A MINISTERIAL MUDDLER.

The Texas Siftings, speaking of the fisheries difficulty, says that Canada reminds it of a man who said he managed his wife by compelling her to have her own way. She submitted to the coercion cheerfully, and in fact, it was doubtful if she realized it. So the Siftings says it is with the United States and the Canadian fisheries. Canada is compelling the United States to do as they like, and the United States submits cheerfully. The satire has a solid foundation. The Canadian government is acting most absurdly. Either the fisheries should be protected or they should not be. It is ridiculous to pretend that they ought to be and yet not guard them. The wretched lack of policy displayed is due to the fact that the minister of marine is a round peg in a square hole. He is no more fit for his post in the ministry than he was to edit a newspaper or fill a professional chair. He is a hollow sham. He has had the best opportunities any young man in Canada ever had, but he has made a mess of everything he has turned his hand to, except his efforts at personal aggrandizement. This he has accomplished, but at the cost of honor.

TROUBLE AHEAD.

The English unionists are beginning to think that in deserting Gladstone for Salisbury they have got out of the frying pan into the fire. What defeated the home rule measure was the probability that it would be followed by a land purchase bill, and now the unionists find that the tories propose to have the latter whether they have the former or not. Gladstone tritely said that the issue at the last election was "the classes against the masses," and so it is turning out. The classes, the rich land owning class, are to have relief, the masses may continue on as they are. The land owners must stand together. As one of the signers of the declaration is reported to have said of himself and his fellows:—if they don't hang together they will hang separately; that is to say if the people are allowed to deal with the land question in Ireland they will be very likely to do so in England, so the precedent of purchase at extravagant prices must be set. When will the people of England learn that it is never safe to trust a tory with power?

WORTH THINKING ABOUT.

It is said upon good authority that over three million of dollars are expended every year in the State of Maine by sportsmen and other pleasure seekers from other states. This is within a million dollars of the total amount of money brought into New Brunswick by the lumber business. Those who know about such things say that this province possesses many more attractions for this class of visitors than the State of Maine does. There is not a summer resort on the Maine coast to be compared to St. Andrews. Indeed it may be doubted if anything superior to the little Charlotte county town is to be found in the continent. Our salmon fishing privileges are conceded to be the first on the continent. Our trout streams are unsurpassed and the hunter will find in New Brunswick the largest wilderness in eastern America. As a knowledge of these facts becomes spread abroad the number of summer visitors increases and it has already reached a point where its effect upon the business of the province must be very considerable. The increase will continue, but its speed could be augmented by a judicious system of advertising the province, and by the enactment and enforcement of strict laws for the preservation of fish and game. Something has already been done in this direction, but the general opinion is that something more needs to be done. Some of the fishermen went home this year very much dissatisfied and furious at the poachers. This sort of thing is apt to deter other visitors, and the province cannot afford to lose them, as they are generally men of means and extreme liberality. Sooner or later the best means of bringing in summer visitors will force itself upon the government.

FIELDING'S POLICY.

Mr. Fielding told an interviewer that he was about to approach the governments of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island on the subject of secession and a maritime union, and if these provinces were unwilling to join Nova Scotia, then the latter would go on alone. We see no reason to think that the people of New Brunswick favor repeal. A few of them do, perhaps, but the people at large do not. They have not really thought about it. Mr. Fielding does not seem to be very sanguine of carrying his point, and in the meantime he intends to give his support to the liberal party, although he declares that he will support a tory repealer against a liberal unionist. In his party Mr. Blake will find staunch supporters, save where the question of repeal comes up.

EVENTS IN THE EAST.

Bulgaria has had another revolution; this time a bloodless one. The king has been deposed and the government is in the hands of Russia. This event, added to the closing of Batoum, looks as though the Czar was willing to try conclusions with all comers. He has brushed away the treaty of Berlin as though it were scarcely a shadow. He means evidently to carry out the traditional policy of the empire and reign at Constantinople. This latest business ought properly, under the treaty of Berlin, to arouse all the signatory powers to action; because the supremacy of Russia in Bulgaria is directly hostile to the guarantees given Turkey under that treaty. The indications of trouble are very numerous.

THE GREAT SHOW.

The Deluded Impression of Canada being Wiped out by the Colonial Exhibition—New Brunswick's Fine Display.

London Chronicle.

The great intercolonial show now at South Kensington serves the double purpose of instructing us stay at-home people as to what our posessions beyond the seas are capable of producing, and it gives the colonists who are at present visiting us in large numbers an opportunity of seeing the world of London, as well as the different parts of Great Britain and Ireland, from which themselves or immediate ancestors had emigrated. Their products are making an impression upon us, and they are pleased and enlightened by their visit to the old country—the land of their origin, and about which they had read so much. A look at the exhibition will show that those who left Britain to make homes in other climes have transferred to those distant regions our manners, usages, and customs. A graft of the old tree has been planted on a young stem destined to bring forth good fruit. Young countries are in a measure like young people—they are full of life, energy, and hope, and this fact impresses itself upon us everywhere in the exhibition. We always had a general idea the colonies were to us a market to which we could send our goods, that in the manufacturing of which we entertained the pleasant belief of enjoying a monopoly. Never, however, was a greater delusion, inasmuch as they produce for themselves almost everything they require, which a stroll through the Collinderies—say in the Canadian section—would clearly show. Textile fabrics of every kind, from excellent tweeds to brocaded silk; furnitnre beautifully designed, and made of native woods, the color and texture of which is simply superb; iron tools of every description, equal to those of Birmingham or Sheffield; turnery and wood work finished in the most beautiful and workmanlike style; machinery of various sorts, but chiefly agricultural, perhaps not so heavy or solid as that of England but quite as ingenious and useful. The Canadian geological display is very large and varied showing that the great dominion is rich in minerals, which doubtless in the near future will be an immense source of wealth. From New Brunswick there is a fine exhibit of gypsum, of which plaster of Paris and many other necessary articles are made, and must, in a rapidly growing country like New Brunswick, be of great benefit. She has also a fine display of different kinds of granite and marbles, of every fine grain and color. Her timber trophy is one of the most unique things in the exhibition, and reflects honor upon the designers and constructors, as it enables the visitor to see the woods of New Brunswick in every stage, from the sapling to the tree and from the tree to the different kind of cut boards, all capable of taking a high polish, when manufactured into furniture and other articles of usefulness. Perhaps, however, it is in the educational court that the great progress of the dominion is easiest seen. Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, and New Brunswick have each their educational displays. That of Quebec is exceedingly interesting because in that province French is the language principally spoken, while in most of the schools both French and English are taught. The New Brunswick exhibit is also instructive as it shows the desire of the people and government to give the rising generation as practical an education as possible. Models, copy books, drawings, needlework, and the class-books used in the schools are on view. Progress of this kind shows the rapid strides those new countries are making, and the opportnnity they offer to thousands of people who are in the united kingdom elbowing each other out of the way. Steam, steel, and electricity are now fast familiarizing us with every part of the globe, and thus help to remove one of the principal objections to leaving home and kindred for other lands and scenes; and the more this fact is understood, the less will a mere, but very natural sentiment, cause young men and women to remain in those crowded countries of the old world, while in our colonies there is room for millions who by their enterprise and iudustry would make the fertile belts now lying waste yield abundant food for man and beast—a lesson impressed upon us by a few hours at the Collinderies.

A SUCCESSFUL RESULT.—Mr. Frank Hendry writing from Seaforth, says: "I purchased one bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters to purify my blood. It did purify it, and now I have excellent health." As a blood purifying tonic and system regulator the result of taking B. B. B. is always successful.

TORIES LAND PURCHASE POLICY.

Unionists in a Grave Difficulty—Their Intimation to Their Tory Allies.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—T. P. O'Connor cables that since the opening of parliament there has been an enormous and totally unlooked-for change in the situation, arising out of the announcement of their land purchase policy by the government. The Queen's speech stated in effect that the cabinet were not prepared with Irish proposals of any kind and would take time to consider their policy, yet Churchill's opening speech outlined their policy on the land purchase question and flatly contradicted the utterances from the throne. His proposals have placed the unionists in a grave difficulty. Salisbury's declaration that whatever happened the landlords of Ireland would not be the sufferers, but the state would be loser, has caused widespread alarm among the radicals who were the first to revolt against much milder intimations from Gladstone and without whose support the present government could not remain in office a week. The dissident liberals of the Hartington wing are equally startled. They deserted Gladstone to defeat his land purchase bill and now their allies call on them to accept a measure in every respect worse from a British standpoint and not a whit more satisfactory to the Irish. Chamberlain rose during the debate after Churchill's speech to confer with the tory leader. Gladstone sat still throughout the debate, one of the most attentive listeners in the house, with set face and watchful eyes, drinking in every point, prompting Harcourt and cheering the speakers who showed by their words that they appreciated the real significance of the change that had so suddenly come over the position of affairs. It was reported in the lobby, and the report meets with partial confirmation in various places, that the unionist leaders have resolved to reject Churchill's proposal. They have intimated to their tory allies as stated, that the statements made in parliament as to the tory policy on the land purchase must be withdrawn or explained away.

Trouble in Russia.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—A despatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, dated Saturday, says: "The populace and troops quartered in the capital surrounded the police early this morning. Prince Alexander abdicated and was escorted over the frontier. The populace then assembled and adopted a resolution praying the Czar to extend his sympathy to the Bulgarian people. The assemblage proceeded to the palace of the Russian agent and submitted to him the resolution, all kneeling. The agent assured them of the Czar's friendship. A provisional government has been formed.

The New York Sun's London special says, M. de Giers' stiff reply to England's protest against the closing of the port of Batoum has produced a painful impression which is not likely to pass away until some action is taken by the government to suitably maintain England's dignity in the matter. The firmness of Lord Rosebery in making a protest is universally commended, but it is feared that the Czar, smarting under the reproaches conveyed therein of bad faith may go to even greater extremes. It is said in well informed circles that the Czar's perpetual fear of bombs has developed in him a temper bordering upon insanity. He has taken the control of the foreign affairs of the empire into his own hands entirely, and this is really the explanation of the clumsy and bungling way in which the Batoum affair was conducted, so different from the usual Russian policy of concealing the iron hand within a velvet glove. His ministers fear to remonstrate, and the whole outlook for eastern diplomacy is decidedly gloomy. It is considered certain that the conflict long recognized as inevitable is now soon to be precipitated.

Care of Animals in Summer.

The American Humane association presents the following suggestions relative to the care of animals during the heated term:

Provide water — fresh, pure water. Think, reader, how you are refreshed by a drink of cool water on a hot day. The lower animals are equally in need of the means of quenching thirst.

The active dog requires drink frequently during the hot day, as does also the cat; and a dish of fresh water should stand where they can have access to it Undoubtedly many a dog is driven to madness through lack of water; and the testimony is that hydrophobia is almost unknown in those localities where dogs can drink when they wish.

Every city, village and country town should be liberally supplied with drinking fountains for animals, and they should be so constructed that even the smallest dogs can drink from them. No gift to a people confers a greater pleasure than a fountain, and that person who turns aside a stream from the field and gives a watering trough to the roadside, or provides a fountain at which man and beast, can drink pure water, is truly a public benefactor.

Give the horse frequent opportunity to quench thrist at times when not too much over heated, and before eating. To drink freely immediately after eating, prevents a favorable digestion of food.

Provide shade. How instinctively we seek the shadow when the sun is pouring its hot rays on the dry and parching earth. If the pasture is not provided with shade trees, in a convenient locality set four, six or eight supports, across which place straw or grass, and thus, in a brief time and with little labor make a shade in which animals can rest from the heat of the sun, to the great comfort of themselves and benefit to the owners.

Remove the harness from the horse in the hot day whenever you desire to give them a full, free rest, and once during the day, preferably at night, a thorough currying and grooming will not only give rest, but will do about as much towards improving the animal's condition as will the oats.

Examine the harness on your working team, and you will discover that blinds, check reins and cuppers are simply torturing contrivances, serving no useful purpose. Take them all off for the convenience of yourselves and the comfort of the horses. Keep the stable well ventilated and free from the strong ammonia which is injurious to the eyes. Assist the animals to protect themselves against flies, feed regularly, hitch in the shade, and remember that the care which will give comfort to the lower animals will make them doubly profitable to their owners, aside from the humane bearing upon the subject.

IT NEVER FAILS.—Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry will never fail you when taken to cure Dysentery, Colic, Sick Stomach or any form of Summer Complaint. Relief is almost instantaneous; a few doses cures when other remedies fail.

HERE AND THERE.

Some Facts, and a Few Other Good Things.

The Dicky Bird Society, of England, is composed of 100,000 children. Its aim is to encourage protection of birds and animals.

"An ordinary pianist," says an eminent band leader, "can't play a brass drum, because he has no idea of time. Very few pianists have."

Jenny Lind's daughter is coming to "dear America." She is spoken of as having a marvelous voice, much resembling that of her mother.

In Augusta, Ga, the churches have rules which forbid gentlemen from sitting on the right side of the house, as that part is occupied by ladies.

A railway flagman at Galena, Ill, has taught a tame robin to hop out of the flaghouse and wave a little flag whenever a train approaches.

A New York paper declares that the United States must be more prosperous this year than it was last year, because more people are getting married.

"It was a bad day for Yonkers when Tilden died," says a hackdriver. "He always kept the gates open, and we made $3 or $4 a day driving people up to see Graystone."

An inspection of the 500 mail bags that were sunk in the Oregon and have since been recovered shows that ladies smuggle a great many French gloves, with laces, ribbons, etc, in newspapers sent by mail.

Evangelist Sam Jones says: "I'll be glad when preachers will pay full fare on railroads and full prices for everything they get; then they'll be independent and not afraid to preach as they ought."

The three greatest tenors in the world, Gayarre, Masini and Tamagno, are generally to be found in Spain. An engagement at the Royal Opera of Madrid is regarded as a higher honor than one at any of the great Italian theaters.

Alas for the vagaries of Christian charity under the sun. A deacon of a Greenville Pennsylvania church has a string of buttons half a yard long. They have been taken out of the collections of the church during the past few years.

Count Ysugi, son of the premier of Japan, is at Chicago to arrange with publishers for school text books in the English language for use in the Japanese schools, the Mikado having ordered that the English language be taught in the public schools.

Prof. Dryasdust—"Have you read my essay?" Noted Scientist—"Yes, and with much profit." "You understood it, then?" "O, easily." "Well, well, I did hope it would not be such a failure as that. I intended it for the Concord School of Philosophy."

The late Sir John Anderson invented for the British Government machinery which reduced the cost of making bullets from $1.25 to 11c per thousand, and of bayonets from $1.87 to 62c each, but never made anything out of it beyond his salary of $6,000 a year.

It has been stated that President Grevy receives annually 300,000 francs for "travelling expenses, but as his travels amount only to a summer trip to his villa at Montsous Vaudry, his annual savings from that source, according to the Gazette de France, amount to 299,905 francs.

A little miss, while at the sea shore, chanced to get a mouthful of sea water. After thinking some minutes, she said, "Mamma, do 'e fishes live in 'at water all 'e time?" "Yes, dear, what makes you ask?" "Why, I was just finking 'at they muss get awful firsty," was the reply."

Little Juanita the tiny daughter of Joaquin Miller, has been creating a sensation at the Grand Hotel, in the Catskills, by her extraordinary recitations. She recites like an experienced actress, and looks a veritable baby, with curls and short dresses, and has to be lifted on the table to be seen.

At times people manifest a singular craze. In Connecticut just now there is a great demand for the rope with which Lockwood hanged himself after killing Miss Randall. It is estimated that at least one hundred old halters have been sold by the farmers at from $5 to $10 each, as the original rope with which the murderer Lockwood hanged himself after killing Miss Mattie F. Randall.

It has been suggested that, in order to insure greater strength and consequently more safety in ropes used for scaffolding purposes—particularly in localities where the atmosphere is destructive of hemp fibre—such ropes should be dipped, when dry, into a bath containing twenty grains of sulphate of copper per litre of water, and kept in soak in this solution some four days; the ropes will thus have absorbed a certain quantity of sulphate of copper, which will preserve them for some time both from the attacks of animal parasites and from rot.

They were playing comedies at a country house to kill time. The lady of the house was receiving, with the usual amount of modest protestations, the congratulations of her guests. "Indeed," she said, "you are too complimentary. I am quite well aware that to fill the part properly, one should be both very young and very beautiful." "Not at all, madam; you have just proved the contrary," was the too eager response of the complimentary guest, who, the moment afterward, would have given all his old boots not to have said it.
