THE IRISH QUESTION.

[To the Editor of the Chatham STAR.]

SIR,—In reply to an enquiry from a friend—a member of the French Canadian press recently at Ottawa—I undertook to "post" him upon the meaning of the "three F's" and the "British clauses" of the Irish Land Act of 1870. After having written to him I in order to assure myself of the correctness of the information I had given him, wrote to a reverend friend, a clergyman of the Church of England, asking him to look over my memorandum and set me right if I had either overstated the case or left anything unsaid. The following is a copy of the reverend gentleman's reply, for which I ask space in the columns of the STAR. I venture to say it is as perfect an exposition of the case as has yet been seen in print.

Yours truly,

M. F. W.

Quebec, January 24, 1881.

Quebec, January 21, 1881.

——, —January, 1881.

MY DEAR MR.—I have very great pleasure in acknowledging your letter and I am glad to think that our French-Canadian friends are interesting themselves in the affairs of our country.

It is such a length of time since I took anything like an active interest in politics that I have now very distinct recollection of the Act to which you make reference, but the circumstances are substantially as you have given them. Your explanation of the three F's" is what I should have given, altho' I fear I should hardly have succeeded in making the matter so plain.

Landlordism has crushed the best instincts of our country. It has converted a great people into the position and habits of serfs. It has assiduously cultivated scepticancy, feeding independence, it has distorted the character of a naturally generous and big-minded people converted them by the wildness of despair into the executioners of their own wrong. It has contributed largely to swell the volume of religious animosity and sectarian bitterness. For generations it has riveted the country with a rod of iron. Chief Justice Whiteside said on one occasion that Ireland was governed by "Lareom (the Under Secretary) and the Police;" had he said "Lareom and the Landlords" he would have been still nearer the mark. As a rule landlords (in Ireland) are not good better, best, but BAD, WORSE, WORST. When you use such terms as orphans, widows, homeless vagabonds, beggars on the highway, tyranny, oppression, rack rents, ruined families, the Emerald converted into a dark pall, homes blighted by a darker curse than that of Cain, children sent to house in a ditch"; "women in their confinement thrown on the wayside"; "dying men and women remorselessly taken from their beds that the hovels which sheltered them might be levelled"—these and such as these would be appropriate headings for some of the mildest chapters in Landlord history.

It is not much wonder that the cry of agony should pierce the Heavens from this long suffering people. In the world's history there is not a darker page of systematic tie—there may be found some equally bad, but none equally systematic—oppression, villany, and cold-blooded infamy than that fatenished by Landlordism in Ireland.

On one of the frosty mornings of this present winter, writes an esteemed Presbyterian clergyman, I met on the Queen's highway the son of one of the tenants on a well-known Ulster estate, a Roman Catholic, who holds a farm of some twenty acres (a nice size holding in Ireland) The boy had no shoes on his swollen feet, no stockings on his well-formed red legs, and through the openings in the rags he wore, I saw that he had no shirt on his body. Many of these tenants live, or rather exist, in strange habitations. The floors of the rooms in which they sleep are made of soft clay—so soft that the points of the nails of the brogue which presses it are plainly seen; and the exhalations from such floors mingling with the breath of the sleepers has, as its natural offspring, thousands of pale faces and horrid scenes of fevers of the most malignant type.

This is no fancy picture, my dear Mr. ——, and this be it remembered, in favoured Ulster; I speak from what I know and have seen. Roman Catholics and Protestants—Fenians and Orangemen—are alike interested in this matter. The most popular landlord is at heart a tyrant incapable of seeing beyond his class interest; therefore the remedy must be as radical as the disease; or, in other words; Landlordism must in some shape be abolished!

If Landlords could only get one hundredth part of what they have meted to their unfortunate tenants, their worst enemies might be ready to cry: enough.

God only knows the untold sufferings and the untold wrongs of the Irish peasant! The produce of his fields and the results of his industry have been squandered in the "shells" of London and at the gaming tables of the Continent, instead of going to feed and clothe the unfortunate mass children. No shoes—no stockings—no food—no comfort—no education—nothing but "pay your rent or the poor house!" But why weary you?

"And the Lord said I have surely seen the affliction of my people which are in Egypt, and have heard their cry by reason of their taskmaster! for I know their sorrows and I am come down to deliver them out of the hands of the Egyptians." The bondage of Egypt cost, if anything, milder than the serfdom of Ireland!

I am, my dear Mr. ——

Yours very truly,

Rest and comfort to the suffering.

Brown's Household Panacea has no equal for relieving pain, both internal and external. Its rapid pain relieving powers, sore throat, rheumatism, toothache, lumbago and any kind of pain or sore. It will most surely quieten the blood and heal, as its acting power is wonderful. Brown's Household Panacea, being acknowledged as the great pain reliever, and for double the strength of any other Liniment in the world, should be in every family handy for use when wanted as it really is the best remedy in the world for cramps in the stomach, pains and aches of all kinds, and is for sale by all druggists at 25 cts. per bottle.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The February Number of this favorite periodical is even more than usually interesting. The leading article 'Sport and Games in America,' by Oliver Johnson, has ten excellent illustrations of Winter outdoor sports. Another of the articles also fully illustrated, is entitled 'London Hospitals and Dispensaries,' by Janet E. R. Rees. 'Madagascar,' by Alvan S. Southworth. A Hunting Party in Florida, Moliere and his World, by H. Barton Baker. The first voyage around the World and A Shadow, by William Dougdale are full of interest and information. The serial, The Amber Witch, is continued and there are numerous short stories and sketches by popular writers of great merit. Among the many excellent poems, Angel Visits, by James Mackay, and A Dirge, by C. A. Burke are especially good. The miscellany, of which there is an abundance, embraces a variety of subjects, full of rare statistics of entertainment and instruction. Each number from its large size, 128 quarto pages and over 100 engravings, with a handsome colored frontispiece, has a subject in this number is, The Sick Child, from a painting by Dreyer. Single copies mailed at 25 cents each, the subscription price is $3, or $1 50 for six and $1 00 for four months, post-free. Address Frank Leslie's Publishing House, 53 55, & 57 Park Place, New York.
