The Testimony of Half-a-Century.

Pears' Soap

INDISPUTABLE EVIDENCE OF SUPERIORITY.

From DR. REDWOOD, Ph.D., F.C.S., F.I.C.
Professor of Chemistry and Pharmacy to the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain.

"BEING authorised by Messrs. PEARS to purchase at any and all times and of any dealers samples of their Soap (thus ensuring such samples being of exactly the same quality as is supplied to the general public), and to submit same to the strictest chemical analysis, I am enabled to guarantee its invariable purity.

My analytical and practical experience of PEARS' SOAP now extends over a lengthened period ---NEARLY FIFTY YEARS---during which time---

I have never come across another Toilet Soap which so closely realises my ideal of perfection, its purity is such that it may be used with perfect confidence upon the tenderest and most sensitive skin---

Even that of a New Born Babe."

Continued.

"I know my business," was the surly reply. "Just you 'tend to yours. You'd better study Tactics and Regulations before you try to learn me anything."

"Oh, do let the high-spirited scion of our finest families alone, corporal. Can't you see its turning his stomach to be civil to anybody?" protested a tall infantryman.

"Ah, let up, now, on Mr. Welsh, ne Mulligan—that's what they called ye in the Twenty-Third,—wasn't it Mulligan? Or was it Sullivan? Sure I know the family, and it's a fine one," protested Private Kelly, his blue eyes twinkling with fun.

Welsh sprang furiously to his feet' clinching his fist and making straight for the laughing little "dough-boy.' That young Celt though a head shorter than his dark antagonist, in no wise disconcerted, stood squarely facing him, and awaited the attack with a grin of genuine delight on his freckled face. Stein sprang forward, however, and interposed.

"No fighting here," he ordered. "Wait till you're off guard in the morning, and settle it then."

"Don't thwart the gentleman, corporal. Here comes his friend the police reporter," laughed the group of guardsmen, But the unusual chaff had summoned the officer of the guard to the spot, and at sight of the lieutenant every Irishman in the party assumed an instantaneous expression of preternatural innocence. Mr. Abrams, too, had reined up in front of the trader's store, a few yards away, and, noting the little knot of soldiers peering across the road, divined at once that something was going on, and so with the instinct of his profession, hastened to the scene in time to catch a part of the colloquy that ensued.

"The corporal tells me the trouble grew out of your refusing to rise and salute when Captain Lane passed," said the officer of the guard, addressing the stalwart trooper.

Welsh glanced furtively over his shoulder until sure the Palladium man was in range of his voice, and then loudly replied:—

"I'm a member of the guard, sir, and the Regulations forbid guards paying compliments of any kind after 'retreat, and I can show you the paragraph."

"You know perfectly well, Welsh, that that applies to the guard collectively when under arms, and not to individual members. I want no hair-splitting here. See to it that you pay proper courtesy to every officer while you're under my command." And the lieutenant, a young infantryman, with decidedly resolute face, looked squarely into the glowering black eyes of the trooper, and then, turning quietly toward his little office, his eye lightened on the Palladium man. For an instant it looked as though he had something to say to him too; but struck by a sudden thought, he passed in without another word, and presently the sergeant of the guard appeared in the doorway. There was evident purpose in his coming.

Half an hour later Welsh was standing some twenty yards away, engaged in low-toned eager chat with his civilian friend. The faces of both men were clouded, and every little while the gypsy-looking soldier shot an angry glance toward the guard-house door. Presently they moved across the road and headed for the open bar at the trader's, where in the lamps were just beginning to gleam. Before they reached its open portals, Corporal Stein was at his heels and his stern voice ordered Welsh to halt:

"Go back to the guard-house, Welsh: it's against orders for a member of the guard to leave it, and you know it as well as I do."

"My relief don't go on post for two hours yet, and this gentleman has business with me; you'd better not interfere with him."

"The gentleman can see you over there. You can't see him here."

Already the sergeant was striding across the road; the lieutenant appeared at the door: a dozen members of the guard were eagerly watching the scene. Welsh half turned. Mr. Abrams bent and muttered a few words in his ear, but the soldier, after one glance around him shook his head. Slowly and reluctantly he turned.

"I'll get even with you for this, Stein," he hissed. And then, with shrugging shoulders, the two objects of general interest—the civilian and the enlisted man—slouched back across the road, the eyes of all upon them.

It was at this instant that the rapid whirr of wheels and the click of iron-shod hoofs were heard upon the drive, and briskly the Lane carriage came around the turn. Lieutenant Lewis stepped out from the door-way. Again the sentry faced the road and carried arms; again the soldiers of the guard arose, and those about the trader's door, also' faced the road-way; again the white-gloved hands were raised in soldierly salute, and one man only turned his back and slouched away. Every soldier within range saw that Welsh was determined to disobey the orders he had just received. In six giant leaps the tall sergeant had reached his side.

"Halt, Welsh' and face about," he thundered, and then, as the man still strove to edge away under the wing of his civilian associate, laid a brawny hand upon the hulking shoulder and spun him about as he would a top.

"Heels together, now. Look square at Captain Lane. Now. then, damn you, left hand, salute,"

"Not badly done, sergeant," said Lieutenant Lewis, a moment after, as with kindling eyes he reached the spot just as the carriage had flashed by.—"Finish what you have to say to your friends in fifteen minutes, Welsh and report to me at the guard-room."—"Badly done," he repeated, as he turned away with the tall infontryman beside; "only you shouldn't have damn' in the presence of ladies, or, a grim smile under his moustache, of the press."

"The ladies couldn't hear, sir, and I meant that the press should." I know that according to 'Pinafore' and the Palladium I should have said, 'if you please.' But mules and blackguards pay no attention to politeness. I've been thirty years a soldier, sir, and I know what fetches them."

—GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.—

"A Free Tour Around the World."

The absorbing topic of the day is the Home Fascinator Pub. Co.'s grand offer of a Free Tour Around the World to the person sending them the largest number of English words of not less than four letters constructed from letters contained in the sentence "GOD SAVE THE QUEEN," and found in either Webster's or Worcester's Dictionary in bold-faced type. The publishers have made arrangements with the C. P. R. General Pass. Agent, Mr. D. McNicoll, whereby the trip may be made on their new palatial steamer, leaving on its famous globe-circling excursion about March 10th next. Also, in order of merit, the following additional prizes are offered:—A Free Trip to Florida; a Silver Tea Set, $36; a Domestic Sewing Machine, $60; Lady's or Gent's 18k. Gold Watch, $50. Every one whose list contains not less than twenty-five words will receive a prize. Enclose them 50 cents to pay for a grand Premium Catalogue and a six months' trial subscription to their beautifully illustrated family story paper, The Home Fascinator. As the person sending in the largest list of correct words may not be in a position, or care to make the extensive trip offered, the publishers give such person the choice of the trip or $1,000 in cash. Contest closes Feb. 10th, 1891, and is open to any person in Canada or the United States. In case of tie, priority will be given to list reaching their office first, distance, etc., considered. Address The Home Fascinator, Montreal, Que.

Feeling of Confidence.

Revolutionary movements in Peru are reported ripe. The unsettled state of affairs is due to the prevailing destitution.

The special quality of Ayer's Hair Vigor is that it restores the natural growth, color and texture of the hair. It vitalizes the roots and follicles, removes dandruff, and heals itching humors in the scalp. In this respect it surpasses all similar preparations.

You've tried Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription have you and you're disappointed. The results are not immediate.

And did you expect the disease of years to disappear in a week? Put a pinch of time in every dose. You would not call milk poor because the cream doesn't rise in an hour? If there's no water in it the cream is sure to rise. If there's a possible cure, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sure to effect it, if given a fair trial. You get the one dollar it costs back again if it don't benefit or cure you. We wish we could give you the makers' confidence. They show it by giving the money back again, in all cases not benefitted, and it'd surprise you to know how few dollars are needed to keep up the refund.

Tobacco Chewing in Disfavor.

One finds fewer tobacco chewers than might have been found twenty years ago. More men are taking to the cigar out of regard for its superior cleanliness, while the ranks of the chewers are no longer recruited from the urchins, who find the cigarette less trying on the stomach and equally comforting to their sense of manishness. The tobacco chewer is disappearing along with the female pipe-smoker and the snuff "dipper."

Then the young man stole a kiss right from under her nose and she didn't seem to miss it.

It is a mistake to try and cure catarrh by using local applications. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which acting through the blood, reaches every part of the system.

NOTICE.
WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.
Traders, Manufacturers and owners of Weights, Measures and Weighing Machines generally are specially requested to read carefully the following instructions and act accordingly:
1. The Weights and Measures Act provides for a regular biennial inspection of all Weights and Measures used for trade purposes, as well as for irregular inspections of the same, which may be made at any time when deemed necessary by the inspector, and it also imposes a heavy penalty on any trader or other person who wilfully obstructs or impedes an inspector or assistant inspector in the performance of his duty under said Act, or who refuses to produce the whole of his weights and measures for inspection when called upon to do so by an inspecting officer.
2. Every trader, manufacturer and owner of weights, measures, and weighing machines when paying moneys to Inspectors or Assistant Inspectors of Weights and Measures for verification fees, is entitled to, and is specially requested to demand from the officer who makes the inspection, an official certificate ("Form O, 6" with the words "Original for the Trader" printed at the head thereof) properly filled out and stamped, and also at the same time to carefully ascertain whether or not the stamps attached to such certificate represent exactly the value the amount of cash paid. Traders are requested to bear in mind that certificates of verification are of no value whatever unless stamps covering the full amount of fees charged are attached.
3. Owners and holders of these official certificates are specially requested to keep them carefully for two years, and in order to secure their safe keeping it would be advisable to placard them in their places of business in the manner in which ordinary license certificates are done, for it must be distinctly understood that all traders who are unable to produce their properly stamped certificates, when asked to do so by an inspector or assistant inspector, may, in all probability, have to pay over again their verification fees.

Commissioner.

Don't You Do It!
DON'T buy adulterated soaps; they are dear at any price.
DON'T forget that in all cheap soaps you pay for water at the price of soap.
DON'T allow other soaps said to be as good as the "SUNLIGHT" to be palmed off on you, or you must expect to be disappointed.
DON'T forget that you can use the "SUNLIGHT" Soap for kitchen, laundry and general household use; and no matter how you test it, it will prove itself to be far ahead of all other soaps.
DON'T be prejudied. Try it.
