VENT WILLINGLY TO SURE DEATH

Gallant Charge of Australian Light Horse

ONE OF WAR'S GREAT DEEDS

Their Task to Give Their Lives in Attack on Impregnable Trench —They Died But Sacrifice Was Not in Vain

London, Oct. 7—As illustrating the difficult and desperate character of the fighting in the Dardanelles, at the same time paying tribute to the fighting qualities and heroism of both Australian and Turk, Captain C. E. W. Bean, official press representative with the Australian forces, sends a belated description of the "glorious charge" of two Australian light horse brigades at Anzac.

The attack of these two brigades occurred at a spot where natural obstacles made success impossible, but the movement was regarded as necessary in order to draw Turkish troops away from points where read advances could be made successfully. Only one man in six of the Australians who left the trenches came back safely.

"This charge differed from that of the Light Brigade," says Captain Bean, "in that it was made by horsemen who had volunteered to fight on foot or in any other way provided they could get to the Gallipoli Peninsula and help the other Australians there. The two scaling ladders they carried with them are lying out there in the scrub about half way to the enemy trenches, and there are a number of tumbled little heaps of that dull, pea-soup colored Australian khaki which is the hallmark of unrecorded heroism on every battlefield on this peninsula.

Deed Never Surpassed

"You can piece together a few simple deductions as to the details. There are no Victoria Crosses; there are no birthday honors, but I know just this—that for sheer self-sacrificing heroism there never was a deed of history that surpassed the charge which two Australian light horse brigades made in the first light of Saturday, August 7, in order to help their comrades in a critical moment of a great battle."

After describing the preliminary bombardment of Turkish trenches by artillery, which lasted a half hour, Captain Bean tells of the actual infantry advance, which really consisted of three separate charges on three sides of irregular-shaped ridges abreast of which the Turks had planted infantry defence works. In the first of these movements the second line men were ordered to advance two minutes after the first line, the third line coming along after another ten minutes. The orders were obeyed as if by a machine, although every man knew death almost certainly awaited him at the top of his own parapet from the machine guns of the Turks. Describing the Turkish fire at this point, Captain Bean says:—

"One knew nobody could live in it. Many fell back wounded before they even cleared the parapet. Others, wounded just outside, managed to crawl back before being hit a second or third time. Col White had run only ten yards before he was killed. The Turkish machine guns drew a line which none could pass, and a man who fell wounded often was hit six or eight times more as he dropped through the stream of bullets.

Entered Turkish Trench.

"It was all over within a quarter of an hour, but in the extreme southeastern corner of the Turkish trench there did appear for just two minutes a small flag, indicating the presence there of a group of our men. Nobody saw them get there; nobody will ever know who they were or how they did it. For two minutes the flag fluttered, and then an unseen hand tore it down."

After a description of similar unsuccessful charges on other sides of the ridges Captain Bean concludes his story by stating that the only man who returned from the Turkish parapet reported that the Turks there had their packs on and were in full marching order, probably being ready to hurry off to reinforce further north when this attack in the centre delayed them.

"The Australians had, in the richest and fullest measure, achieved the object for which their help had been needed at a critical point," declares the chronicler of their charge. "This place always will be sacred as the scene of two very brave deeds. The first—let us never forget it—was the desperate attack made by the Turks across this same neck at dawn on June 30, and the second was this deed of self-sacrificing bravery which never has been surpassed in military history—the charge of Australian light horse into certain death at the call of their comrades' need during the crisis in the greatest battle every fought on Turkish soil."

Forgiveness.

(By John Greenleaf Whittier.)

My heart was heavy, for its trust had been
Abused, its kindness answered with foul wrong.
So, turning gloomily from my fellowmen,
One summer Sabbath-day I strolled among
The green mounds of the village burial-place;
Where, pondering how all human love and hate
Wronged and wrongdoer, each with meekened face
And cold hands folded over a still heart,
Pass the green threshold of our common grave,
Whither all footsteps tend, whence none depart,
Awed for myself, and pitying my race,
Our common sorrow like a mighty wave,
Swept all my pride away, and, trembling,
I forgave!

THREE BIG RALLIES FOR RECRUITING ARE TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Tonight's meeting in the Opera House will introduce to the people of St. John two of the leading memebers of the Presbyterian church in Eastern Canada, clergymen who are considered among the ablest speakers in the denomination in Canada. Rev. Professor Falconer, president of Pine Hill College, Halifax, and the Rev. Anderson [illegible] gers of Antigonish, N. S., will ad[illegible] the meeting on the matter of nati[illegible] defence and each man and woman [illegible]ity at this critical time. Besides these two speakers there will be opening remarks by the chairman, Mayor Frink. Harrison's orchestra will play and C. Brooke Skelton will sing "Scot's Wa Ha", and Walter Pidgeon will sing "England". The doors will be open at 7.30 and the chair will be taken at sharp 8 o'clock. The Opera House has been donated for this meeting and as it is open to both men and women the prospects are that the large auditorium will be crowded.

Particulars of the North End meeting in St. Peter's Hall and the Fairville meeting in Temperance Hall are contained in the special schedule appearing elsewhere in this issue. At both these meetings there will be brass bands, returned soldier speakers and visiting Presbyterian clergymen as well as local platform workers. These three big rallies in the city tonight will doubtless add material success to the recruiting campaign, if not directly in numbers of men, at least effectively along educational lines.

WHAT ABOUT REGIMENT TO WINTER IN ST. JOHN?

There is much speculation as to when the infantry battalion which is to be stationed here this winter in accordance with the assurances from Ottawa, will be quartered in the city. Rumor has it that on or about October 15 the armory will be occupied for the purpose of recreation and mess rooms, but there is as yet no authentic word.

It is believed that the selection of the twelve battalions recently asked for by Lord Kitchener is now being completed by the military department and whether the 64th will be included or not is the subject of discussion. Some are inclined to believe that that unit will be taken, and that the 88th under Col. Fowler will be stationed here after having been recruited through the province, while others in fairly close touch with the military authorities are of the opinion that the 64th will spend at least several months more training on this side in St. John.

"ONE DOLLAR FOR A CAR"

A handsome five-passenger Cadillac car, containing four well-known young women, members of the Daughters of the Empire, attracted attention when driven about the city today by one of them, because of the patriotic interests involved. A large cardboard sign was displayed from the car, on which was inscribed: "This patriotic Cadillac car to be sold for $1." The automobile was purchased at the patriotic auction yesterday, and a drawing is now to be conducted with tickets being sold readily at $1. Each of the young women was armed with a book or more of tickets, and many a man was halted as he walked along, and only a real good excuse was taken for his not purchasing.

IMPERIAL TONIGHT AND TOMORROW

The final showings of Mary Pickford, James Kirkwood and others in Margaret Mayo's sweet little theatrical story "Behind the Scenes" will be made at the Imperial this evening. Appreciative crowds enjoyed the Famous Players feature very much yesterday, evidencing the hearty support of discriminating people in the Imperial's new and costly feature policy.

Tomorrow the sixth chapter of "The Broken Coin" telling how Kitty Gray and her rival Count Frederick were strangely enough both trapped by the murderous Apache band in the empty sewers of the city and how they escaped from this predicament is most exciting. There will be four additional reels of dramatic and comedy pictures and a fifteen minute photographic visit to the 26th Regiment in camp on English soil as contained in a number of snap-shots taken by officers of the 26th and sent to friends and relatives in this city. This will be a very interesting attraction particularly for those who have members of their household in Col. McAvity's crack regiment.

THOSE TORY VICTORIES

(Moncton Transcript)

Our morning contemporary which has not yet discovered that Salisbury parish in this county elected two Liberals by acclamation on Monday looks across into Albert county and shouts over an alleged crushing Conservative triumph. There were contested elections in two parishes, viz.: Hopewell and Harvey. The former elected two Liberals and the latter returned to its Conservative allegiance and elects two Conservatives—a gain of one seat. Heretofore the county council was a tie. Our cackling contemporary, however, should see the handwriting on the wall even in this result. Why? Because adding the parish votes together on the rival sides, which is the way they will be counted in a dominion or provincial election, and then dividing them by two to obtain the actual number of votes cast, this result is obtained. The two parishes jointly polled 412 Liberal votes as against only 344 Conservative votes! Now, boys, shout all together. Hurrah for the great Tory victory, and may the Tories have many such!

KILLING MOOSE.

To the Editor of the Times:—

Sir:—We understand a statement was made a few days before the beginning of the present open season for killing game that "calf moose" and "calf caribou" could be killed as young as two years old, and had at least two points or tines not less than three inches on each horn. Sub-section 3 of section 4 of the game laws provides that these young animals cannot be killed under three years old, and have at least threee points or tines not less than four inches long on each horn and this sub-section has not been changed.

I will be glad if you will notify the public by a short article in your paper of the substance of the above.

Yours obediently,
J. G. LOGGIE,
Deputy Minister of Lands and Mines.
