Supreme Court

(Before Mr. Justice Kent).

Between Newfoundland Banking Trust Corporation, Ltd., and Reid Nfld. Company, Ltd., Mines and Forests, Ltd., and Nfld. Power & Paper Co., Ltd.

This is a motion for an order that (1) The defendant Reid Nfld. Company shall, within such time as the order made herein shall appear, transfer to the plaintiff Company (a) 1,500 fully paid 6 1-2 non-cumulation preference shares of $100 each of the Nfld. Power & Paper Co., Ltd., and (b) 2,400 fully paid up ordinary shares of $100 each of the Nfld. Power & Paper Co., Ltd.

(2) There be paid out of Court to the plaintiff Company the sum of $2,500, together with such interest as shall have been earned thereon, which sum of $2,500 was paid to the Court herein. As security for the costs of the defendant Mines and Forests (Nfld.) Ltd., and for the costs of these applications, L. E. Emerson, for plaintiff, is heard in support of the motion.

Howley, K.C., for Mines and Forests, consents.

C. E. Hunt, for Reid Nfld. Company, consents, but moves that 10 days be allowed from the date Dec 12th for the transfer of the aforesaid shares.

L. E. Emerson concurs to the 10 days being allowed for the transfer.

It is ordered that the shares be transferred within 10 days from this date and that the sum of $2,500, with interest, paid into Court, be paid out to plaintiff and the costs of these applications.

Hon. Michael Morris, B.A.

In the final examination for certificates of honors published by order of the Council of the Board of Studies 15, Old Square, Lincoln Inn, W.C., on Oct. 28th we find the name of Hon. Michael Morris, who is called to the bar at the Inns of Court Inner Temple. We also find the name of Hon. Michael Morris, B.A., Trinity College, Cantebury. The young gentleman named is son of our fellow townsman Lord Morris and nephew of Hon. Frank J. Morris, Judge of the C. D. Court. We understand that the Hon. Michael Morris passed a very brilliant examination and he bids fair to have a successful career at the bar in the Old Country. The Telegram offers congratulations.

Siamese Pigs

BUILD NESTS OUT OF STICKS.

Bangkok, Siam, Dec. 4.—Wild pigs make nests in Siam, according to K. G. Gairdner, writing in the Journal of the Natural History Society of Siam. In India, Mr. Gairdner says, it is reported that the pigs make nests of grass, but in the evergreen jungles of Siam there is little or no grass and the nests are made of sticks. The sticks are all bitten off from the surrounding trees and they vary in thickness from the width of a finger to an inch in diameter. They are piled about a yard high and in a heap about three yards broad. The pigs tunnel beneath the nests, presumably for protection against the rain.

Mr. Gairdner found another strange nest in the jungles of southeastern Siam, on the boundary of Tenassarim, at an elevation of 850 metres. It was a rough shelter formed of leafy branches, thick and uppermost and supported by a thin clump of bamboo. Mr. Gairdner says: "The branches appeared to have been arranged methodically, and, looking for the mark of a knife, I found that the branches had been bitten and torn off from the trees overhead, which was stripped of its smaller branches, some of which had not fallen to the ground, but lay withered in the forks above. A bear's claw marks were visible on the tree, so it is a point for investigation as to whether bears form some sort of shelter during the rains."

30,000 at an Execution

FIRST HANGING IN GREECE.

Athens.—Colonel Zarifopoulos, formerly chief of police at Salonica, and Colonel Dracatos, who were condemned to death by court-martial for the embezzlement of public funds, were hanged on Nov. 27th outside Athens.

The executions were carried out where M. Gounaris, an ex-Premier, General Hadjianestis, an ex-Commander-in-Chief, and four former Cabinet Ministers were shot on Nov. 28, 1922, for their share in the Greek defeat by the Turkish Army.

More than 30,000 spectators gathered at the place and they were profoundly impressed by the new method of execution, hanging having only just been introduced by the present Government.

Here and There

CALENDER RECEIVED.—We beg to thank the firm of J. T. Lamb, Jewellery Manufacturer, for a copy of its artistically designed 1926 calendar.

ENQUIRY NEXT WEEK.—In connection with the death of Andrew Turner at the General Hospital last Sunday following a collision with a motor car on the Topsail road we understand that certain enquiries are being made by the police and a preliminary enquiry will probably begin next week.

Had 23 Children

170 DESCENDANTS MOURN DEATH OF CENTENARIAN.

No fewer than 170 descendants mourn the death at the age of 105 of Mrs. Mary Walton, Leeds' only woman centenarian. At the age of 19 she married a travelling show man, and, with a marionette show, the two travelled Great Britain. On the death of her husband, after some 20 years of married life, deceased carried on the show, at the same time bringing up her 23 children. Longevity appears to have been a trait of Mrs. Walton's family. Her uncle died in his 105th year, while an aunt and a grandmother of Mrs. Walton's each attained the age of 104. Of her 23 children, three daughters and two sons are still living.

Big Shipping Combine

Berlin.—The North German Lloyd has suddenly become the greatest shipping concern in Germany, and its tonnage has risen from 415,000 to 613,000.

This result has been produced by the fusion of the Hamburg-Bremen-Africa Line and the Roland Line, both with headquarters at Bremen, and the Horn Steamship Company, of Lubeck, with the North German Lloyd. The fusion requires the consent of general meetings of the participating lines, which may be taken for granted.

The North German Lloyd will now be the only European line sending ships to all quarters of the globe.

A Little More Push

"I know all our handicaps. Nobody knows them better. I know our depleted finances, our limited home market, our industrial troubles. I know them inside and outside," writes Sir Edward Manville in the Weekly Dispatch.

"But I also know that we have forgotten that every extra hour of work we do, whether we are employers or workmen, clerks or financiers, marks a step along the road to general prosperity. I believe that we shall pull through and that by the end of next year we may reasonably hope to see the adverse trade balance readjusted in our favor.

"But before that happy condition can arrive we must have a little more push by everybody."

Another Canine Prefix

"Yes," the teacher explained, "quite a number of plants and flowers have the prefix 'dog.' For instance, the dog-rose and dog-violet are well known. Can any of you name another?"

There was silence, then a happy look illuminated the face of a boy at the back of the class.

"Please, miss," he called out, proud of his knowledge, "collie-flowers!"—The Progressive Grocer.

(From Our Boston Correspondent.)

Business throughout the country is prosperous, and in a healthy condition. So much has been heard in recent years of the business cycle, of the fact that prosperity follows depression and depression follows prosperity, that as soon as we have prosperity we find a great many people looking for an early collapse. But they have lost sight of the fact that a period of business prosperity does not collapse unless it is abused by reckless expansion, improper credit extension or in some other way any more than periods of depression come to an end before correctionary liquidation occurs to remove difficulties which stand in the way of active trade. To be sure, the current period prosperity will end some time, but as yet it gives no sign of recession nor are conditions indicative of recession prevalent.

We remarked last week that the stock market had given cause for renewed confidence. It continues to do so. While, up to the present writing, no great momentum has been engendered, the buying which has appeared since the November break appears to be of the best sort. There are many stocks which, in the vernacular of the street, do not look right. There are many others, however, which give every indication of excellent buying.

After a drastic reaction and some recovery, we find many stocks far below their recent highs and many others higher than before the reaction occurred. This testifies to the discriminative character of the market and the premium which is placed on selection. We believe the stock market situation to be inherently sound and that a great many stocks are in a position to be bought for a substantial profit.

Keeping the Peace

London New Statesman: (Unfavorable comment has been passed on the fact that, while Communist editors are imprisoned, Fascist disturbers of the peace are not prosecuted.) Now, the very existence of the Conservative Party depends on its recognizing its limitations. It has less to offer to the electorate than its opponents. Its first hope, therefore, lies in persuading the electorate that what it offers is surer and sounder. Its second hope lies in fostering the profound belief of Englishmen in "constitutionalism," and in presenting itself as the jealous and impartial guardian of law and order. If that idea is weakened, if Torvism is thought to mean the rule of a class by force, then the game will soon be up. It is not possible for the rich, the bourgeoisie, the "capitalist class"—call them what you will—to say, as they once could say: "Orderint dum metuant." The people of England are no longer afraid. Why should they be? They have votes; they have powerful political and industrial organizations; they have a growing confidence in themselves. They have even learned the use of arms. All that does not mean, of course, that they want violence; indeed they probably have a greater distaste for it than almost any other people in the world. But if they are provoked sufficiently they will respond.
