TORONTO HAS ANOTHER BIG FIRE

The Departmental Store of J. N. McKendry & Co. Totally Destroyed.

LOSS NEARLY A QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS

With Insurance on Stock Amounting to $130,000—The Fire Started About Half-Past Six O'Clock, and Within Thirty Minutes' Time the Fine Store was a Blazing Mass—The New Water Tower Did Splendid Service—The T. Eaton Company's Private Brigade Again Shows Its Efficiency—How Did the Fire Start?—250 Thrown Out.

For 15 months Toronto has had an immunity from the big conflagrations which wrought destruction to The Globe office, the Osgoodby Building, and Simpson's mammoth store. Smaller fires have occurred, but until last evening no disaster involving hundreds of thousands of dollars damage and the throwing out of employment of large numbers of people had taken place in this city.

The other big fires which wrought such destruction occurred in the winter time, between January and March of 1895, and each after the midnight hour. The conflagration last evening was just as the tired employes had left the store and when Yonge-street, so busy at every other hour of the day, was well nigh deserted. The clouds of rolling smoke had scarcely darkened the sky ere the brigades were on the scene in response to the general alarm. At first it was believed that the great departmental store of Timothy Eaton & Co., the largest in Canada, was on fire, and thousands of people flocked to the scene, running as if for dear life. When the flames shot aloft the excitement of the crowds in Yonge-street was intense and it was at one time feared that the adjoining premises would not escape the fiery contagion. To the spectators whose nerves were highly strung, it appeared as if the firemen were dilatory in discharging the streams of water on the burning building, but this feeling soon passed off, as quickly there were 20 streams of water playing on the burning store. The steam fire engines did good execution and the utility of the expensive water tower in fighting such a fire in the upper stories was very apparent. Owners of adjacent premises were soon on the scene, and with commendable alacrity the apparatus of T. Eaton was playing on the roof of his extensive premises. Even Robert Simpson's departmental store, separated from the block by Queen-street, was drenched over the roof by his own apparatus as a precautionary measure of protection from flying embers.

After over an hour's vigorous work the fire was subdued, but not before a quarter of a million's worth of damage had been done, one of Toronto's fine stores completely destroyed and hundreds of hands deprived of the means of earning their daily bread. Fortunately in this fire there were no catastrophes involving danger to life and limb, as was the case in the big predecessors in Toronto's scorching.

It Was Discovered at 6.35 p.m.

About 6.35 people in the vicinity of Queen and Yonge-streets, saw a volume of smoke arising from the middle of the block in which are situated the large departmental stores of the T. Eaton Company, McKendry & Company and other firms. Police Constable Gall, who had passed McKendry's a moment before, noticing nothing wrong at that time, ran back to the front of the store, as the smoke seemed to come from that vicinity. He saw a glare in the rear of the ground floor, and rushed to the corner to give the alarm. Constable Wallace, who had seen indications of fire from Queen-street, had already sprung an alarm, and in a few moments the firemen of the Bay and Lombard-street sections were on the spot. An entrance to the store was forced, and several lines of hose were carried into the building. The flames, however, had by that time gained enormous headway, and were rushing up the light wall in a veritable pillar of fire. The Ronald engine from Lombard-street was in operation almost before the more distant sections of the brigade arrived, and in five minutes twenty streams of water were being poured into the building from every point of vantage. But still the fire was unchecked, and leaped from one department of the big store to another, and from floor to floor, until the building was a roaring furnace, into which the firemen dare not venture. Every stream was directed through the windows, and at 7 o'clock ladders were raised and the firemen were enabled to direct their efforts to better advantage. In the meantime another steam engine had arrived, with the water tower. The latter was immediately brought into service, and poured tons on tons of water into the upper windows, preventing the fire from going through the roof.

It was near 8 o'clock before the assurance that the fire was checked could be given, and by that time all that was left of the immense stock of drygoods and general merchandise lay in a heterogeneous mass in the pools of water that lay on the floors and in the basement, which was filled with water. The building was almost completely gutted.

Mr. McKendry Almost Heart-Broken.

Mr. J. N. McKendry left the store at 5.30, and was at his home when apprised by telephone that his property was in danger. Five minutes later he was on the spot, but in that short time the fire had gained such headway the almost broken-hearted owner of the store saw the stock must be a total loss. Mr. McKendry, who was seen during the progress of the fire, said the stock was valued at $200,000, but was only insured he thought, for about $75,000. He criticized severely the manner in which the fire had been dealt with. "When I went into the annex," he said, "there was almost no pressure. The stream in use there went scarcely 10 feet from the nozzle. It's disgraceful that such a condition of affairs should exist. I cannot imagine how the fire could have gained such proportions had it been properly dealt with."

Others besides Mr. McKendry criticized the firemen for not immediately forcing an entrance to the store. Those who were on the scene when the hose wagons arrived say several precious minutes were lost before the doors were broken open.

The Insurance Totals $130,000.

Insurance on the McKendry stock was, in the aggregate, $130,000, distributed as follows: Lancashire, $2500; Sun, $15,000; Insurance Company of North America, $5000; National, $5000; Union, $7000; Norwich Union, $5000; Royal, $10,000; Commercial Union, $5000; Phoenix of Hartford, $5000; Connecticut, $5000; Scottish Union and National, $9000; London and Lancashire, $5000; Manchester, $9000; Alliance, $10,000; Northern, $7500; London Assurance, $5000; North British and Mercantile, $10,000; Queen, $5000; Mercantile, $5000. On the building, which was owned by Mr. Charles Page, the insurance was $27,000, divided among these companies: Liverpool, London and Globe, $10,000; Western, $10,000; Lancashire, $4000; Norwich Union, $3000. The figures are official, being obtained from Messrs. Love & Hamilton and Mr. J. B. Reed.

It is Shrouded in Mystery.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. Strange to say, there is no theory advanced that accounts for it. However, it seems to be the general opinion that the fire started in the southwest corner of the store.

The last to leave the premises were Hubert McKendry and Thomas McCormack. They locked up at 6.20, after seeing that everything was secured. They left two gas jets burning for the convenience of the outside watchman.

Mr. McCormick said he had no idea how the fire started. When he left the building everything was as usual. A number of times he has seen the electric wires in the store jarred by the passing of the street cars. He has also noticed the inside wires throw a flame during a thunderstorm. Whether this fire was caused by a live wire coming in contact with some inflammable material is not known, but there are many who think that is the solution of the mystery.

Mr. Eaton's Brigade Shines Again.

To the efforts of the firemen were added those of Mr. Eaton's private brigade. This is composed of some 40 employes, who have at their service about 300 feet of hose. Their familiarity with the building enabled them to be of the greatest service in quenching the flames, and, in fact, it would be no exaggeration to say it is to them that their employers owe in no small degree their thanks for preventing the total destruction of the big store and contents. Two streams of water were kept playing from the two hydraulic pumps on to McKendry's roof, and thus the danger to adjacent buildings from flying sparks was prevented. Mr. Wilson Phillips is their chief, and deserves every commendation for the state of efficiency to which he has brought them.

Chief Graham Interviewed.

Chief Graham of the fire brigade was interviewed amongst the ruins. He said that when he arrived with the Lombard-street section the fire was mostly at the rear portion of the building and had apparently started in the northwest corner. The windows and doors were so thoroughly barred with iron that it was exceedingly difficult for the firemen to get in at the flames. The whole of the back of the building was a lake of fire. Immediately on his arrival the Chief gave orders for a general alarm, and soon all of the fire apparatus in the city, with the exception of that at Brockton, was on the scene. Efforts were at once directed to confine the fire to McKendry's store. The water tower was faced out at the front of the building and did most effective work. The two engines, the Ronald and Boustead, were also on Yonge-street, and quickly had up steam. The firemen from the eastern sections worked on the front of the building, while those from the west confined their operations to the rear. It was about half an hour before they were sure of their ability to prevent the fire spreading into T. Eaton's great departmental store, and they fought gallantly against the flames for over two hours before the sections from the outside stations could leave. The fire continued to break out again in places until after 1 o'clock this morning and a detachment of firemen were on duty at the ruins all night. The Waterous engine arrived after the fire had been got under control and it was not necessary to use her, as the other engines were doing nobly. The Chief is highly pleased with the work done by the water tower and the way in which it was managed. But for that it looked as if the spreading of the conflagration to Eaton's was inevitable. The Chief is entirely at a loss to account for the origin of the fire. To all appearances and as far as he could judge, it had started in the corner of the basement. The alarm was given at 6.41 and the general alarm at 6.49 p.m.

Notes.

About 250 employes will be thrown out of work by the fire.

Mr. McKendry was very much broken up. He was around the scene of the disaster for some time, until friends persuaded him to go home, as he could do no good.

The amount of water thrown into the building cannot be estimated. The water tower, which, in this fire alone has paid for itself, was throwing a stream at a pressure of 285 pounds. the two steamers did excellent work. Water rushed out of the doorway of the first floor in a regular river. The basement contained two feet of water at the finish.

The Eaton Company suffered some slight damage from the water leaking through into their basement. It was necessary for a short time to use one of the steamers to pump the water out of the cellar.

A number of leading citizens viewed the fire from inside the police lines. Among them was Chief Grasett, in plain clothes. A fresh young man was intruding too far, when the chief ordered him back. "Who the —— are you?" said the fresh young man. Just then an officer in uniform came along and the fresh young man moved off quickly, and Colonel Grasett continued his conversation with Engineer Keating.

While the fire was doing its best and the excitement at its height, an incident occurred which might have caused trouble. Detective Black arrested James G. McLean in the crowd. McLean lives at 106 Richmond-street west. He is wanted in Hamilton on a charge of theft. When the detective took him in charge, it got whispered around that the prisoner was the firebug. A mob of hoodlums and excited individuals followed Detective Black and his charge to the police station. Shortly before midnight one of Eaton's men carried a large basket of food to the firemen. The manner in which it was stored away into dirty faces showed that the firefighters had still considerable energy left.

It is said that the fire was first noticed by a Mr. Tibbs, an employe of the T. Eaton Company, who rushed into Harper's barber shop to leave his bicycle while he went out to ring the alarm.

There were several bicycle accidents in Yonge-street, owing to the crowded condition of the thoroughfare, and the foolishness of riders, who would not walk through the crowd. A little chap named Weller was knocked down by one wheelman and run over by another at the corner of Shuter-street, and got some bad scratches.

Street railway traffic was blocked on Yonge-street and there was a line of cars from far north of Carlton to the fire, and another long line south of Queen-street. Roadmasters Nix, Wallace and Greene arranged matters quickly by sending all the cars back and the lines on the side streets were used for the traffic. The inconvenience to the company only lasted about two hours. The traffic was not blocked though for more than half an hour.

The electric circuit feeding the wires opposite the burning building was cut off to prevent danger from a possible break of the wire.

Part of the stock in the top floor of Guinane Bros.' store was damaged by water to the extent of $500, a member of the firm informed the reporter. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

An insurance adjuster of experience expressed the opinion that the damage to the building, exclusive of fixtures, would not exceed $10,000.

Another firm suffering was the Clapp Shoe Company. Their damages were caused chiefly by smoke and water, and will total well up into the thousands. This is covered by insurance. The main floor has not been disturbed and business will go on as usual today.

Mr. John Perkins of the Toronto Engine works supplied the hydrants in the vicinity of the fire. The steamer was supplied from the extra 3 1-2 inch nozzle. The ordinary hydrant would not have been sufficient for the demand. Thus it is seen that it was a good investment when the city contracted with the Toronto Engine Works for the 100 hydrants supplied by Mr. Perkins.

THE PREMIER AT OTTAWA.

Rousing Opening of Sir Charles' Ontario Campaign—Co. Tisdale at Simcoe.

Sir Charles Tupper held the first meeting of his campaign in Ontario at Ottawa last night, and it was the largest political gathering ever held in Ottawa. Five thousand people crowded into the Rideau Rink and Sir Charles was received with the greatest enthusiasm; though some anti-coercionists made a little disorder. The Premier was in capital form, and his review of the country's history and his sharp criticism of the Liberals evoked great applause and frequent laughter. The unruly element refused to listen to Hon. Mr. Desjardins.

Other Meetings.

Lieut-Col Hon. D. Tisdale, had a large meeting in the opera house at Simcoe last night and discussed the issues of the day He was well received.

Mr. C. C. Robinson of Toronto spoke at a large meeting held in the interest of Mr. McCleary, the Conservative candidate for Welland, at Niagara Falls last night. There was a large attendance and great enthusiasm.

General Gascoigne Talks About His Visit to Toronto.

An Ottawa Newspaper Arrer With a Sharp Stick, and Calls Him a "Dirty Medium"—Will the Annual Militia Camps be Held This Year?—Two Men Killed by Lightning Capital Notes.

Ottawa, June 8.—(Special.)—Gen. Gascoigne has returned to the city after a visit of inspection of permanent corps at Toronto and London. The General, speaking to your correspondent to-day, said he was greatly pleased with everything he had seen on his Western trip. The barracks at London were the best that he had seen in the country and the arrangements were most excellent. He was delighted with the state of efficiency in which the corps at Toronto are and with the care which seems to be taken by the commanding officers. The Military Tournament was remarkably good, and to one coming out straight from England and familiar with the tournaments which have been given at Islington for some years the Toronto authorities had no reason to be ashamed of their efforts. The General goes to Kingston on June 23 to attend the closing exercises of the Royal Military College, and at the same time will inspect the permanent corps there.

Two Lumbermen Killed.

A squall, accompanied by terrific lightning and a heavy downpour of rain, struck the vicinity of Quyon on the Ottawa River Saturday evening. Fifty men were at work on the boom in the river. Two were killed by lightning and five seriously injured. The dead are: Frank Ferrier, Ottawa, and Nat McNeil, Bristol, Que.

An Attack on Farrer.

The Journal, Independent, speaking of the Grit-Patron-McCarthy exposure, says: "The unpleasant fact revealed is that the Liberal whip, Mr. Sutherland; the organizer, Mr. A. Smith, and Mr. D'Alton McCarthy have all been utilizing Mr. Edward Farrer's services, in place of showing respect to themselves and their country by allying themselves only with people with decent records. As The Journal has already remarked, Canadian political leaders should not show any toleration of a man who, although now discredited and unimportant, was once in a position to do this country grave harm, and tried his best to accomplish it." Later on the paper calls Farrer "A dirty medium."

N.S. Fishermen in Luck.

The Fisheries Department has been advised that mackerel in large quantities are schooling within the three-mile limit and that the Nova Scotia fishermen are making great catches. There is a big fleet of United States vessels ten miles off the Nova Scotia coast and seemingly luck has been against them, as the fish are not plentiful beyond the territorial waters of Canada.

Will the Annual Camps be Held?

It is expected that one of the first things Parliament will be asked to do on reassembling will be to pass an interim appropriation to provide for the holding of the annual military camps of exercise. Gen. Gascoigne said today that he had every hope that the camps would be held this year as in previous years.

M'CARTHYITES IN THE WEST

Two More Candidates Put Up Against Clarke and Osler.

The Leader of the Third Party Addresses a Crowded Gathering in the Auditorium—Mr. McCarthy Says He is Not Satisfied with Mr. Clarke's Position on the School Question—Messrs. Rowe and Hunter the Men Selected.

Despite the fact that a big fire was raging around the corner, a large and enthusiastic gathering thronged the Auditorium last evening to welcome D'Alton McCarthy. The ardor of the gathering was a little dampened at first by the knowledge that the place of meeting was in danger and the people were in nowise reassured by the announcement of Chairman John Shields that every provision for escape had been made if the fire spread. The evening had not progressed very far, however, before the audience forgot its fear and then the clanging of the fire-reel bells outside was drowned by the applause vouchsafed the Third Party leader and the other speakers.

The immediate practical outcome of the meeting was the nomination of two McCarthyite candidates for West Toronto.

Who Were Present.

Among those who occupied seats on the platform were: Mr. Fred W. Watkins and Mr. W. W. Buchanan, the McCarthyite candidates in Hamilton; Rev. E. S. Rowe, Rev. James Henderson, Rev. Dr. Dewart, Mr. H. Lamport, ex-Ald. Bates, Mr. Durand, Mr. W. R. Skeans, Mr. A. T. Hunter, Mr. D. H. Watt, Mr. M. A. Brown, Mr. W. R. Smith, Mr. J. P. Hall, Mr. George Thom, Mr. Sabine, Mr. J. Gillespie, Mr. Ed. Gould, Mr. R. L. Munro, Mr. J. Wadsworth, Dr. John Hunter, Dr. B. E. McKenzie, and Mr. William Foster.

The chairman stated that Mr. McCarthy was expected to put in an appearance shortly and asked Mr. Buchanan to fill in the time till he came.

Mr. Buchanan Just Dropped in.

Mr. Buchanan said that he had just dropped into the meeting accidentally, while waiting for a train, for he had to hurry back to Hamilton, where there was lots of work cut out for him. He spoke against hard and fast partyism, and said that he was glad that in 63 out of Ontario's 92 constituencies independent candidates were running at this election. Even the daily papers were now compelled to devote three or four columns to the enumeration of the candidates not put up by either of the old parties.

Mr. Watkins, Mr. Buchanan's running mate in the Ambitious City, spoke of the tyranny of partyism. He had been told that awful things would happen him when he advocated reforms and left his old party. But he was an Irishman and the grandson of an Irishman, and was still alive. He touched upon the campaign in Hamilton, and upheld Mr. McCarthy in his views regarding National schools and non-interference with Manitoba. He believed in National schools throughout every province in Canada, for he believed Separate schools did much harm.

Rev. Dr. Dewart Speaks.

Rev. Dr. Dewart believed that a crisis had arrived in this country, which required true men to rise above party and partyism. He had never been accused of narrowness as regards Roman Catholics, but the question seemed now whether or not the Romish

WILL DAVIN DROP OUT?

The Winnipeg Tribune Says He is About to Retire From West Assiniboia—McCarthy's Chances.

Winnipeg, Man., June 8.—(Special.)—The Tribune publishes a despatch from Regina to-night, indicating that Nicholas Flood Davin is about to retire as the Conservative candidate in western Assiniboia. The despatch is very vague, and likely untrue.

Attorney-General Sifton, who is conducting D'Alton McCarthy's candidature in Brandon, came in to Winnipeg Sunday. He thinks McCarthy has a sure thing in Brandon.

Hugh John Macdonald declares his election in Winnipeg is already won. He is so sure of this that he will spend the next fortnight helping Western Conservative candidates.

THE CROWD AT THE FIRE.

Other Attractions Worthy the Attention of the Curious.

Bargain-hunting crowds never reached such proportions as that which gathered to see the fire last night, yet the spectators received no benefit from the attraction. It's different at Dineens', where the attraction is a new stock of lightweight summer hats, in felt and straw. At the corner of King and Yonge-streets every visitor will find something to his advantage, if he cares anything about the style and wearability of his headpiece, for the new hats, though of the finest quality and very latest mode, are sold at prices unequalled in any previous season for the same quality of hats. Why should a man perspire and swelter beneath the weight of a heavy felt hat, intended only for fall or winter wear, when featherweight headgear at Dineens' may be had at any price he may wish to pay? Straw hats, of the most approved style, are on sale at prices ranging from fifty cents up, and felts, light in weight and becoming, are as low as a dollar at Dineens'—King and Yonge-streets.

Mr. Justice Falconbridge Resigns from the Senate

OF THE UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO

Because Goldwin Smith was Given an Honorary Degree of LL.D.

This Action on the Part of the Senate, the Justice Says, was a Hasty and Ill-Considered Step—As He is a British Subject and One Holding a Commission from Her Majesty Judge Falconbridge Finds the Atmosphere at the University Uncongenial.

The following letter explains itself:

Osgoode Hall,
Toronto, June 8, 1896.

The Senate of the University of Toronto:

Gentlemen,—Having been informed through the newspapers that you had unanimously resolved to confer the honorary degree of LL.D. on Mr. Goldwin Smith, I at once made up my mind that the atmosphere of the Senate was not a congenial one for me, not merely as a British subject, but as one holding Her Majesty's commissions. And I immediately announced my intention of resigning my seat at your board, but as the resolution in question was passed at a meeting at which I was not present (and for which meeting there had been no notice given naming the persons to whom it might be proposed to offer the degree), I was anxious, before formally resigning, to see the Vice-Chancellor on his return to the city, so as to ask him for information on the subject. After the lapse of several days I saw him, and he assured me that he knew nothing whatever about the matter. I then forwarded my resignation to the Registrar.

I have taken it for granted that the hasty and ill-considered step which you have taken cannot, unfortunately, be retraced.

It is unnecessary to say why I find fault with the conferring of this honor on Mr. Smith. All men loyal to the Crown in Canada will understand why.

And I venture to predict that the immediate result of this grotesque resolution will be disastrous to the University, for thousands of British-Canadian fathers will ask themselves whether your institution is an entirely safe one to be entrusted with the moulding for life of the character of a youth.

I beg to subscribe myself, with regret at parting from you and with more regret for the cause of parting,

Your obedient servant,
W. G. FALCONBRIDGE.

Laid on the Table.

On enquiry, it was learned from Registrar Brebner that Justice Falconbridge's communication had been read and laid on the table at last night's meeting of the Senate.

President Loudon, when questioned as to the communication of Justice Falconbridge, said no action had been taken by the Senate, the latter having simply been read and laid on the table. He was not aware that petitions referring to Dr. Smith's degree were being circulated. No protest had been made to the Senate save by the Justice and Mr. Blain, who had written letters on the question.

How They Have It in England.

Mr. Smiley is our star boarder.

Mr. Smiley 'is not long out from London. While cooling off on our boarding house steps last night, Mr. Smiley told us all about free trade as it is in England.

"It's all bloomin' rot a young biby kentry like this torkin' abart free tride. Hengland's incum' from the Suez Canal comes to more than the hinterest on Canada's nashunal de't.

"Hall the bloomin' tacks collectors, perlese, soldiers hand Government horficers hin this 'ere kentry couldn't do ther work. You go art and shute a sparrow in Hengland an' get hauld befor' 'the beak' fer carrying a gun withart a license. You 'ave to fy fer a license to shute a partridge and another license his to be got afore yer can sell one. You cawn't keep a man servant withart paying a tacks. The Harry Stockrasy hev to py a tacks fer putting ther family crest on a kerredge, a tea spoon, a sheat of note piper or a henvelope.

"You py a tacks when the biby is born; you py a tacks to get marret, and you cawn't be berret without paying a tacks.

"Yer cawn't kepe a 'orse or a dorg without bein' tacksed. You py a duble tacks on terbacca; yer cawn't by sicks pen'orth o' tea or coffee without pying a tacks. Hevery first-class rileway train, hominibus and keb pyes a tacks. Yer cawn't get a box ev pills or keep a telefone without been tacksed.

"The formers are tacksed for hevery hacre ev land. They get fined fer not putting ther name on a caurt or a wagin, hand blame me if they don't be tacksed hit they do!

"You peeple in Canada wud feel gay if yer 'ad to py land tacks, legacy tacks, hincum tacks, probate tacks, succession tacks. Yer py tacks hon w'at yer owe and tacks on w'at's owing ter you. Oh, yis, it's a gay and 'appy kentry fer tackses, his Hengland! Yer py a tacks for howning a biby kerredge hor a corpse.

"Free tride as they hev hit in Hengland! The poor formers hev hither hemigrated or helse are livin' on w'at they howe the landlords. Protecshun may not be haltogether a 'owling success, but torkin' abart free tride fer a bloomin' young kentry like this, you are sending a biby on a man's herrand.

"It cawn't be done, you know."
