Marry young, and, if circumstances require it, often.

If you can't git fine cloaths, and eddication too, git the cloaths fust.

Say "how are you" to everybody.

Kultivate modesty, but mind and have a good stock of impudence on hand.

Be charitable—three cent pieces were made on purpose.

Don't take anybody's advice except your own.

It costs more to borrow than to buy.

If a man flatters you, you can kalkilate he is a roag or a fule.

Keep both eyes open, but don't say mor'n half you nose.

When you pray, pray right to the centre of the mark.

Don't mortify the flesh too much; twasn't the sores on Lasserus that sent him up to heaven.

Ef you itch for fame, go inter a graveyard and scratch yourself agin a tumestun.

Young men, be more anxious about the pedigree youre going to leave than you ar about the une somebody left yu.

I wud say to all young men, "Go in," and to old fellers, "Git out."

As good a way to git rich as eny is to run in debt two hundred thousand dollars, and then to go to work and pay your debts. Filosofers tell us that the world revolves on its own axis, and Josh Billings tells us that full half the folks on airth think they are the axis.

N. B. These ere proverbs have stood a hundred years, and hain't gin out yet.

A PRUSSIAN AUTO DA FE.—Mr Punch has fallen a victim to his reverence of dignities. He has made fun of the King and people of Prussia, and after being solemnly tried by the chief tribunal of Berlin, with closed doors, he has been sentenced to be burned. As in order to burn him the worthy Prussians will first be compelled to buy him, we dare say the unprincipled offender will make light of the flames in which he is to be consumed. The wisdom displayed in this case by the Berlinese reminds one of the financial vengence exercised upon the Bank of England by an indignant gentleman, who thought its privilege a monopoly, and attacked its credit by destroying all the notes on which he could lay his hands.

MORE MINERAL DISCOVERIES.—We state on what we consider to be reliable authority that several valuable mineral deposits have been discovered within the last ten days in the township of Chester, Canada West. This township, which forms part of the district of Arthabaska, has, by his Excellency's proclamation of the 16th inst., been declared to be within the "Gold Mining Division," which includes the counties of Arthabaska and Drummond. It is said that Louis Labreche Viger, esq., M. P. P. for Terrebonne, is the fortunate possessor of fifteen acres of auriferous quartz, of which several excellent specimens have been seen in this city. So says the Montreal Transcript.

NE PLUS ULTRA.—Rev. Jos. McKee, New York City, writes—"I recommend Mrs. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum as the best remedies to remove baldness and grayness yet discovered. They may be relied on confidently." Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 198 Greenwich st., New York.

VILLAINOUS CONDUCT OF A MASSACHUSETTS OFFICER.—The Boston Herald says: A letter from headquarters Army of the Potomac, July 23, states an officer in a Massachussetts regiment was reported that day as having attempted to outrage a colored woman in the presence of her husband, after having offered a large sum of money to gain their consent, and failing, threatened to shoot the husband if he interfered, and finally maltreated the guard who came to the rescue. The officer's name will appear as soon as the case has been examined into and the facts brought out officially. The authorities are determined to show no mercy to this class of criminals.
