HOW HE FACED THE MUSIC.

HON. WILFRID LAURIER ATTENDS A SCOTT ACT MATINEE.

Surrounded by Citizen F. S. Spence, Police Magistrate Young and a Large Number of Listeners, the Liberal Leader Has Something to Say About Temperance.

At the Liberal picnic at Oakville on Monday there was a little matinee which has not yet found its way into print, and which The World would have published yesterday but for its otherwise lengthy account of the picnic.

The speaking was over at 5.30, and for half an hour afterwards Mr. Laurier stood on the platform receiving congratulations from friends. Then he sauntered off in company with Mr. W. H. Dewart through the grove, the pair pulled up in rear of the platform, and they were soon joined by Mr. F. S. Spence and Police Magistrate Young of Halton, both staunch supporters of the Scott Act.

Mr. Spence at once submitted to Mr. Laurier a series of questions about the Scott Act. Whether he was in favor of it, if he would make a public declaration to that effect, was his party in favor of it, etc. It did not take long for a crowd to gather around the Liberal leader, and before he had an opportunity of answering the scheme, about 100 persons, with gaping mouths and open ears, formed a circle and kept, as it were, Mr. Laurier a close prisoner for fully 15 minutes.

Mr. Laurier informed Mr. Spence that he was not personally opposed, nor was his party, to the Scott Act. The measure had been put upon the Statute Book by his colleague and ex-leader, Hon. Alexander Mackenzie. The Act had been a failure, he thought. For what reason he could not speak as to the other provinces, but in his native Province of Quebec, where it had been tried the Act had certainly been a dismal failure in the counties where the Act had been in operation it had not decreased drinking, but had rather increased it. "The reason for this," continued Mr. Laurier, "is plain enough. In Quebec we have the parish prohibition law, which empowers parishes to prohibit the sale of liquor within its bounds as they see fit. The law is very stringent, and as a rule is well enforced where it has been adopted. The people of the Province respect this law, and they do not as a rule care to invoke the operation of an Act which is in every way its inferior. In plenty of our parishes—If The World does not misunderstand the speaker, Mr. Laurier said loud—there is not a drop of liquor sold, these parishes being under the operation of the provincial act."

Mr. Spence intimated that the failure of the Scott Act was owing to the apathy of the Dominion Government in not enforcing it. He also said that when Mr. Amyot (the Conservative member for North Lanark, and also a member of the Dominion Alliance), had offered amendments to the Scott Act at the last session of Parliament, looking to its efficiency in enforcement, they (the Alliance people) had been forestalled by Mr. Mills, M. P., a temperance man, and a prominent member of Mr. Laurier's party. Mr. Mills had offered a resolution censuring the Government for not enforcing an Act which stood on the Statute Books. This resolution of Mr. Mills had the effect of stultifying the efforts of the Alliance in looking for desirable amendments. Mr. Spence wanted to know if Mr. Laurier and his party were responsible for Mr. Mills' resolution.

To this question Mr. Laurier made a warm rejoinder. He said the Liberal party in Canada could be trusted as in favor of temperance every time. Mr. Mills' resolution was eminently proper, and all his (Laurier's) followers in Parliament had voted for it. It merely recorded that the Government deserved censure for not enforcing the Scott Act, and for not providing funds for its enforcement. "If I remember aright," continued Mr. Laurier, "I think that Mr. Jamieson himself voted for that resolution, although a supporter of the Government."

"Oh, no he didn't," replied Mr. Spence. "They merely wanted to catch him in a trap, but they didn't succeed."

Then an old grager, one of the attentive listeners, broke in with this remark: "It don't make any difference which party is in power. You temperance people would do all you could to harass them!"

The conversation was continued with animation, Mr. Spence all the while attempting to make Mr. Laurier give an unequivocal declaration as to his party's leaning towards the Scott Act.

"All I can say," proceeded the Liberal leader, "is that my party framed the measure and I think had we been in power to-day we would either have enforced the Act or repealed it. Parliament accepted the Act unanimously when it was first introduced. Again I repeat you can always count upon the Liberal party in Canada as being in favor of temperance among the people. I think the masses are becoming more sober in their habits every day. There is not nearly so much drinking now as there was a number of years ago. That is so of Quebec at least."

Mr. H. H. Dewart, President of the Toronto Young Liberal Club, thought it was time for him to take a hand in the discussion, and turning to Mr. Spence he said: "Do you and your friends object to the course of Mr. Walsh while in Parliament, in connection with any vote he may have given on temperance matters, or in connection with his conduct since he lost his seat."

Mr. Spence: "to the first question 'no;' to the last, 'yes.'" Mr. Laurier continuing the thread of the impromptu conference, stoutly maintained that his party was all O. K. and would never be found wanting when the moral welfare of the people was at stake. He then, in company with Mr. Dewart, made good his escape, while citizen Spence hopped over the picket fence which surrounds the grove, limped into a farmer's wagon and drove off in the direction of Bronte.

A Married Masquerader.

Charles E. Stanbury, alias Brown, alias Stingman, is a prisoner at Headquarters, on a charge of assault preferred against him by Miss Harriet Morrison, daughter of Mrs. Morrison, who keeps a store at 695 Yonge-street. Stanbury is a married man and is employed as stenographer in a wholesale commission house. It is alleged that the offence took place in Rosedale ravine, several days ago. Stanbury was known to the Morrison family by the name of Brown, and from the information in the possession of the police, appears to have been courting Miss Harriet and her sister Lily at one and the same time. Miss Harriet, however, after "Brown's" conduct in the ravine, complained to her sister, with the result that Rowbury was placed under arrest. Inspector Archabold worked up the case.

WATERWORKS COMMITTEE.

A Variety of Business Dispatched at Yesterday's Meeting.

The Water Works Committee met yesterday. There were present: Ald. Boustead (chairman), Baxter, Bell, Gilbert, Hewitt, Hill and Carlyle (St. Andrews').

Superintendent Hamilton's report was a voluminous document. It stated for the seven weeks ended August 4, 405,518,305 gallons of water had been pumped and 1432 tons of coal consumed at the engine-house. This gives an average of 17,739,820 gallons pumped and 29½ tons of coal consumed per day. Last year's daily average for the same period was 13,425,151 gallons of water and 35½ tons of coal. The Superintendent held that this year's figures showed a decided improvement. Drinking fountains have been erected in the following locations: Esplanade and York, Yonge and Esplanade, Church and Esplanade, King and Strachan-avenue, Bellwoods Park, George and King, Spadina-avenue and Esplanade, North Drive (Rosedale), Bluecairn Road (Rosedale), St. Andrew's Market, Exhibition Park (two fountains), Horticultural Gardens (two fountains). It was recommended that horse troughs be placed on the following corners: George and King, College and Bathurst, Winchester and Parliament, Dundas and Queen, Brock and Front, Bathurst and Front, Church and Front, Yonge and College-avenue, King and Don Bridge, Bloor and Yonge, Bloor and Sherbourne.

The Press House was reported to be almost completed, and the repairs to the waterworks wharf were urgently pressed as being of immediate necessity. The superintendent urged the erection of a building on Lombard-street for the use of Waterworks foreman Foley, to act as a storehouse for tools, &c. John Finken's claim of $840 for damages to his property by the recent burst of the main on Wellington-street was acknowledged as correct, and payment recommended. A few stoppages had occurred in the working of No. 3 engine, but on the whole it was working satisfactorily. The total cost of reconstruction of the engine was $14,507.48. Wholesale changes were suggested for the high level pumping station, the present engine in use up there having not sufficient capacity to supply this portion of the city.

Ald. Hewitt protested that the horse troughs recommended were mostly to be erected in front of hotels and saloons, and he thought it a wrong principle, as it might induce the drivers to take a glass of beer. The superintendent was instructed to consult Ald. Hewitt as to what locations he desired changed. The remainder of the report was passed without alteration. The committee adjourned at 4.30.

THE TORONTO VETERANS.

What the old Soldiers and Marines Said and Did Last Night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Army and Navy Veterans' Society was held last night in Temperance Hall. There was an unusually large attendance and all the members in possession of medals wore them on vest or coat. Mr. John Munn, late 1st Battalion 16th Foot, and president of the society, occupied the chair. The vice chair was occupied by Mr. Edward Fawcett, late King's Royal Irish Hussars. After routine business, during which twelve new members were enrolled and 41 proposed, Mr. Kaye, late sergeant in the 13th Foot, was introduced to the meeting. This gentleman, who is 72 years of age, and who served in the first Afghan war, wears three medals, each with several clasps. He addressed the society at some length, relating incidents of the many engagements in which he had participated. Capt. Moule, late of the 82nd Foot, was the next speaker. He expressed his pleasure at meeting with so many old soldiers, with many of whom, no doubt, he had served in the Crimea and in India. Mr. Thomas Tyler briefly sketched the history of the Veterans' Society, referring to the "bold day" they had taken during the Queen's Jubilee year. Speaking of the deputation the Society then sent to Windsor Castle, he announced that he had taken the trouble to have the answer framed. He then exhibited the cablegram enclosed in a very handsome frame. This souvenir of the event he presented to the society, and it was immediately hung in a conspicuous position on the walls of the hall. The cablegram read: "The Queen thanks the Veterans for their congratulations. PONSONBY." Mr. Wm. Johnston late of the 3rd Buffs, and recently from Halifax, told the meeting of the great progress made, and the respected position now held by the Veterans' Society in the city of which he had lately been a resident.

THE TORONTO WORLD WINS.

The Injunction Against Toronto Typographical Union Made Perpetual.

Before Judge MacMahon, at Osgoode Hall yesterday, the twice-enlarged injunction of W. Maclean, of The Toronto World, restraining Toronto Typographical Union No. 91 and and others from publishing and circulating a handbill or circular calling for a boycott of the said paper was disposed of. This was effected by making the injunction perpetual. The order of the court also restrains defendants from issuing any like publication, and the cost of all proceedings in the matter the defendants have to pay.

Mr. William Seton Gordon, of Armour, Gordon & Williams, appeared for Mr. Maclean, and Dr. McMichael, Q. C., for the defendants.

Mr. Gordon stated to the court the position in which the matter stood, and said that his learned friend and himself had agreed to settle the case on certain terms, which would not only temporarily dispose of the matter, but be a final settlement. They were mutually will ing to have the motion entered for judgment.

Dr. McMichael concurred with his learned friend, and said the injunction really was to prevent the defendants publishing and circulating an account of certain differences which had arisen between the plaintiff and the defendants.

His Lordship interposing: "When the application was made to me and I granted the injunction asked for it was on the strength of the one paragraph in it recommending boycotting."

Dr. McMichael, "That is the last paragraph of the handbill. If this injunction be made perpetual against this document or any other documents like it, it will be restraining the defendants from publishing a statement of their case. The difficulty is how to put such a statement that it shall not operate against the defendants."

The Judge: "I suppose what you want is to preserve your rights as free-born citizens."

Dr. McMichael: "That is it, Your Lordship. The earlier portion is about the dispute, it is the last paragraph that refers to boycotting."

His Lordship: "And it was on account of the paragraph recommending boycotting that I granted the injunction."

Dr. McMichael then read the terms of the mutual agreement, which he said he thought would meet with his Lordship's approval. The learned counsel added that the plaintiff had not shown that any damage had been done by the publication of the handbill, but as damage might result from its publication it would be time enough to deal with that question when the damage had arisen."

The Judge: "I think so."

Dr. McMichael: "In the meantime I think it will be better to let this agreement go."

His Lordship said he agreed with the learned counsel.

Dr. McMichael added that the defendants agreed to pay the costs of the suit and motion. He asked that the injunction do not operate against the defendant David Ross, as he had not been served with notice.

His Lordship concurred.

Ross, it may be explained, has left Toronto. The following are the terms of the judgment as signed by the respective counsel, approved by the Judge, and entered in the court's proceedings.

In the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division.

Between William Findlay Maclean, plaintiff, and Toronto Typographical Union No. 91, Joseph T. Gilmour, Albert S. White, John Armstrong and David Ross, defendants.

Upon motion this day made unto this court by William Seton Gordon, of counsel for the plaintiff, in the presence of counsel for the defendants, for an order in behalf of the said plaintiff to continue an injunction already granted herein upon undertaking being afforded, and consent consenting to turn the application into motion for judgment and consenting hereto:

1. This court doth with such consent, order that the defendants, their servants, workmen and agents, be and each of them is hereby perpetually restrained from printing, publishing or distributing the circular set forth in the plaintiff's writ of summons mentioned, and being a certain handbill dated the 21st July, 1888, and headed, "To the Locked out Printers," or any circular, handbill or publication, calling a boycott of the plaintiff or of its newspaper, The Toronto World, or appealing to the public not to purchase or patronize the said paper or advertise therein.

2. And by consent as aforesaid this court doth not think fit to make any order as to damages.

And this court doth further order that the defendants do pay the plaintiff his costs of this suit and of this motion for injunction herein and of this motion

DANIEL MCMICHAEL,
WILLIAM SETON GORDON.

Dated August 14, 1888.

HE HAS A GREAT NERVE.

The Man of Schemes Undertakes a Big Enterprise.

A World reporter yesterday called on ex-Ald. E. A. Macdonald at his office and desired that oriental luminary to unfold his plans re the new coach service. E. A. was in his pleasantest mood, and responded readily.

"What is it like? Well it is simply an improvement on the Herdic coach that is so popular in Philadelphia and several other large American cities. It is far superior to the Herdic, in fact it is far superior to any street car. It has one defect only; it will not work on bad roads, but then as against that we can change and vary the route from time to time at our pleasure. And if the public want the service they will have to maintain good roadways or we will simply have to go to the next street.

"Will our cedar block roadway do for the coaches? Yes, and good macadam or gravel will do splendidly. Asphalt makes the best road, but then it has its defects. All things considered I prefer cedar block, macadam, or gravel, if in good condition."

"What routes have you decided upon?"

"None definitely. I rather think that we will establish one from the north end of East Rosedale, along Bloor to Jarvis, down Jarvis to King and Union Station. Another from the intersection of the C. P. R. and Avenue-road down to Bloor, along Bloor, down Yonge to Adelaide, thence to Jarvis and the market. We would transfer passengers to another line for Union Station for the single fare. Then we would have a third line from the northerly part of St. Matthew's Ward to Union Station, and wherever else is would pay. You see the business is to be run for 'revenue only,' but the only way it can be made to pay is to please the public by a superior service."

"What induced you to start this business?"

"I saw that the Toronto Street Railway appeared to own all the streets of Toronto, besides a majority of the Aldermen, and in order to develop our end of the city some such course was an absolute necessity, and as it had to be done, we thought we might as well make it general as sectional, as the business will undoubtedly pay handsomely on its own merits."

"Is it not rather a big undertaking for you, single-handed?"

"My friend" said the ex-Alderman, good-naturedly, "I begin to think your kindly interest is not born of sympathy. You talk like one from the enemies camp, but just allow me to look after my own interests in this matter. I have counted the cost. Good-day."

ONTARIO TEACHERS FOREGATHER IN TORONTO ONCE MORE.

The Proceedings on the Opening Day of the Annual Convention of Ontario Teachers—Elections of Officers—Papers Read and Warmly Discussed.

The twenty-eighth annual convention of the Ontario Teachers' Association was opened yesterday morning at eleven o'clock. In the temporary absence of the President, the Vice-President, John Miller, took the chair. Many ladies were present. Mr. A. Campbell, of Kincardine, was appointed secretary to the convention. When the minutes of the last annual meeting had been read and confirmed, the president, Mr. J. H. Smith, of Ancaster entered and relieved Mr. Miller from the duties of chairman. The following communications were read: from Mr. Workman regretting that on account of illness he would be unable to give his promised paper on "Music;" from the Niagara Assembly inviting the Association to hold their next annual convention at Niagara; from the Ministerial Association respecting religious instruction in the public schools. The communication last referred to was handed over to a special committee, and it was decided to refer the Ministerial Association to the resolutions passed at former conventions, in which the views of the teachers of the Province on the question were set forth.

The treasurer's report was presented by Mr. Wm. J. Hendry. It showed that the receipts for the year ending August 13, amounted to $914.76. The total expenditure was $415.73, leaving a balance of $499.03.

Afternoon Session.

At the afternoon session a class of little girls was present. They attended to assist Mr. A. T. Cringan, of Toronto, in his illustration of the merits of the Tonic Sol-fa system. They had been under that gentleman's training for a short time, and gave pleasing evidence of his care and their own intelligence.

Mr. A. Creed, mathematical master at the Normal School, Fredericton, N. B., was introduced to the convention, and delivered a brief address.

Mr. T. Arnold Haultain, M. A., Peterborough, was then called upon for a promised essay on "The Preparation of Candidates for Teachers' Certificates." He complained that the educational system at present in vogue in Ontario was too literary in its character. The education received by pupils in the High Schools, was not, he contended, of a sufficiently practical nature. In fact, they were trained for the intellectual professions, which were overcrowded. He advocated the increase of fees in the High Schools and Colleges, and the institution of more Agricultural Colleges. He believed something should be done to counteract drawing young men from the farm.

In the discussion which followed the several speakers opposed Mr. Haultain's ideas. They were satisfied with the present educational system, and could not see the necessity for more Agricultural Colleges when the existing one at Guelph was never filled.

Mr. F. W. Merchout, M. A., Owen Sound, spoke at some length on the necessity of "Changes in the Constitution of the Ontario Teachers' Association, with a view to make it a representative body." He stated that the attendance at the annual convention of the association was falling off, and that it was necessary to do something to arouse a greater interest in its proceedings. The question of a representation in the association was a difficult one to solve, and he did not pretend to have done so. He recommended the adoption of the following clauses:

1. That it shall consist of the officers.

2. Of one representative for every 25 members of each Teachers' Inst tute.

3. All Public Model, and High School Inspectors.

4. One representative from each High School, Collegiate Institute and University, and one additional representative for every four teachers over three on the staff.

Discussion on these propositions was deferred until the evening session.

Mr. Woods, Hamilton Collegiate Institute, gave notice that at the next session of the association he would move, "That in the opinion of this association additional Normal School accommodation for Ontario is urgently required."

Mr. J. W. Garvin gave notice of motion that at a subsequent session he will move, "That in view of the rapid advance in this Province of the Tonic Sol-fa system of vocal music, there being not less than 30,000 pupils taught daily by this method, the association holds the opinion that Tonic Sol-fa should be placed on the same basis in our Public and High Schools as the staff notation, and would recommend that a Tonic Sol-fa Reader, or series of Readers, be authorized to an early date by the Education Department."

Evening Session.

Mr. Garvin opened the discussion on the merits of the Tonic Solfa system. He moved a resolution to the effect that the system be placed on the same footing in the curriculum of Public Schools as all other styles of notation.

The motion was carried.

The President then addressed the association. He gave a brief resume of the growth of educational systems in America, mentioning the difficulties which obstructed the designs of progressists. Turning to Ontario, in particular, he sketched the various steps by which the present colossal and intricate labyrinth of rules and regulations had been arrived at. The address closed with a justification of the present system.

The discussion upon Mr. Merchant's proposition to introduce a system of representation, occupied a considerable length of time. Mr. McMurchy and Mr. Woods, both veterans in educational work, advised the selection of the voluntary system, which had been fraught with such beneficial results. Others followed in the same strain. The resolution was finally referred to a committee.

Mr. John Hoskins, Q. C., was introduced during the afternoon, and invited the members to a garden party at his residence, "The Dale," Rosedale, this afternoon from four until six o'clock.

These cigars are hand-made by the Cuban method, the filler being of choice Vuelta Abajo and the wrapper fine Sumatra, imported directly by ourselves. We do not see how any heavily taxed imported cigars at 10 cents can equal these in value. It is the best 5-cent cigar on the market. Spilling Bros., 115 Jarvis-street, Toronto. 136

Sanitary Matters.

The three houses at Elliot and Hamilton-streets, condemned three weeks ago by the Health Department as unfit for habitation, are still occupied.

The sanitary inspectors should direct their attention to the lane running north of Temperance street.

BOYCOTTING.

THE WORLD this morning is called upon to once more refer to its recent trouble with its printers. Three weeks ago when the Toronto Typographical Union issued a circular purporting to give an account of the dispute between the men and the proprietor of The World it supplemented the statement with certain paragraphs calling upon the public to inaugurate a boycott against The World and its advertising patrons. On application to Mr. Justice MacMahon, Mr. Wm. Seton Gordon, counsel for The World, obtained an ex parte injunction restraining the Union or any of its agents from circulating or distributing this handbill. The Typographical Union, or its officers thereupon engaged such an eminent counsel as Dr. McMichael, Q. C., to defend their action. The World is, however, given to understand that it was on the recommendation of the Doctor that the officers of the Union consented to have the judgment entered which is printed in another column and to pay all the costs of the proceedings. This course the counsel for The World agreed to and did not press for any damages which under the circumstances might have been claimed.

Whilst The World has won an easy victory over the Typographical Union, it does no propose to "crow" in any way about it. We took the mildest legal course that was open to us. The Conspiracy Laws might have been put in operation against the boycotters, and if convicted they would have been liable to imprisonment. All that we desired to show was that the services of a number of men having been dispensed with they were not at liberty to take it upon themselves to attempt to destroy the business of any man by such a questionable mode as an open boycott. In the United States the boycott, as far as practical results are concerned, has disappeared. We would take this occasion to inform the members of trades unions that they, as well as other people, are in duty bound to obey the laws of the land, although, it may be added, that in many cases they are not doing so, for example, in connection with the plumbers' dispute now pending.

The World has never been antagonistic to organized labor, nor is it now. Ever since this paper was started, nine years ago, its composing room has been controlled exclusively by the Union. Our late dispute was not on the matter of the amount of wages we were to pay the men; and even now The World is paying its compositors two cents a thousand above the Union scale. It was simply a protest against an unjust exaction which our printers, backed by the Executive Committee of the Toronto Typographical Union, demanded from us, particulars of which we fully explained to the public at the time.

The World is not the first paper in Toronto that has had to fight the tyranny of the Typographical Union, nor is it likely that it will be the last. The Globe on more than one occasion has had trouble with the union. The Mail underwent a long and bitter struggle and spent many thousands of dollars to free itself from the dictation of the Union; but after gaining the victory it capitulated for political reasons. The Mail even went so far as to compel any man it employed to sign a cast-iron agreement that he did not belong to nor would he join a labor organization. This The World will never do. Our composing-room will be open to all competent men, but we will reserve the right to manage it as we see fit. The Telegram, although never a Union office, had a severe struggle three years ago against the encroachments of the organization, which threatened at one time to assume the charge of its internal affairs.

The World may add that the circular complained of, although widely distributed for several days, did not in any way injure this journal with either its subscribers or its advertisers. We are just as prosperous as ever, and hope we will continue to be so.

Another Dynamite Find at Chicago

CHICAGO, Aug. 14.—What the police think was an attempt at the wholesale destruction of property on the Burlington road was discovered this morning. While traveling his beat a policeman's attention was attracted to an object on the "Q" tracks on 16th-street near the viaduct. On picking it up he found that it was a gas pipe bomb containing enough dynamite to blow up an entire train. The bomb was 6 inches long and 1½ inches in diameter, one of the largest size made by the anarchists. The police have no clue as to who placed the bomb on the track. The dynamite was almost under the viaduct, and had it exploded it would have resulted in heavy loss of property if not in the destruction of life.
