, when this date happens to fall on Saturday. This combination of circumstances is extremely rare; it occurred in 1098, 1761, and 1817, and will happen again in 1890, 2076 and 2144, while during the three following centuries it is not once "on the books" at this early date. On the other hand, Easter never falls later than April 25. That was the case in 1666, 1734 and 1889, and will only happen once in the next century—namely, 1968.

The Very "Boss" Cow.

The record for 365 days of the butter performance of the cow, Pauline Paul, owned by J. B. Dutcher & Son, Pauling, N. Y., was completed on the 7th, and showed that during the time there was churned from her milk 1,153 pounds 15¾ ounces of marketable butter, that was well washed, and salted at the rate of 1 ounce to the pound.

The cow is a Holstion-Friesian and weighs 1,450 pounds. She was fed her ration of grain composed of three parts bran, two parts ground oats, one part corn meal, by measure. She was fed per day not exceeding 27 pounds of this mixture, to which was added 8 pounds of cotton seed. She had neither slop food nor ensilage. What of forage she was fed, of hay, corn, or grass is not stated, but we suppose she ate of those according to her inclination. She went through the test triumphant, and in good condition—not having lost a meal, nor been "off her feed."

She gave 18,669 pounds and 9 ounces of milk during the time. As she made 1,153 pounds 15¾ ounces of butter, we figure that it took an average of 16.17 pounds of her milk to yield a pound of butter. This confirms again, our long-held-to view, that the phenomenal butter cows give very rich milk; while those that give it in rivers, almost, have never made great records from exceptionally rich milk. Pauline Paul, with her great size, and generous feeding, did not average quite 52 pounds of milk per day.

This great record puts the "Boss" cow ahead of any other cow that has been heard from, of any breed.

Her butter, at 25 cents, was worth $288.75. The cost of grain food at an average of $1 per hundred lbs. cost $106.50. We do not suppose the forage she ate, with such a grain ration, cost more than that eaten by any cow of her weight—not more than $30 worth probably.

We have figured this out for the benefit of some skeptics, who hold that these phemonenal performers, consume more than they pay for. They don't. There is a big profit in feeding them, and say nothing about the rich manure, or the calf. Even her skimmed milk, not taken note of, would pay for all her forage. So there was a profit on her performances of say $179.25. The manure would pay for waiting on her; and her calf, if sold, would buy a small farm.

And yet there are men who are seemingly content to "pull teat" a year to get $35 worth of milk, a few loads starved manure and a "deacon" calf, as the earnings of a cow!

They don't read this paper much, however, as we are glad to know so, so they won't ever sneer at the record of Pauline Paul; for the probability is they will never hear of it. Those who do hear and heed, are the men we like to talk to.—Hoard's Dairyman.

ATHENS IN MOURNING

Sudden Death of Reid B. Alguire Esq.

It has been our sad lot to chronicle the death of a large number of citizens of this village and neighborhood, but we never took up the pen with more poignant feelings of genuine sorrow and heartfelt sympathy that at this present writing. On Wednesday morning last Mr. Reid B. Alguire and wife left Athens to visit a sick relative of Mrs. Alguire's residing at Oxford Mills. On the way they had to cross what is known as the Mud Creek bridge, about four miles below Greenbush. The freshet of the proceeding few days had raised the water over the bridge and the accumulation of ice made the crossing dangerous. The result was that the cutter was upset and both the occupants thrown out into the water. They drove to Mr. T. B. Webster's about two miles where they stopped and drying their clothing proceeded to Oxford Mills. Mr. Alguire wrote home to his brother Isaac the next morning that he had no apprehension of anything serious from his mishap and in the evening sent a telegram to the same effect. On Friday morning the Rev. Wm. Wright received a telegram from Mrs. Alguire stating that her husband had died suddenly during the night, and requesting him to break the sad news to his brother and other friends. The telegram contained the intimation that the body would reach Athens on the B. & W. train in the evening. The sad news spread rapidly over the village and the utmost sympathy was expressed for the bereaved family and friends. Quite a number of friends and relatives at once started for Brockville to meet Mrs. Alguire and the body of her husband and escort them to their home in the village, from whence they had left only three short days before in fond anticipation of an early and pleasant return. On the arrival of the train at Athens station a large crowd of sympathising friends gathered and assisted in conveying the remains of the deceased gentleman to his former home.

Reid Burritt Alguire was the second and youngest son of the late Harmonious Alguire, and was in the 41st year of his age. He graduated from the old Farmersville High school and matriculated with honors in Albert college, Belleville. He engaged in mercantile pursuits for a few years but his health failing he gave up that business and was shortly afterwards appointed division court clerk a position he continued to hold until his death. He was several times elected to represent the Township of Rear Yonge and Escott in the County council. He was a pronounced Liberal and took a deep interest in political matters. He was the first to erect a permanant summer residence on the beautiful islands of Charleston Lake and during the summer months a large portion of his time was spent at his beautiful summer residence. Mr. Alguire married ten years ago, Miss Minnie Merrick of Merrickville. A somewhat singular incident was the fact that he died in the very house in which he was married at Oxford Mills. They leave no children. The funeral which took place from the late residence of the deceased to the Methodist church, was one of the largest ever held in this village. About forty intimate friends of the family from Brockville and Lyn came out by special train kindly placed at their disposal by manager Hervey of the B. & W. They proceeded at once to the residence of the deceased, where they were joined by others from Caintown, Delta and surrounding country, and as the hearse left the house they formed in procession and marched after the mourners to the church. Messrs. W. G. Parish, H. H. Arnold, G. W. Greene, Joseph Thompson, G. W. Beach and Chas. H. Wilson acting as pall bearers. The Rev. J. Wilson officiated at the church and it was expected until the service began that he would be assisted by the Rev. L. A. Betts, a very intimate friend of the family, but he was taken very ill during the preceeding night and was under the doctors care during the day. The commodious Methodist church was packed to the doors, the lower end of the isles being occupied as standing room, while large numbers had to leave, being unable to obtain admittance. At the close of the service the remains were placed in the vault and the Brockville friends headed by Ex-Mayor Derbyshire and D. Mansell, Esq., returned with the relatives to the late residence of Mr. Alguire where many kinds words of sympathy and condolence were offered the bereaved wife and relatives. Our friend has gone, no more will his cheery voice and salutation be heard on our streets. A loving wife and a large circle of near relatives have the heartfelt sympathy of the entire community in this their hour of sad bereavement, in which the REPORTER wishes to tender a humble share.

The Vancamp Murder Trial.

On the evening of the 21st of August 1889 the body of Oscar Vancamp was found cut to pieces on the Grand Trunk Railway track, about three miles below the town of Prescott. The body was viewed casually next day by Coroner Buckley of Prescott, but the incidents pointed so clearly in the direction of accident that the remains were interred without any further examination. Recently, however, the wife of one Charles Spinks gave Chief Hoy of Prescott information which led him to institute an investigation with the result that an old man named Thos. Utman was placed in the dock at the Brockville assize court on Wednesday last, charged with Vancamp's murder. Vancamp, it appears, who was a dissipated man, attended Barnum's circus at Ogdensburg, N. Y., just across from Prescott, on Aug. 21st, 1889, and during the day was in the company of Utman, his wife, his daughter and Chas. Spinks. Vancamp, who was paying attention to Lydia Ann Utman, against the old man's wishes, accompanied the Utmans to their home that night, and after supper a quarrel is alleged to have taken place, in which the old man struck Vancamp with a knife. They afterwards went outside, where the quarrel was renewed, and where it is alleged Vancamp was killed and his body afterwards taken to the track, where it was found about 11 o'clock the same night by a section foreman on the G. T. R. This man, John Reid, testified that soon after discovering the body he heard men talking on the main road near by, that he hailed them and when they came over to him one proved to be the prisoner Utman and the other he did not know. This unknown personage is supposed to have been one James Swartigger, who is known to have been at Utman's that night, and who is now serving a term in one of the New York State prisons. There was a very strong chain of circumstantial evidence woven about the prisoner. Witnesses swore that he had at least on one occasion said he would blow Vancamp's brains out if he had a gun, and Chief Hoy of Prescott also swore that prisoner had made damaging admissions to him after the arrest. The Utmans, Spinks, and several other witnesses are all related, and there is plenty of evidence going to prove that they are a pretty hard lot. Spinks, the man who gave the most damaging testimony against the prisoner, is a son of the latter's wife, and was recently arrested in Ogdensburg for bigamy. The prisoner had no counsel, and the judge named Mr. J. A. Hutcheson to defend him. Mr. Hutcheson made a brilliant and lengthy address to the jury in behalf of the prisoner, and was followed by Crown Prosecutor McLellan. Judge Rose then carefully reviewed the evidence. The jury then retired, and after an absence of about forty minutes returned a verdict of not guilty.

At the Cobourg Presbyterian church lately, Rev. Mr. Hay said he would read no more notices from the pulpit other than those having to do with the affairs of the congregation, unless convinced in his own mind that it would be for the advancement of the Great Cause. The pulpit was never intended to be a great bulletin board," says the rev. gentleman.

Dr. Washington's Great Success in Ottawa

From Ottawa Journal, Feb. 15th, 1891.

Dr. N. Washington, who has for the past four years visited the city as a specialist on lung and throat diseases, is about to come amongst his patients again. In over four years he has paid visits to his patients and through these angels visits were far between at first, he has, owing to the steady increase of his practice, had to make at least three special visits a month. His success has been undoubtedly most extraordinary as he proved by his increasing practice and the number of his patients. The latter have steadily grown in number under his treatment which has proved so successful in numerous cases. Chronic catarrh, and diseases of the throat is becoming more rare

Dr. Washington who has paid regular visits to this city for some four and a half years, and to whom hundreds of patients owe a lasting debt of gratitude, intends to continue his visits to the city for the benefit of any who desire to avail themselves of his consummate skill and experience. No other doctor who has ever visited Ottawa has worked so unremittingly and steadily as Dr. Washington, which in itself not only speaks volumes in his favor, but is proved by his immense success.
