WANTED.—A smart young boy who can write a good hand for office work. Apply to Geo. W. Greene.

On Thursday night Breese's cheese factory and dwelling house, near the village of Philipsville, were burned to the ground. In the cheese factory there were stored about fifty cheese.

Last Wednesday night a barn owned by James Berney, who lives near Morton, was destroyed by fire. The fire is said to have occurred by the accidental upsetting of a lantern which was overturned by Mr. Berney's dog.

"Lighten our darkness" is the universal request expressed by all who have to use our streets after dark. If we cannot have electric light, by all means let us have a few coal oil lamps to direct our belated citizens to their homes.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church, Elgin, will hold an oyster supper in that place on Friday evening, Nov. 28th. The services of Mr. L. A. Kennedy, M. A., of Athens, has been secured, and a first-class programme is being prepared. Admission: Single tickets, 40c.; double tickets, 75c.

Elbe Mills, the property of Mr. E. N. Haskin, has been undergoing a thorough system of renovation and improvement for the last few weeks at the hands of Mr. Alex. Compo. Alex. says that the mill is now in shape to do first-class work in every department. The grist mill is prepared to grind to the satisfaction of the most critical, and the saw mill is in equally good order.

Last week the would be assassin who works on the line of the Brockville & Westport Railway resumed operation after a long period of cessation of his murderous attempts. It does appear strange that repeated efforts to throw a railway train off the track can be made in a thickly settled community of civilized human beings without some one being able to furnish evidence which will lead to the conviction of the miscreant who is guilty of these murderous attempts. The respectable people living along the line of Railway between Newboro and Westport ought, for the safety of themselves as well as of others, to get rid of the party who places obstructions on the track. Too evidently there is room for a vacancy of one or more somewhere in that neighborhood.

On Wednesday last, at his home in the Township of Bastard, Mr. Wellington Randall succumbed to a long and painful illness. At the time of his death Mr. Randall was about fifty years of age. He was born in this county and was well and favorably known to almost all of the old residents of Leeds County. For nearly a year past he suffered severely, his illness first attacking him in the form of La Grippe, and afterwards developing into a chronic form of general debility. From having been one of the strongest men in the county Mr. Randall was reduced by illness for many months to being a very weakly invalid. His funeral on Friday last was attended by a very large concourse of his neighbors and friends who gathered to pay this last tribute of respect to one who was highly respected by all who knew him. The funeral services was held at the Baptist church at Athens, Rev. D. D. Munro, officiating.

Fruit Growers and gardeners will find in the Canadian Horticulturist a beautiful monthly magazine, devoted to their interests. Being published by the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, under government patronage it is conducted wholly in the interests of the farmer and fruit grower. Its object is to give information suitable to each month on the growing of small fruit, the management of the orchard, the vineyard, the flower garden and lawn. Special attention is given to the crop prospects and the reports of market prices in our best markets for fruit and vegetables. It is proposed, in fruit season to send out a weekly market bulletin free to subscribers. It also aims at exposing any frauds in the line of fruit trees and plants. The magazine is fully illustrated with colored plates and engravings, and, when a year's numbers are bound in one, makes a beautiful book for the parlor table. This journal for one year, together with the report of the Ontario F. G. Association and a choice of plants for testing, all for one dollar. A special discount is made to getting up a club. L. Woolverton, Grimsby, Ont., is editor of the journal, and secretary of the Association.

Mr. A. McDougall, the old reliable poultry buyer of this district is again in the market this year and will pay the highest market price for all poultry delivered at Athens on Friday and Saturday next.

An auction sale of farm implements, household furniture, &c., will take place on Saturday, 22nd inst., on the premises of Mr. Wm. Shook, one half a mile west of Athens. Sale to commence at 1 o'clock p.m.

Moffatt and Scott, of Athens and Rockspring, are offering great bargains for the next thirty days. Parties wanting anything in dry goods, groceries, or boots and shoes, would do well to call on them before stocktaking time, and they will scence bargains never heard of before in this part of the country.

Minard's Liniment cures Diphtheria.

A good many farmers do not understand the proper mode of killing and preparing poultry for market, through which a big loss is sustained. To ensure the farmer full market price for this stock the Montreal Gazette gives the following rules: "In the first place birds should not be killed with full crops. They should not be fed for at least 12 hours before killing, which should be done by severing the arteries which centre at the roof of the mouth just back of the tongue. The bird should be picked dry, scalding invariably ruining its appearance. As soon as picked they should be hung up to cool, but should not be allowed to freeze. When the animal heat has entirely left the body they should be packed in nice clean cases holding from 100 to 200 pounds. These cases should be filled as full as possible to avoid shifting. Only one description of stock should be put in a package as mixtures are hard to move, and, finally, the gross, tare and net weights, with the number of birds should be plainly marked on each package."

Minard's Liniment cures Colds, etc.

A FISHY CASE.

On Saturday afternoon Elsbery Overs or Hicks, acting ex officio as a justice of the peace, held his first court at the Town Hall here. Long before the opening of the court a large gathering of interested spectators had occupied the court room for the purpose of learning how His Worship would dispose of the first fish case he had occasion to try since his appointment.

Next to the Elsbery Greenes perhaps the most interested party in the proceeding was Mr. George Bulford who was summoned before Magistrate Hicks upon a charge of having, within fifteen days prior to the date of the summons, caught and killed fish in the waters of Charleston Lake contrary to law.

Upon being called upon to plead to this charge Mr. Bulford promptly pleaded "Not guilty" and Mr. M. A. Everitts politely informed the presiding magistrate that he had undertaken the duty of appearing on behalf of his innocent friend Mr. Bulford. Upon this announcement courtly bows, which might have graced Royal circles of the seventeenth century, were interchanged between the court and counsel for the defendant, and the scales of justice were adjusted, and balanced to a nicety of equilibrium before proceeding to determine what weight should be given to this fish story about Bulford.

The first witness called to prove the charge was Mr. E. DeWolfe to whom the constable in charge of the case handed a Bible and administered the oath calling upon the witness to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth—about a fish story! However, Mr. DeWolfe's evidence was short and decidedly pointed, for in answer to the very first question, "Do you know of George Bulford having caught and killed fish within the last fifteen days?" the witness declined to answer, claiming, as a reason for his refusal, that an answer to this question might incriminate himself. Several times His Worship repeated the question and several times the witness reiterated his refusal, and explained to the court that the question placed him in a sort of political dilemma. If he refused to answer he might be committed. If he did answer he might be convicted. While this witness was being examined, the court kindly, though somewhat forcibly, explained to the defendant's counsel the views of the court on the subject of "lawyers attempting to block the wheels of justice" and "bluff" as played by lawyers in general and Mr. Everitts in particular. In the course of these remarks some casual intimations that the court might deem it his duty to have the lawyer removed from the scene of action were dropped, but a more pacific policy prevailed, and, after Mr. Everitts had explained his views as to the proper management of British courts of justice, the witness Mr. DeWolfe was allowed to step aside, and Mr. Israel Sleck was called to the witness stand and sworn by the magistrate.

Mr. Slack knew George Bulford, and he had seen him at Charleston Lake within fifteen days before the trial, but when Mr. Slack was asked the question whether he knew of Mr Bulford having illegally caught and killed fish at Charleston Lake he was brought to face the same dilemma as that presented to Mr. DeWolfe. At first he hesitated and assured the magistrate that he would much rather not answer that question. Then he begged of the court to get some other witnesses besides himself, and finally he refused to answer giving the same reason for his refusal as was given by Mr. DeWolfe.

At this stage of the proceeding Mr. DeWolfe asked that the question be repeated and answered "Yes" Know of Mr. Bulford having caught and killed fish within the last fifteen days," but refused to answer any questions as to where, or when, or how, or what kind of fish he had reference to. He would not even say whether it was a bullhead, perch, sunfish, sucker, or flounder, that Bulford had caught and killed and some of the spectators were of the opinion that it might even turn out to be an eel. Another question the call of whether Bulford caught these mysterious fish in the salt water of the Atlantic or the limpid waters of the beautiful St. Lawrence. People listening to this very unsatisfactory manner of locating the whereabouts of this fish story might easily be pardoned for not knowing whether these mythical fish were caught at Charleston, Mill pond, Lake Eliza, Mud Lake, or Sally's Hole, all of which places are known to the ichthyologists profitably with fish. In spite, however, of the meagre details furnished him by the witnesses the magistrate announced that he had heard enough to satisfy him. The counsel for the defendant then asked to have Mr. Bulford sworn in his own defence. The magistrate refused to allow, saying that he was satisfied with the evidence he had already heard and that he did not wish to hear anything at all of Mr. Bulford's side of the story.

Mr. Everitts then asked to have Mr. Sleck recalled on behalf of the defendant. This request was also refused by the magistrate who said that as Mr. Sleck would not answer him he would not allow Mr. Sleck to be examined by anybody else now. The case was then called. On Saturday evening Mr. Hicks announced his decision imposing a fine of $20 and costs upon Mr. Bulford. Several prominent officers of the Anglers Association of Charleston Lake were among the spectators in the court room during the trial.

It pays to feed meal to cows giving milk, and the cow insists on having it every time she does a good turn by forcing us to be regular. Of all losses incurred by American farmers scarcely any one is greater than that which comes from allowing cows to fall in their milk for want of sufficient food of a kind that answers their requirements.

To the Editor of the Reporter:

SIR—In view of the fact that our village is practically and actually without protection against fire would it not be prudent for our citizens to devise some plan whereby our property may be protected from the devouring element. Every day from every quarter of the neighborhood around us we hear and read of fires accidental and incendiary, and why we people of the village of Athens should imagine that there will always be special providence guaranteeing us immunity from like disasters does not appear as a self evident axiom. The best way of meeting disaster of this kind is to be prepared as well as we can to avoid the possibility of it. As a citizen of the village I throw out the suggestion that it would be a good idea of the people of Athens to gather together in public meeting and devise some means of protection for their property. It is a matter of vital interest to every property owner in the village, and a discussion of the subject by all could do no injury to others.
