The Holiest thing Alive.

However much men and nations may differ from one another on other subjects, in their estimates of the value of a mother they are singularly harmonious. The Kindergarten Magazine has collected a number of sayings of wise men, as well as a number of national proverbs, showing the almost universal adoration of motherhood. Some of them are:

A mother is a mother still, the holiest thing alive.—Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

A mother's love is the best of all.—West Africa and Hindoo.

A mother's love is the best love. God's love is the highest love.—German.

A mother is the divinity of infancy.—English.

A child must ask its mother whether it shall be a wise man or a fool.—W. L. Weems.

A mother's arms are made of tenderness, and children sleep soundly in them. Victor Hugo.

A mother's love will draw up from the depths of the sea.—Russian.

A mother's prayers, silent and gentle, can never miss the road to the throne of all bounty.—Henry Ward Beecher.

A mother's tenderness and caresses are the milk of the heart.—Eugene de Guerin.

A simple kiss from my mother made me a painter.—Benjamin West.

A witty mother—witless else her son. —Shakespeare.

All I am my mother made me. —John Quincy Adams.

All I am or can be I owe to my angel mother.—Abraham Lincoln.

Forget not the mother that fondled you.—Cingalese.

He that despises woman despises his mother—Sacred Books of India.

Heaven is at the feet of mothers.—Persian.

I am indebted to my father for living, but to my mother for living well.—Alexander the Great.

In this cold and hollow world no fount of deep, strong, deathless love save in a mother's heart.

It is the mother that makes the domestic hearth the nursery of heroes.—Daniel Webster.

AGONIZING PAINS.

Endured by Those who Suffer from Sciatica—A Victim Tells how to Obtain Relief.

Probably no trouble that afflicts mankind causes more intense agony than sciatica. Frequently the victim is utterly helpless, the least movement causing the most agonizing pains. Those who are suffering from this malady the following statement from Mr John Hayes, of Hayesville, York Co., N. B., will point the road to relief and cure. Mr Hayes says:—"For upward of twenty years I have suffered from weakness and pain in the back. Some four years ago my trouble was intensified by sciatica settling in my right leg. What I suffered seems almost beyond description. I employed three doctors but all to no purpose; I had to give up work entirely, and almost despaired of life. This continued for two years—years filled with misery. At this time I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and after using six boxes both the sciatica and the weakness in the back which had troubled me so long, were gone. I was again a well man and feeling fifteen years younger than before I began the pills. Nearly two years has passed since I discontinued the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and in that time no symptom of the trouble has shown itself. Under God I thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for what they have done for me."

Mr Hayes voluntarily testifies to the truth of the above statement before Elward Whoscad, Esq., J. P., and his statements are further vouched for by Rev. J. N. Barnes, of Stanley, N. B.

The Three Famed Blacks

Of the world are Diamond Dye Fast Black for Wool, Diamond Dye Fast Black for Cotton and Mixed Goods, and Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers. The results that each of these Blacks produce are marvellous and pleasing. Your faded and dingy dresses, jackets, capes, coats, pants, vests, hose, etc., that are now so useless and repulsive looking, can be made like new garments with the Diamond Dye Blacks. Your faded, rusty and dead looking silks and feathers are made new creations by using Diamond Dye Fast Black for Silk and Feathers.

Do not be deceived by bulky package dyes adulterated with grease and other foreign substances; insist upon your dealer giving you the Diamond Dyes, one packet of which will dye as much as three packets of any other make.

Here is a story told of the Princess of Wales. She was once shown through the museum of Scotland Yard, containing the photographs of countless rogues, and also some of the methods, scientific and legal, for tracing crime and for punishing it. "It is all very clever," said the kindly Princess, with a sigh; "but if the world were as anxious to discover and reward the good men as it is the bad, what a pleasant place it would be!"

Neighbor—I hear your husband has had his life insured for a large amount.

Mrs Surface—He has, has he? Just like him. Gone off and insured himself for a fortune, and he hasn't insured me for a penny.

Lucky for Her.—"Poor Mrs Gibbles can't hear more than half that her husband says to her."

"That's all right; she oughtn't to."

Customer (in hardware store)—Do you sell the Golden Rule?

Clerk—We don't even keep it.

Experiments in Total Abstinence.

It is not generally known that Field Marshal, Lord Wolseley, the British Commander-in-Chief, has instituted careful and exhaustive experiments with a view to ascertaining the relative effects of alcohol and of total abstinence upon the physical endurance and staying qualities of the troops. A writer in the Chicago Tribune gives an extended account of these experiments, which we summarize.

Advantage has been taken both of the annual manœuvres, as well as of the petty wars of which England has a few on hand in one part or another of the world almost all the time, to examine carefully the question. One regiment would be deprived of every drop of stimulant, while another belonging to the same brigade would be allowed to purchase as usual its malt liquors at the canteen, and a third, probably a Highland corps, would receive a sailor's ratibn of grog in the form of whiskey. In each instance the experiment went to show that, whereas at first the corps which had received an allowance of grog surpassed the others in dash and impetuosity of attack, yet that after the third or fourth day its members began to show notable signs of lassitude and a lack of spirit and endurance. The same manifestations, though in a minor and slower degree, were apparent in the regiments restricted to malt liquors, whereas the men who had been kept from every kind of stimulant increased in staying power, alertness and vigor every day.

The result of these experiments led the British war department to decide, not on the ground of principle, but solely for the sake of maintaining the powers of endurance of the troops now engaged in the Soudan campaign, not to permit a single drop of stimulant in camp save for hospital use. Spirits, wine, and malt liquors have been barred from the officers' mess table as well as from the regimental canteen, and from generals in command down to the drummer boys and the camp followers liquid refreshments have been restricted to tea and oatmeal water. Thanks to total abstinence, the men have been able to make forced marches of the most extraordinary character across the burning desert and under a blazing sun, the heat of whose rays can only be appreciated by those who have lived at the equator. Indeed, what aroused most admiration at the battle of Atbara was the calm and collected manner in which the Highland regiments advanced across the bullet-swept plain in front of the Dervish zereba, apparently just as free from undue excitement, and coolly keeping their formation with as much exactness as if they had merely been on the drill grounnd.

The British Admiralty has not yet followed the example of the United States, which has abandoned the daily grog ration, and prohibits the use of stimulants on board when at sea, but orders have recently been issued that, in lieu of double grog rations when going into action, not a drop of alcoholic liquor is to be allowed on the day when fighting is to be done. It is no longer fierceness, fury and reckless dash that are required of the men, but calmness and collectedness. In naval engagements there is little boarding to be done in these times of iron-clad warfare. Vessels are no longer armed with tier upon tier of small guns, some of the men-of-war of the early Victorian era having over a hundred of them. Modern battle-ships and cruisers are equipped with gigantic pieces, relatively few in number, but carrying projectiles of colossal weight over a range of several miles. It is no longer necessary to pepper the hull of a man-of-war full of small canon-ball holes in order to sink it. This can be achieved by one well-directed shot from any of the great guns with which the warship of the present day is armed. Everything depends, therefore, upon the precision of the gunnery, and the belligerent whose every shot carries home is practically certain to win the day. The marksmanship of Admiral Dewey's fleet at Manila seems to have been superior to that of which we have any record in the target practice of the English or Continental navies. Did abstinence from stimulants give Dewey's gunners the precision which enabled them to annihilate the Spanish fleet with the minimum of harm to our squadron because almost every projectile found its billet? Certain it is that a man who does not drink is more cool and collected, and therefore better able to shoot with precision than any one whose pulse is in the least quickened by a stimulant.

Rheumatism Banished Like Magic.

A Marvellous Statement—Relief from One Dose.

MR. E. W. Sherman, proprietor of the Sherman House, Morrisburg, Ont is known by thousands of Canadians, hence the following statement from Mr. Sherman will be read with great interest and pleasure. "I have been cured of rheumatism of ten years' standing in three days. One bottle of SOUTH AMERICAN RHEUMATIC CURE performed this most remarkable cure. The effects of the first dose of South American Rheumatic Cure were truly wonderful. I have only taken one bottle of the remedy, and now haven't any sign of rheumatism in my system. It did me more good than all the doctoring I ever did in my life."—5.

Scraps for Odd Moments.

Hazy—"Did you ever contribute to the press?"

Mary (blushingly)—"I have turned down the light sometimes."

Mrs Sweetface—"Is your daughter happily married?"

Mrs Sourface—"Indeed she is! She's got a husband who's as 'fraid as death of her."

"Always pay as you go," said Uncle Dudley.

"But, uncle, suppose I've nothing to pay with?"

"Then don't go."

Engraver—"Don't you think 'To my dear wife' a better inscription than 'To my dearest wife'?"

Customer—"Ordinarily, perhaps, but not when a fellow has his third one."

"My gal's learning to play 'The Anvil Chorus,'" said a south end farmer.

"Waal, I swan! That's something like. When I was up to your place last, she was thumpin on a pianner," replied the north end farmer.

Ma, can I go over to Sallie's house and play a little while?" asked 4 year-old Polly.

"Yes, dear. I don't care if you do."

"Thank you, ma," was the demure reply. "I've been."

"I hate to bother you, pa," said the small boy home for the holidays, "but really I'd like to know—"

"Well, what?"

"How is it that baby fish don't get drowned before they've learned to swim?"

"Never be critical upon the ladies," was the maxim of an old Irish peer remarkable for his homage to the sex. "The only way that a true gentleman ever will attempt to look at the faults of a pretty woman is to shut his eyes."

The Boy (grabbing his hat)—"I think I'll go, Gracie. I've been here two hours and you haven't smiled once."

The Miss (still grim visaged)—"Don't go, Archie. I'd smile all right enough only I'm having my front teeth upholstered."

Rural Reggie—"Why didn't yer tell de woman yer got wounded in de Spanish war?"

Tramping Tatters—"I did. Dat's what queered de game. She said she'd read de papers, and dere wasn't nobody wounded."

Minards Liniment Cures Colds, etc.

"Did you know I had taken to studying singing?"

"Why, no! How long since?"

"Began last night. I lay awake six hours trying to study out where a certain mosquito was going to light by listening to his voice."

"There's no use talking," said the broker, enthusiastically, "that young man has a genius for finance."

"Has he closed his deal?"

"Yes. He started in with a million dollars. And he'll have over five hundred thousand of it left."

"George," she said, in a nervous whisper, "you must give me time—you must give me time." "How long?" he hoarsely asked: "a day, a week, a month, a year?" "No—no, George," and she quickly scanned the sky; "only until the moon gets behind a cloud."

"How came you to suspect the prisoner to be a man in woman's clothing?" inquired the magistrate.

"I don't suspect," answered the detective; "as soon as I saw her try to lift her bonnet after she had met and passed another woman in the street, I simply knew she was a man."

An English bishop, as he was going about his diocese, asked the porter of a lunatic asylum how a chaplain whom he, the bishop, had lately appointed, was getting on.

"Oh, my lord," said the man, "his preaching is most successful. The hidiots henjoys it partickler."

Minards Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

"He was an honest young man, unused to the ways of society and making a call on one of the most stunning young ladies of the city. "How I love beauty!" she said. It seems to me I would almost give any worldly possession in exchange for beauty."

"Don't mind if you're not handsome, he replied. "It's much better to be kind and good."

Then he went home wondering what had given him a chill."

Old ladies from the east who come visiting in Montana do not understand the complicated methods of getting ore transformed from mountains to silver spoons or something like that, for here is what one of them said:

"And that is silver ore, is it?" said the old lady, as she examined a curious looking bit of mineral.

"Yes," said her husband.

"And how do they get the silver out?"

"They smelt it."

"Well, that's queer," she said, applying her nose to the ore. "I smelt it, too, but I didn't get any silver."

He was old, she was young and withal fair, and more withal businesslike. They stood together at the altar, he almost palsied with excitement or drink, and she cool, calm, statuesque. They got to that part of the marriage ceremony where he said:

"With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

"Did you make a list of them?" she asked in a quiet voice, every tone of which was heard in that dark old church.

"Hush, hush!" said the clergyman.

"Pardon me," she said, "but either he reads out the schedule and lets every one present know the value I set on myself or this business is off." And she waited.
