[Sir George Arthur left Halifax on Saturday last in the steamer Caledonia for Liverpool.]

Extract of a letter from Guysborough, dated March 15:—"The Small Pox, of a very fatal kind, has broke out here and is raging to a considerable extent; it is now in about 8 families. There have been 3 deaths, several have recovered. A man by the name of David O'Brien, has lost his wife and daughter, and his son is now down with it and not expected to live. It was first brought from Halifax by a young man, passenger in Keating's schooner, by the name of O'Brien, who has recovered."

CASE OF MCLEOD.—The Albany Argus contains a letter from Lockport, giving the proceeding in this case as far as they could go. On the opening of the court, Judge Dayton directed the clerk not to call the Jury, deciding at the same time not to hold the court in consequence of an informality, of rather a material error of the clerk, in giving but five instead of six days notice of the drawing of the jury for the term.

McLeod was arraigned, and pleaded not guilty to the indictment against him. His counsel, Messrs: Gardner and Bradley, then moved the court for two commissions to issue: one for the examination of Mr. Webster, Secretary of State, and Mr. Fox, the British Minister at Washington—the other to examine McNabb and others, in Upper Canada.

Affidavits were also served for the purpose of removing the cause to the bar of the Supreme Court by certiorari, or to enable the prisoner's counsel to move for a change of venue so as to have the trial in some other county.

We trust that these proceedings will begin to open the eyes of those Editors who have been so amazingly puzzled as to what was done or what could be done in this case. They show that neither McLeod's counsel or any body else acquainted with the laws of the country, expect his release without a trial before the proper judicial tribunal in the State of New York. The commission for the examination of Mr. Webster and Mr. Fox, is of course for the purpose of presenting to the court the facts in relation to the position which the British Government has officially assumed in the matter.

The question of national law will then come up for argument before the court as to whether that position exculpates McLeod, in case he is shown to have been one of the party that committed the murder. This is precisely the course which we have designated from the first as the plain, direct and legal course, and the only one which could possibly be taken. We trust that it will now be seen that our laws and institutions are not so very complicated as to prevent their being administered with ease and effect.—N. Y. Paper.

The Southern freshet has caused great devastation among cattle. On one island in Oconee river, 700 were destroyed, and several persons have lost 100 head each.

MURDER. We learn that a shocking murder was committed on Monday night at Westville, about two miles N. W. from the city of New Haven.

A man by the name of Lounsberry, who was addicted to intemperance, is stated to have killed his wife with an axe.

ILLNESS OF THE PRESIDENT.—According to the Globe, the President was taken severely ill on Saturday, and resort was had to cupping. The Madisonian speaks of his indisposition as slight, and states that he was better on Monday.

Golding's extensive bagging factory, at New Albany, Ind. was entirely destroyed by fire between the hours of one and two on Monday morning. Loss estimated from fifty to sixty thousand dollars. Insurance $10,000.

U. S. BANK NOTES. The attempt to put these notes upon a par with those of the other Pennsylvania Banks has not been successful.

☞U. S. Bank Notes are selling in Philadelphia at 17 and 18 per cent. discount.

CONVICTION OF A MURDERER.—A Peter Robinson has been tried in New York, for the murder of Mr. Suydam, of New Brunswick, N. J.—found guilty, and is to be executed on the 16th of April.

Dr. LARDNER.—A decree of divorce between Captain Heaviside and his wife, was pronounced in the Consistory Court at London on the third of March. Madam Heaviside is now in Philadelphia, with Dr. Lardner, to whom she will doubtless be married immediately.

THE CALEDONIA.—We saw on Saturday last, a number of neatly dressed, and fine looking sailors, walking through our streets, with the word "Caledonia" painted on their hats. On enquiring, we found that they belonged to the steam-packet Caledonia, now in this port. We further learned that Capt. McKellar, who commands the Caledonia, has been for many years engaged in steam navigation, and is one of the most able and efficient commanders at present employed in British vessels. His rules and regulations on board differ materially from the rules and regulations of steam-ships in general—for he is a man who regulates his own acts by deep seated moral and religious principles. He allows no profanity on board his vessel—no quarreling, nor brawling, nor loud and boisterous language, such as is by far too common on board all classes of vessels. But his crew, consisting of between 70 and 80 men, all appear quiet, orderly, under good discipline, and attentive to their duties. Wishing his men to attend religious service on the Sabbath, he gives to as many as can be spared from ship's duty, liberty to be absent from the ship on Saturday, and pass the day as they please, with the understanding that they must be on board before dark. Thus last Saturday fifty of the crew of the Caledonia had permission to absent themselves from their vessel.

On Sunday forenoon, Captain McKellar, followed by about seventy of his men, neatly dressed, left the packet, crossed the harbour in the ferry boat, and proceeded to the Bethel Church in North Square, to attend divine worship. As they passed along the streets their appearance attracted a good deal of attention. In the afternoon, they attended meeting, we believe, in the Seamen's Church in Parchase street—and in the evening, many of them were present at a lecture at the Bethel in North Square—and afterwards some of the crew took part in a Prayer Meeting. The men appear to be worthy of their Captain—and the officers all appear to be gentlemanly and correct in their deportment.

It is pleasing to witness such a state of things on board this vessel. How much more pleasing this is, than the swearing, shouting, quarreling, and fighting which are so often witnessed in vessels where the crews are numerous, and which many conceive to be the inseparable accompaniments of sea life.—Boston Journal.

We were startled from our propriety yesterday by the announcement of "a Steamer East," and at once concluded that it was our own "ACADIA," booming along and making an incomparably short passage across the Atlantic in the most boisterous season of the year.

As soon as she turned the Beach, however, and by the aid of a glass, we could survey her plainly—the painted port holes, in man-of-war style, so different from the black sides of the Cunard line—a figure head of the British Queen in flowing robes, instead of the fierce Indian, tomahawk in hand, on the bows of the Acadia—proved at once that we were receiving a visit from some strange bird of the ocean, and for an hour every body gave himself up to conjecture. On the Steamer came, but slowly: was cheered as she passed close to the wharves,—when the "British Queen" was descried on her stern; every body knew that she was 20 days out from England, and every body began to whisper "Oh, out of Coal."

The Queen dropped in at the end of Cunard's wharf, when it was discovered that her paddles were broken, (a fact which accounted for her slow pace up the harbour,) and that it was for the purpose of getting these repaired, and a supply of Coal, that she had put into Halifax.

On enquiring on board, we found that she had sailed from London on the 8th, and Portsmouth on the 10th of March; that she had encountered such severe gales from the westward, during the passage that her paddles were shattered, and one of them rendered completely useless, until the weather abated, and temporary floats were rigged on the paddle wheels, and enabled her to make this port.

Comparing the British Queen with the steamers of the Cunard Line, we do not find so much in favour of the former as we would have been led to believe by the description given of her in the New York papers. The Queen is certainly a large vessel, but her model, and interior arrangements for the accommodation of passengers, are, we think, far inferior to those of the Cunard line. Her Saloon is about the same size—perhaps a little larger; and the walls of it are more handsome, being decorated with an imitation of tapestry, woven with groupes of figures; and having a mirror set in at every few feet. But the Saloon is neither so light, so airy, nor the entrance to it so convenient, as in the Cunard Steamers. In fact it was some time before we could find the entrance—which consisted of two winding flights of stairs so shrouded in darkness, that we almost broke our precious neck (!) in descending them. Along each side of the Saloon are the state-rooms—and, in this respect, too we like the Cunard arrangements better, the state rooms not having so direct a communication with the great dining room of the Vessel. The seats in the Saloon are covered with figured crimson silk velvet: and, in common with the Cunard Steamers, there is a library for the use of the passengers.

The Saloon of the Queen, though more handsome than those of the Cunard Line, cannot compare with the magnificent cabin of the Unicorn.

One interesting scene on board of this splendid Ship, however we must not forget to mention.—You can by one easy flight of stairs enter the "engine room," and survey the immense engines and their complicated machinery without the least inconvenience. It is a sight worth looking at, and one of the most striking parts of it is some dozen furnaces far in the distance, blazing tremendously; and the dark shadows of the firemen, passing like demons to and fro, stirring the fire with long iron pokers, and adding fuel to the flame.

Halifax Morning Post.

RECOVERY OF MESSRS. DAVIS & PALMER'S STOLEN PROPERTY.—We are happy to announce, that the watches and jewelry stolen from the store of Messrs. Davis, Palmer & Co. on the evening of the 23d ult. were yesterday all recovered and restored to the rightful owners, through the vigilance and address of Mr. Harnden of the Southern express office, and Mr. D. Clapp, well known as an active constable and most expert rogue-catcher. The circumstances are as follow:—

An Englishman, named Williamson, who has resided in this city some two months, at the corner of Cambridge and Belknap-streets, has been in the habit of forwarding parcels to the South, through the agency of Mr. Harnden. He was known to be intimate with certain pickpockets who have infested this community, and was suspected by Mr. Harnden of being concerned in the daring robberies which have recently been committed here. Yesterday forenoon he called at Mr. Harnden's office and inquired the cost of forwarding a package of a hundred pounds to Philadelphia. Mr. Harnden, who had waited for an opportunity to point him out to the police, immediately gave notice to Mr. Clapp, and after he left the office, and was passing up Court-street, having reached the entrance of Franklin Avenue, Mr. Clapp, who had kept beside him, placed his hand upon Williamson's shoulder, and requested his company to the constable's office, which was acceded to without observation or refusal. From thence he was taken to gaol. He was charged with having committed the robberies both at the office of Messrs Gilbert and the store of Davis and Palmer, and was searched, but nothing was found to connect him with either. His house in Cambridge-street was also searched,—it appeared to have been recently deserted and nothing of a suspicious nature was found in it except three keys, one of which fitted the key-hole of Davis & Palmer's front door.

It was now apparent to Mr. Clapp that the scent was broken, and nothing remained but to parley with the prisoner. He had denied from the beginning all knowledge of the robbery of Messrs. Gilbert, but was not so obdurate with regard to the greater one from the premises of Davis & Palmer. True, he might be detained upon suspicion, but no clue existed to connect him with the robbery, and though he might be secured, yet the property would most probably be immediately concealed or removed by his accomplices. He asked Mr. Clapp indirectly, if he could obtain his liberty by giving information as to the property, and stated in addition, that though he was imprisoned, he could not be identified as the robber, and if any bargain was made with him, to be of any advantage, it must be done forthwith, since his knowledge of the present location of the stolen property would be likely to be of no avail after last night.

After some further conversation, his proposition was agreed to, Mr. Clapp wisely concluding that it was better to secure the property immediately, than to run the risk of having both slip through his fingers, though he thereby should lose all claim to the reward of $1200, which had been offered by the city authorities, for the apprehension of the robber.

A carriage was called, a trunk procured, and Mr. Clapp proceeded with Williamson to the Lowell Railroad depot, and from thence to a small store, in a building recently erected in Brighton-street, where, in a closet, the whole of the property was found—jewelry, watches, spoons, &c. After turning over some portions of the valuables at the suggestion of Williamson, to see if a package of diamond rings was safe, the goods were taken possession of by Mr. Clapp, Williamson merely observing, upon pointing them out—"Now I think you should give me a good gold watch." He had previously wished to retain whatever keys might be found in the building, but to this Mr. Clapp had refused to accede.

The "keys" consisted of every variety of implement which ingenious roguery could construct for the purpose of carrying on its schemes of depredation. Skeletons of keys, with separate wards of various sizes and fashions, drills, a machine for sawing through iron doors, &c. &c. nearly a peck in all, were obtained by Mr. Clapp, and conveyed, with the valuables of Messrs. Davis, Palmer & Co. to his residence in Essex-street. The whole property has been thus providentially secured, its owners not being able to refer to a single missing article, and Williamson, in compliance with Mr. Clapp's promise to him, has been set at large.—Boston Messenger.

LIFE PRESERVER!
Dalley's Magical Pain Extracting
Burn Ointment.

Composed from 30 compounds, containing, in the highest forms, the six paramount, besides many minor virtues, most important to soothing, healing, and perfect cure—

Is the only certain, soothing, prompt Burn Specific in the world—

Also rapidly cures ambiguous, long-standing and inactive sores, swellings, deep bruises and inflammation, felon, fever sore, white swelling, cut, frosted part, sore eyes, mumps, chafe, tender feet, chapped throat, broken breast prevented and healed, bile, gun-shot wound, chilblain, cutaneous disease; erysipelas; indeed all kind of sores incident to man, and invaluable to dress blisters; soothe, draws, and heals, and it in a few days removes the red appearance ever produced so long by blistering.

Whoever prefers life to death, ease to agony, beauty to deformity, prompt cure to lingering sore, though naturally ever so doubting, will, after one trial, ever keep it at hand.

One box is enough to save life, and always pain from 50 common burns.

Loss of life never has occurred where used, nor scar known after even the deepest injury.

All eminent physicians (who have tried its wonderful powers) agree that there is not so important a cure in the world. Prejudice extinct—every family will possess it.

Thousands of certificates of unmatched cures can be produced; all will testify that life, agony, and scar can always be saved by it, if present.

Miss Clark, superintendent of Albany Orphan Asylum, says for burns, scalds, inflammations, swellings, sore eyes, mumps, and general injuries, it has no equal, and leaves no scar.

Mr. Swartz says his child was burnt much and deeply, and himself cut badly; both cured in a few days without scar.

Mr. Carson's foot with melted iron burnt to the bone, useless and in torture nine months; healed, unscarred, in few days.

Mr. Doneghan's child scalded in both arms and hand; cured in eight days without scar.

Mr. Bray's child badly frozen, and two years in agony; cured in few days.

Miss Marvin's foot scalded, and was eight days and nights in agony, until this was used; cured in few days.

Mr. Hamlin cut with 1¼ inch chisel 2 inches deep his leg, by it lost but four days work, had many serious burns and cuts; healed without pain and scar.

A child's face burnt all over, and wounded three distinct times to bleed while healing; cured without pain or scar in nine days. Man frozen, and three weeks in agony; entirely healed in few days. A leg and foot scalded, and three years in distress; cured soon. Another blown up and burnt much with combustibles; cured, extracted the powder without scar. A child covered with sore and inflammation, given up by two of the faculty, saved at once and cured. A thumb beat flat by a sledge, six weeks under surgical skill, when to be taken off; cured as complete as ever. An eyeball burnt much by smith's cinder, and for months hopeless; cured complete.

It is commonly stated 58 would be given for a box, rather than be without it; many would give $10. Still $1 will buy it.

☞The above medicine for sale at the Circulating Library, Germain street. 1st April, 1841.

Essence of Smoke,
for the Smoking of Hams, Bacon, Fish, Beef, &c.

THE subscriber begs respectfully to announce to the Public, that the Essence of Smoke has been extensively used throughout the Province during the past season, and that all those who have given it a fair trial, recommend it as decidedly preferable to the old mode of smoking fish and meat.

House-keepers, Provision-dealers, and others can smoke any quantity of meat or fish, without the least inconvenience or loss of time, by attending to the following plain directions:—While the ham, &c. is moist from the pickle, wipe it with a dry towel, then wash it over twice or three times with the Essence of smoke, allowing six hours to elapse between each washing; hang it up, to dry slowly; it will then keep for years, and in any climate.

No fly or insect will touch any thing preserved with the Essence of Smoke.

Half a pint is sufficient for the largest ham.

Meat or Fish that has become tainted will be restored to a wholesome state in a few hours by being washed once or twice with the Essence of smoke.

For its uses in the cure of Rheumatism, Inflammations, Cuts, Burns, Sprains, and many other complaints, and also for its beneficial effects in the removal of diseases, and accidents to which horses
