mann—had he escaped scatheless through yesterday's terrible storm of fire and death, or——

Perchance Hermann was there, helpless and mangled on the trampled ground; perhaps he was under one of the fresh earthen mounds that rose black and ghastly on the plain, marking where a pile of dead had been buried.

Nothing certain could be known till they reached the camp, and in anxious silence and sorrow they pressed forward.

The 8th Army Corps was farthest away, and they had to pass through a large por- of the army to reach it. Most of the soldiers' faces were grave, but exultant. They had gained a brilliant victory, but at a fearful price. Great gaps had been made in their ranks, and friends and comrades were gone for ever.

At length they came to where the 33rd was bivouacked, and found their way to the officers' quarters. A group was seated in front of the hut, and there, to their infinite joy, was Hermann.

He noticed their approach, sprang up, and came to meet them, when, impelled by an emotion too deep for words to express, he and Edwin threw themselves into each other's arms.

"Thank God," murmured Edwin, fervently.

"Amen," responded Hermann.

And so did Ritchie Dunlop from the very bottom of his large and warm heart.

A Curious Case of Treasure Trove.—A correspondent, writing from the Egmondville, County of Perth, gives the following account of how $500 was obtained from the clothes of a woman who had been buried in that village for some time. He says:—"The celebrated "Fat Woman," that was exhibited in Seaforth some time ago, it will be remembered, died and was buried at Egmondville. Her husband, a mulatto, returned back to the States to lift the $3,000 of insurance he had on her life, which he got all right. He then visited the woman's friends, and learned something of the woman's habits, and found that she had used to keep money concealed in a belt around her person. This news was the cause of his visit to Egmondville a few days ago. He secured assistance and dug up the body, took off her clothes, searched diligently for hidden treasures, and found them to the amount of $500, which was concealed in a belt which was tied round her waist. He then replaced her dress, for she had been buried with all her wearing apparel on, shoes and all, just as she used to appear on exhibition, filled up the grave and went to the States—very likely consoling himself in the midst of his affliction with the thought that, though he had lost a wife, and a large one, too, he had got $3,500, which was probably worth two of her size.—Free Press.

The Times says Dr. Walpole has lost his beautiful chesnut mare, She died died suddenly in harness, it is supposed from bots or pin worms. If the Doctor had used Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders, he would, no doubt, have had his mare to-day—they are death on worms.

Chapped hands are very common with those who have their hands much in water. A few drops of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment rubbed over the hands two or three times a day, will keep them soft and white. Fishermen, sailors, and others will do well to remmember this.

Breakfast—Epps's Cocoa—Grateful and Comforting.—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately favored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors bills.—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. Each packet is labelled "James Epps & Co., Homœopathic Chemists, London." Also, makers of Epps's Milky Cocoa (Cocoa and Condensed Milk.)

Too much cannot be said as to their superiority over the ordinary glasses worn—there is no glimmering, wavering of the sight, dizziness, or other unpleasant sensation, but on the contrary, from the peculiar construction of the Lenses, they are soothing and pleasant, causing a feeling of relief to the wearer and producing a clear and distinct vision as in the natural and healthy sight. They are the only spectacles that preserve as well as assist the sight, and are the cheapest because the best, always lasting many years without change being necessary.
