ABROAD WITH MR. MACKEY.

Mr. Florence's Travels with the American Millionaire—An Audience with the Pope at the Vatican.

Mr. Wm. J. Florence and Mrs. Florence arrived in New York on Wednesday from Europe in the steamship Bothnia. While away Mr. Florence spent a considerable time with Mackey, the millionaire, in travelling. When in Rome they had an audience with the pope, thus described by Florence:

"Did you have an audience with the pope?"

"Indeed we did. That is one of the great events of my life. It was a ceremonial audience extended to Mr. Mackey and myself, and we had fifteen or twenty minutes' talk with the pope."

On being pressed for details, Mr. Florence said: "We first received a large card of invitation, and at the appointed time Mons. Cataldi, the master of ceremonies at the vatican, called for us. They have a beautiful fourteenth century costume of black and yellow trunks and tabards. They had silver breastplates and wore helmets with flowing plumes. We were shown up a magnificent staircase to an antechamber, where we were met by several members of the household. Passing into another room, we met a Chinese bishop and a priest who were to have an audience after us. The bishop was a Frenchman by birth, but he had grown a pigtail and adopted Chinese dress. The priest was a native Chinaman, and it was a sight to see the rapt, earnest look on his face at the thought that he was soon to see, face to face, the head of the church. Monseigneur Cataldi now left us, but soon returned with the information that the pope was ready to see us. As the doors were thrown open we walked in through a file of the guard nobile, dressed in a blue uniform and wearing silver helmets. The pope was seated upon a throne in the middle of the room. We knelt before him, as is customary, kissing his hand, and he at once begged us to rise. There were several cardinals present, but as soon as we had been presented the guard and all retired, leaving us with the pope.

"Well, I have an eye for costume, and of course I noticed that. He wore a long, white cassock, of a stuff that looked like merino. It had a narrow binding of a pale rose color, and the buttons were of the same color. Over it he wore a white cape trimmed with down. He wore white silk stockings and white shoes, each with a golden cross upon it. On his head he had a white skull cap with a binding of pale rose tint. He had a white sash, and around his neck a heavy gold chain, from which hung a cross of diamonds and rubies."

In response to inquiries as to the details of the interview, Mr. Florence said: "He first asked me if I spoke Italian. I replied that I knew very little Italian. Then he asked me whether I spoke French, and whether Mr. Mackey did. I told him that I thought I could converse with him in French, and interpret to Mr. Mackey. He then welcomed us to Rome. He spoke about Mrs. Mackey and her deeds of benevolence, and of Mr. Mackey's charities. You know that Mr. Mackey sustains at Virginia City an asylum for the care of children. I told the pope about this, and he seemed very much pleased. I translated in French some remarks of Mr. Mackey as to how highly he appreciated the honor and privilege of the audience. The pope then said pleasantly, 'Now what about yourself?' I told him that I was a dramatic artist. 'Yes,' said he, 'Cataldi told me that. I hear that you have done something in connection with St. Agnes parish in New York city.' I said that that was a very small matter. He then said, 'Nothing is small that is done for the church of God.' I remarked to him in the course of the conversation that it seemed to me that the Catholic church was greatly increasing in the United States, from the fact that new churches were constantly going up. He said that of all countries in the world the people of the United States seemed to be most generous to the church. He spoke of the great prosperity of the American people, saying that they had good crops and favorable business, and those were evidences that God had blessed them because as a people they were charitable and religious. He did not make any distinction between Catholics and Protestants, but spoke of our people as a whole. In conclusion, he invited us to call and see him again, and gave us his blessing."

"How did he impress you as to his physical condition?"

"He was very thin, but said that he enjoyed good health. He happened to remark that he had been up till 2 o'clock that morning, and said that he had frequently to sit up till that hour to attend to the business of the church. I made some remark to the effect that I hoped that it would not be necessary for himself often to devote himself to such prolonged labors. He smiled and said that the few remaining years of his life could not be better employed than in the work of the church. I think he said that he had not been outside of the vatican for ten years. You know he was a member of the household of the late pope. I came away with the impression from what he said that he never expected to go outside the vatican again."

Garden Parties in London.

Garden parties have been the marked feature of the present season in London. Some fifty years ago the most celebrated garden parties were those given by the duke of Devonshire at Chiswick; by the duke of Northumberland, whose grounds from Northumberland house ran down to the river; by the duke of Buccleugh at Whitehall gardens, and by lady Holland at Holland house. Lady Peel, wife of Sir Robert Peel, then prime minister, gave one very brilliant garden party at his residence in Whitehall gardens. Lady Blessington gave assemblies at Gore house, but they were exclusively for men. The great heat of this summer has given special glory to the garden party.

INSURANCE.

INTEREST EARNINGS.

In selecting a company to which to entrust a life-long investment of the annual contribution necessary to insure your life, care should be taken to SELECT THE BEST in the matter of INTEREST EARNINGS. One brief hour devoted to an investigation on this point—one which no business man worthy of the name would overlook—has been the means of saving many thousands of dollars, and leading to a happy, life-long choice.

$100 invested at 4 per cent. per annum for 50 years, amounts to only $710 67, whereas at 7 per cent it yields $2,945 70.

In Canada there is great room for choice, the old country companies, as a rule, earning only about 4½ per cent., while the best companies usually earn about 7, and in some years more.

The following carefully compiled statement is from the sworn returns of Eleven Leading American Companies, for TEN YEARS past, and shows that there is much room for choice, even among the leading companies of this continent:—

COMPANIES.	Av'ge Am't of Assets at Int'rest during past 10 years.	Average Interest received Annually	Per cent. Interest received on Assets	Interest realized by Ætna in excess of that realized by other Co's on equal As'ts	Gain in ten years by the ÆTNA.
Ætna, of Hartford	$21,065,676	$1,454,145	6.95	.....	.....
Mutual Life, N.Y.	74,673,068	4,327,637	6.04	$192,[illegible]	$1,916,980
Connecticut Mut.	41,114,988	2,625,281	6.39	117,368	1,179,680
Mut. Benefit, N.J.	30,161,403	1,806,072	5.98	204,337	2,043,370
New York Life	28,671,322	1,730,280	6.03	193,804	1,938,040
Equitable, N.Y.	26,866,761	1,521,765	5.66	271,747	2,717,470
N. E. Mut. Life	13,224,581	794,408	6.01	138,017	1,380,170
Phœnix Mutual	9,438,915	607,490	6.44	107,435	1,074,350
Manhattan, N.Y.	9,173,572	580,572	6.33	130,607	1,306,070
Knickerbocker	7,099,714	361,432	5.09	391,822	3,918,220
Union Mutual	7,336,945	451,577	6.16	166,419	1,664,190

In other words, upon its average assets of $21,065,676, the ÆTNA LIFE has earned $1,916,980 more from Interest, in ten years, than the Mutual Life of New York or the New York Life; $2,717,470 more than the Mutual Life of Hartford; and $3,918,220 more than the Knickerbocker.

If the ÆTNA had earned only 4½%, as in the case of British companies, its Interest Earnings, and consequently its power of giving superior advantages to the insured would have been less by $516,109 per annum, or a total in the ten years of $5,161,090!

The ÆTNA LIFE'S receipts from Interest in 1880 were the handsome sum of $1,586,636. Those of a Scottish company, having larger Assets than the ÆTNA, were only $1,093,400. Difference of income from this source $493,236.

When insuring it is well to SELECT THE BEST medium. It costs less to be in a good company than in a poor one.
