The new year begins on May 1, an ordinary condition of the amendments would come into force on the 1st. From present appearances, however, it will at least be several days before the lieutenant-governor is able to pass on them at a house is again called.

It is probable that another amendment may yet be added to the bill. The authority would be granted to bring the new rules into force at once, and following this the amendments for the coming year will be issued on the understanding, present indications point to a restriction of the bottle trade of the shortening of the hours of the mornings and the elevation of fees becoming operative at once.
