Canada and Treaty-Making.

The debate at Ottawa on the French treaty is interesting in that it marks Canada's entrance on the diplomatic field and as possessed of wider, and, we trust, growing self-governing powers. Less than fifteen years ago began the agitation that Canada should have a voice in the making of treaties affecting her interests; the request has been conceded and Sir Charles Tupper, as Canadian Commissioner, practically negotiated the treaty ratified yesterday morning, though nominally under the wing of the British ambassador. Canada has, therefore, now entered on her treaty-making career.

What, then, is to be the method followed by her? There are two ways of negotiating treaties, as was pointed out in the debate: the European or English method, where the sovereign, through plenipotentiaries, negotiates, and where Parliament does not even ratify. If Parliament wishes to question a treaty it must question the conduct of the plenipotentiary, not the content of the treaty itself. As a matter of fact, any treaty negotiated by English representatives is almost invariably duly ratified by the Crown. Then there is the American system, wherein the representatives of the Government negotiate and sign a treaty, but where the constitution expressly reserves the ratification of all treaties to the Senate. We have had experience of this system. George Brown negotiated a reciprocity treaty at Washington; both commissioners signed it; the Senate rejected it bodily and with scant ceremony. This American method has met with little commendation from the trained diplomats of Europe; indeed, it has been frequently condemned by them. For the two parties do not negotiate on fair terms: one feels bound to be bound by what its representative signs; the other reserves a large loophole by which to crawl out if it is considered desirable. Treaties are generally negotiated in secret; but in the case of the United States, when the negotiations are over and the cat is out of the bag, and the contents of the treaty known and the American interests affected have had an opportunity of learning how it concerns them, then pressure may be brought to burst the treaty in the Senate. This is a distinct advantage, it is not a fair one.

Which will be our method? The member for East York contended that we ought to follow the English plan where possible, that we were bound to follow it unless we made express stipulations to the contrary. The Government could not very well take this view on this occasion, as Mr. Foster had taken a different stand a year ago, but practically it was the reason why the treaty was ratified. No one favored it or had much to say for it, and yet it passed the House by a large majority.

Here is our reason for saying that the Canadian Parliament must ratify what our representatives negotiate: Our representatives are appointed by the administration of the day, the administration enjoys the confidence of Parliament and the supporters of that administration are bound to support its treaties or vote want of confidence in them. And party government does not allow that unless a change in the administration is desired. The member for East York said that the honor of the country required that Parliament should ratify; other speakers said no, that a clause in the treaty expressly reserved to Parliament the ratification of the treaty, and that only at the most the honor of the Government required that the treaty should be ratified. Well, that, we contend, amounts to the same thing, for under our system the Government of the day is the custodian of the country's honor and Parliament will always vote as the Administration asks it to do.

Our method, laying all hair-splitting aside, comes down to this, that while we may reserve to Parliament the right to ratify, as a matter of fact Parliament, under our system of party government, is bound to ratify what the Government of the day asks it to do. If it does not do so, then the Administration must give way to a new one. In other words, we can only refuse ratification when we are prepared for a change of Government. We can quite conceive such a situation arising and in a highly important treaty it is a valuable safeguard.

What follows? That the Government of the day is bound to exercise the most scrupulous care in preparing its case, in selecting representatives, in defining their instructions, in keeping them constantly under supervision, and in ascertaining to the fullest extent how Canadian interests will be affected by the proposals. Here was the weak point of this French treaty. A large, a growing, a healthy Ontario industry, that of wine-growing, was through lack of sufficient knowledge of its magnitude and its promise more or less sacrificed to confer a problematical benefit on the timber and ships of our eastern provinces.

The Ministers from Ontario ought to have known where Ontario's interests lay.

The treaty is passed; it remains for us to try it; we hope it may prove an advantage, and that the Ontario vineyards may not suffer from it as has been predicted. It it does not prove a success we are free to denounce it, as the diplomatic term goes, and withdraw from it on twelve months' notice. In the meantime the Government is bound to grant the mitigating legislation asked for by the wine-growers, namely, that they be given alcohol free of excise for purposes of fortifying their wines, as is the case in the United States, France and other countries that produce wine.

Citizens Wish the Bylaw Contested.

Various citizens called at this office yesterday and suggested the desirability of fighting in the courts the bylaw passed by the council on Tuesday in reference to Sunday traffic. In another column appear a few of the many letters received from subscribers advocating a similar course. The bylaw will no doubt be contested in court, and when the proper time arrives those who feel disposed to help the cause of freedom will probably have an opportunity of doing so.

BLAMED HER LITTLE BROTHER.

Maud Harvey's Mean Way of Trying to Shield Herself.

On Tuesday last a gold watch and chain was stolen from the house of W. H. Palmer, 430 Wellesley-street, and pawned for $3 and identified by Detective Black on the same day.

Yesterday when Detective Black visited the pawnshop a young girl was there endeavoring to redeem the watch by leaving some other jewelry in its place. The detective accused her of having pawned the stolen watch. This she indignantly denied. The pawnbroker said she had the ticket, as he had just handed it back to her. She denied this statement just as firmly, and Detective Black insisted on her showing what she had in her pockets. She did so, but no ticket was found. On turning up her parasol the ticket dropped out. She said the pawnbroker had thrown it there, but she finally admitted the pawning and said the watch had been given her by her little brother.

Upon being questioned by the detective in the presence of the girl, the lad said he had never seen the watch until he saw it in the detective's hands. The girl was locked up. Her name is Maud Harvey, aged 18, daughter of Mrs. Mary Harvey, who lives next door to Mr. Palmer.

In May, 1892, Maud was convicted of stealing a dress and was remanded for sentence by Magistrate Denison.

Excursions to Long Branch, Lorne Park and Grimsby Yesterday.

The steamer Greyhound took Knox Church and St. Alban's to Long Branch yesterday morning and the Eurydice took the St. Stephen's Sabbath School to Lorne Park. Both boats were well filled and they had a very good day of it in spite of a shower of rain. The Greyhound went at 2 o'clock to Grimsby, carrying a fair number of passengers, consisting of cottagers and residents. Her next trip to Grimsby will be on Saturday at 2 p.m.

Rule 15, which governed the admission of exhibits at the World's Fair, was hard on some of the manufacturers of so-called blood-purifiers, but the result—which proves the wisdom of the rule—was, that Ayer's was the only Sarsaparilla admitted. All other similar preparations were classed as patent medicines or secret nostrums, and thrown out.

A Big Insurance Company.

The World had a call yesterday from Mr. J. D. Wells of New York, the third vice-president of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of that city. Mr. Wells states that the business done by the Mutual Reserve so far in 1894 exceeds by $10,000,000 that done in the same period of 1893, and that it certainly looks as if the limit of $75,000,000 laid out to be done in 1894 would be reached.

TO FIGHT THE BYLAW.

Indignant Citizens Suggest Raising a Fund to Contest Their Rights.

Below are a few samples of the letters received by The World yesterday in reference to the Sunday car question. The World occasionally uses strong words when discussing this subject, but we are a long way behind most of our correspondents in this respect.

To the Highest Tribunal!

Editor World: I suggest that you open a subscription list to aid in securing to the people their rights in this Sunday car question. This is a matter that concerns all, and our "John Hampton" Kelly should not be left to fight, single-handed, the horrid, persecuting, sixteenth century, witch-burning influences which are a nightmare and a curse to this city. There are thousands who would contribute. Give them a chance, and, if necessary, we will take our case to the highest British tribunal, where the inhumanity, selfishness and hypocrisy that would rivet chains about our necks will receive all the consideration it deserves. WILLIAM BRITT.

The City Will Get Into a Lawsuit.

Editor World: As I am one of the ten thousand who voted for liberty of the subject on the Sunday car question, I beg a small space to criticize the recent bylaw rushed through by a pusillanimous council. My opinion is that if either the city or police interfere with a private bus or car, whose wheels happen to fit the street car tracks, next Sunday they will be liable to heavy damages, and the city should hesitate before it is involved in an expensive lawsuit. I hope you will open a subscription list to protect Kelly and other citizens in their undoubted legal rights. AN OLD RESIDENT.

This Is the Time to Act.

Editor World: To an ordinary layman it does seem very strange that the City Council can make bylaws at will to stop a private car running on Sunday and yet allow all manner of private cabs, carriages and boats to run on the same day. If the people of this city submit to this piece of inconsistent tyranny they are the most cowardly on this earth. The audacity and barefaced hypocrisy of these latter-day dolts would bring the blush to Balaam's ass had the poor brute the nerve to propose such an absurdity as they do. Just think, fellow-citizens, what these selfish humbugs mean. Anybody who can borrow, beg or steal a cab, a carriage, any kind of a boat or bicycle can get around as he pleases, but you who can do none of these things because you are either too poor or too honest must remain at home on Sunday in your stuffy houses and submit to all manner of annoyances and risks. If you cannot use what we use you must not use anything else. If you do we, the wise and wealthy masters, will take you by the neck and throw you into jail or make you pay the piper. This is what it means, or at least partly so. When will we poor unfortunates who are crying day and night for some way to get about on Sundays, rise up and dare to resist this unblushing monstrosity of barefaced hypocrisy. There must be some way for us to secure the right to get around as others do in our own way—the only way we can afford. This is the time to act. Then let us do so—so effectually that the struggle may be ended once for all and the shackles fall from us forever. FREEDOM.

The opening rounds of the lawn bowling tournament for the Walker Trophy were played yesterday afternoon on the well-kept Yacht Club Green. Twenty-two rinks contested, and many well-played games were resultant. An extra end was necessary between Galt and Toronto Victorias when Lightbourne made the shot. Everying was capitally conducted under the able management of Secretary George C. Biggar. Be Your Own Sandow.

Considerable interest has been created for the last two days by the exhibition in the window of The H. P. Davies Co., 81 Yonge-street, by Prof. McFadden of New York, showing the merits of The Whitely Exerciser. It obtained a medal and diploma for merit and general superiority at the World's Columbian Exposition and is well worthy of investigation by all who would obtain health and strength by the easiest, quickest, cheapest and most natural method. The professor will continue his exhibitions for the balance of this week.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY FRUITFUL MARRIAGE.

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths: the Plain Facts; the New Discoveries of Medical Science Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power. A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, etc.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, etc.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. 2000 references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you had dumped a cartload of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.
