Can't Find Place To Board Teacher; School Shuts Up

Farmwives Near Southwold Have No Time To Attend To Boarder.

ST. THOMAS, Sept. 11.—Owing to the fact that there is no farmer within a reasonable distance of the Southwold school who will board the teacher of that institution, the trustees have found it necessary to close up the school. The teacher is employed with the understanding that the trustees will provide her with a suitable boarding-house within reasonable distance of the school. This year the farmers' wives are all busy at farming, and they have stated that they can find no time to look after a boarder. The actual result is that there is no means of boarding the teacher.
