NEW OUTFIELDER TO JOIN LEAFS TODAY

Outfielder Monicker, from Waco, Texas, will join the Toronto Club today. He is said to be fast and a good hitter. He will likely be used in one of the games today.

Jack Warhop, veteran pitcher, is about to leave us. Friend Jack has been offered a good job in his home town, and will leave in a few days.

Anderson will not go on the road with the Leafs. He has been playing with a very sore ankle, and will be allowed to rest it up. The Leafs are now well fixed for outfielders.

Pitcher Lewis, late of the Texas League, will pitch today.

Syracuse, N.Y.—Michael Regan of Phoenix, N.Y., pitcher for the Cincinnati Nationals, yesterday was placed in the next draft contingent to leave his district. Regan will probably go to camp some time between July 22 and 27.

The $60,000 indebtedness of the St. Louis Nationals was raised at a meeting of stockholders of the club yesterday afternoon. The stockholders had until midnight to raise $44,000, as $16,000 had previously been pledged.

Mrs. Helen H. Britton, former owner of the team, will receive $40,000 of the amount as part payment for the club that was purchased for $350,000. She had previously been paid $185,000 of the amount.

LACROSSE

Owing to neither Scarboro Beach Athletic grounds or Kew Gardens being available on Saturday afternoon the opening game of the O.A.L.A. junior series between Maitlands and Beaches was postponed and will be played on Wednesday instead, at Scarboro Beach, starting at 7 p.m. sharp. The game when played should prove to be a rattling good exhibition of Canada's national game, as both teams have been practicing faithfully for some time past. The Maitlands, under the guidance of Scotty Mitchell, who just returned from France a few months ago, should have an exceptionally strong team this year, as nearly all last year's strong junior and championship juvenile team are available, besides several new boys who have thrown in their lot with the popular north end club. Beaches will be minus five of last year's champions, as Johnston and Pickering have both enlisted and are now stationed at Petawawa with the battery boys, while Jack Aggett, the popular U.T.S. hockey player, is helping to do his bit by working on a farm this summer. Besides these three Richardson and Red Cubbitt are both over the junior age limit and will likely try for a place on Beaches senior team this year, should the proposed three-team group of Aurora, Riverdales and Beaches go thru. Altho Beaches juniors will not be as strong as last year, still Coach Eddie Longfellow and Manager "Red" Parliament are both confident of retaining their hard won laurels, as Kay, Reeves, Robertson, Deniard and Meisal, of last year's juvenile team, are all showing good form in practice, while Oakley, altho new to the game this year, bids fair to be a star. Besides the above it is likely that "Duly" Withers, who played with Riverdale seniors last year, will be back with his former team mates this year, and his experience should help the boys go a long way towards landing another championship.

It is likely that the new O.A.L.A. midget series will be opened on Tuesday night at Cottingham Square, with a game between Beaches and Maitlands. Manager Higgins, of Beaches, has been busy the last few nights digging up a team from the school boys around the beach, and is confident of developing several future greats from the team he has lined up.

This Town Clerk Said Something to Parson Who Objected to Sunday Ball

W. J. Thorold writes from London, England: As a native and resident of Toronto, and as a reader of The Toronto World every morning when I am in my home city, it has occurred to me that you would be interested in reading the enclosed paragraph from The London Evening Standard of June 22 on the question of Sunday games. The paragraph reads as follows:

Sunday Baseball Upheld.—A letter protesting against a military baseball match being played at Hythe on Sunday having been written to the Hythe Town Council by the Rev. A. G. Lloyd, Wesleyan minister, a trenchant reply has been addressed to Mr. Lloyd by the town clerk (Mr. B. C. Drake) on the instructions of the town council. The town clerk says: "The council has no sympathy whatever with your objection or protest, nor does the council consider the playing of baseball or any similar clean, manly and healthy sport, any desecration or misuse of the sacred day of Sunday, or the slightest harm to the highest principles of religion."

Scott Perry Wins Two; His Own Hitting Helped

At New York (American.)—Woods' home run enabled Cleveland to break the tie score in the eighth inning and defeat New York yesterday by a score of 5 to 3. It was Woods' fourth straight hit of the game and his fourth home run on the New York grounds this season. New York batted Coveleskie for three runs in the first inning on three singles and Pratt's triple, but Cleveland kept plugging away and tied the score in the 7th inning. Second Baseman Wambsganss and Catcher O'Neill of Cleveland were ordered out of the game in the first and second innings, respectively, for disputing decisions by Umpire Owens. The score:

Batteries—Coveleskie, O'Neill and Thomas; Finneran, Robinson and Hannah.

At Boston—Boston, with Mays holding Chicago to five hits, defeated the visitors, 3 to 1 yesterday, making it two out of three for Boston for the series. Singles by Strunk, Schang, Scott and Whiteman, together with Danforth's wild throw, gave Boston three runs in the fourth. Scott and E. Collins played brilliantly. No Boston outfielder had a fielding chance. Score:

Boston	0	0	0	3	0	0	0	0	*	—3	7	1

Batteries—Danforth and Jacobs; Mays and Schang.

At Philadelphia—Scott Perry was the winning pitcher in both games yesterday, Philadelphia beating St. Louis 5 to 3 and 6 to 4. In the first game he relieved Gregg after the Browns tied the score in the seventh, and not only held the visitors safe, but drove in two runs in the 8th by hitting a single with the bases full. Gardner's triple in the fifth with two on bases helped to win the second game for the Athletics. Scores—

First game—										R.	H.	E.
St. Louis	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	—3	8	1
Philadelphia	0	0	0	0	3	0	0	2	*	—5	12	0

Philadelphia	1	0	0	0	3	0	0	2	*	—6	13	2

Batteries—Rogers, Houck and Nunamaker; Perry and Perkins.

At Washington—Washington-Detroit, played yesterday.

POOR LENA BLACKBURNE HELPED, BUT NOT ENOUGH

At Pittsburg (National)—Home runs by Southworth and Bigbee were the features of yesterday's Pittsburg-Brooklyn game, which went to the locals, 6 to 5. Mack Wheat's error contributed to the defeat of the visitors, who gave the better exhibition of hitting. Cutshaw and Daubert made two wonderful catches by leaping high in the air for line drives. The score:

Pittsburg	1	0	2	0	1	0	0	2	*	—6	8	0

Batteries—Marquard and *M. Wheat; Mayer and Schmidt.

At Cincinnati—Three hits and a wild pitch by Toney in the third inning gave New York two runs and the second game of the series. Sallee pitched brilliantly thruout. Cincinnati escaped a shut-out in the fourth, when Chase singled, went to third on Griffith's hit, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Blackburne. Score:

Batteries—Sallee and Rariden; Toney, Jacobus and Allen.

At Chicago—Chicago-Philadelphia, rain (two games tomorrow).

At St. Louis—St. Louis-Boston, played yesterday.

DOUBLE-HEADER AGAIN TODAY.

The important series with Rochester, on which depends second place in the new International League race, ends today with another double-header. This series has attracted unusual attention, not only because second place is at stake, but because the fans can depend upon it that Manager Arthur Irwin of the Hustlers has his boys right on edge any time they meet Toronto. This is ladies' day, and as usual the fair sex will be admitted without charge. Both the Rochester and Toronto teams leave tonight to open series in the east. Reserves seats and admission tickets are on sale at Moodey's.

LEAR STOLE HOME; WINNING THE GAME

Leafs Owe Both Victories to the Excellent Playing of the King.

By Ida L. Webster.

Yesterday the Leafs won two games, thanks to King Lear, and to him only, because he was absolutely and undoubtedly the cause of both victories. In the last battle he pulled off a stunt, which is not done successfully once in two years in any league, that is when he stole home with the bases full and two out in the ninth inning. You of course have read of just such miracles, but it is a safe bet that you have very seldom seen one performed.

All day Lear appeared o be in the pink, and the first trip us, he walloped out a home run with Wagner on. This same hit was probably the longest which has ever been made in the park. In any case it is a cinch that there is no one playing the game today who could crack out a better one. Also in the field he was on his toes, and altho he is credited with an error, yet it was a most excusable one, because he made it on one of those apparently easy plays which are usually the hardest to handle. He also made a very poor peg to Purtell, which was extremely high, but this sort of thing coming from Lear is quite pardonable, owing to his arm, and in any case he was not officially branded with the play, but the error was given to Billy.

Wagner was given an error in the early stages of the first game, and he, too, may be excused, because this particular ball was the hottest baby of the day, and when Joe went after it he was merely attempting to block a hit. However, according to all the rules of the game he must be given an end column mark on it. In the first game he had two nice hits, one for two bases, and his work around short was excellent. He also made two or three dandy stops of very hard hit balls.

Heitman Good.

Whitehouse is the other Leaf to be branded with the error stick, and his fumble was made on what looked like a very easy one. However, it will be noticed that Whitey never makes mistakes with really difficult plays, but always on the ones which appear so very easy, and most unfortunately he comes in for a lot of tough censoring in this manner, which personally we think is in many cases somewhat undeserved. He had a hit in the second game, but failed to connect for a base issue in the first contest. However, he is not the only one, because only three of the Toronto players were able to solve the mystery of the first nine innings, and they were Lear, Wagner and Onslow.

And now for the real story of how it all happened. Well, first of all, Heitman, who, as you must know, is Arthur Irwin's boy wonder, started to do his worst against the Leaflets, and incidentally it might be said that what he did manage to do was quite sufficient now and forever. He was sending them up to those Toronto beauties and with the exception of the afore-mentioned trio, not one of them knew what it was all about, but even so, it was an excellent game. In fact, quite one of the best which have been played on the home grounds this season. Heitman was great, and, when one says that, there is nothing more left to say, because that youngster is a regular big league artist, so that when he is going good you may imagine what it means. However, Lear also was great, and, in fact, so great was he that he grabbed the old home run which did the trick. Aside from his two hits, and Wagner's two, there was nothing for us to write home about, unless it might be the excellent support which was dished up behind Herche.

As for the Toronto pitcher, he could have been a lot better, but he pitched a fairly good game, which gradually improved as time went on, and he had enough time to quit he was going very well, indeed. Dan caughth him, and, as usual, he had the effect of holding him both up and down, and, as was said in the earlier stages of this monolog, the men behind also did their bit. The result was that the Leafs nabbed the first game with a one-run margin, and thankful they must have been for it, because, had Lear fallen down on that high ball which he stopped so wonderfully, it would have been all off with the works.

In the second game, Heitman once more appeared, and got under way for Rochester, with O'Neill catching him. This was the player whom Howley let out a few days ago, but, from his work yesterday, it cannot be said that we got the worst of the bargain, because, altho the kid is fast on his feet, and very active, he is not a knockout when it comes to being a backstop. He has a very poor throw to the bases, and also a bad habit of getting back into position before he makes a shot. In this way he let a man get second even after he had called for a pitch-out. At the bat he did not shine in any way, altho he did have the misfortune of taking a wild wallop at the old apple, only to have it a foul; but, aside from that, his attempts were somewhat feeble.

They Are All Great.

Brady is a peach of a ball player, as are all the rest of the gang; in fact, they have more pep, than any tribe which has visited the island, and yesterday it seemed as tho they had more than on their last invasion, which at that time certainly looked like enough for any one set of bat-boxing artists.

The kid, Reeves, in right, will some day make a real name for himself, and it would not be possible for him to get his learning from a better teacher than the one whom he now has. It would be impossible to pick out one player from another, to say that he was good, because they all act alike, and their acting is the brand which wins ball games.

Justin was Howley's choice for the second game, with Sisher catching, and, altho he only allowed three hits, he did not have very good control, and it was his two wild pitches which allowed one run to score, but Heitman was touched up for five bingles, and then, in the eighth inning, he mixed up with Joe and was knocked out for a few seconds; also he was forced to retire from the game. Brogan replaced him, and it was then the damage was done. Undoubtedly, had the former been able to stick, the result would have been different.

Callahan was in the game yesterday, and he sizes up like a very good ball player; of course, it must not be overlooked that he is laboring under rather unfair conditions, as he has just arrived from a completely different climate, and it will take him a few days to accustom himself to the change. Reilley played a good game in the field, cutting off a couple of whacks which appeared to be labeled right thru, taking it all around, yesterday's games were real exhibitions of baseball, and had the umpiring been at all passable everything would have been lovely, but, as it was, there is nothing to say, for the simple reason that it is not permissible to say anything bad enough to suit the case.

In answer to a letter from "M. N. A.," we do not know just where Wagner originated, but he spends his winters in Harlem; however, outside of that one affliction, he is a very nice man. Have no idea whether he is married, but will make enquiries immediately. Address him to the ball club. Lear is in the draft age. He also is a New Yorker. He is usually singing, so we imagine that he is not either the proud possessor of a wife or the father of a family, but will enquire as to his state of life for you. Fisher comes from Buffalo. You may obtain a schedule from the business office of the club at the island. No need of thanks, because you have not caused us any trouble. Try it again, some time.

DOUBLE VICTORY PUT OUR DAN HOWLEY'S LEAFS ON RUNG TWO

Heitman Tried to Beat Locals Twice, But Nosed Out Each Time—Lear Responsible for the Two Victories With a Homer and Steal of Home.

Who said Blue Monday? "There ain't no such animal." Dan Howley will vouch for this statement. His boys had the time of their young lives Monday afternoon. Arthur Irwin blew in with his Rochester finds full of scrap, but the Leaflets went them one better and trounced them in both ends of the double bill. The score was 3 to 2 in each engagement, and both contests were red-hot arguments from the drop of the hat.

King Lear likes Monday. The sterling young athlete was in his very best form yesterday, and Howley can thank the King for both victories. Lear was responsible for the first fixture with a mammoth homer and a double. Lear stole home with the winning run in the ninth in the second game.

Heitman tried the iron-man stuff. He twirled a nice article in the opening heat and came right back for more in the second. His work here was above the average, but our Hal Justin went him one better and Heitman retired in the eighth, when he took Wagner's throw on the neck at second base.

Justin just allowed three hits in the second game. Herche hung his usual sign on the Irwinites in the opening dash. The double win put us safely in second place.

Toronto won the first game, 3 to 2, in one of the most closely contested affairs of the year. The pitching was gilt-edge, with Herche and Heitman splitting the honors. The visitors got more hits than the locals, but the Leafs made theirs count. King Lear was the big noise. His homer in the first round started the Leafs on the right road, and he came over with the winning run himself when he doubled in the fourth.

The Leafs backed up Herche with grand fielding and more pepper was displayed than in any other fixture this year. Anderson rested his ankle and Callahan, the new outfielder from the Texas League, performed in centre field. Whitehouse moved over to right field. Callahan did not do any clubbing in this fixture, but left it for later in the afternoon.

Lear, Wagner and Onslow were the only ones that could hit Heitman's pitching, and they did it so well that the others could afford to fall down. Lear supplied a homer and a double and Wagner helped himself to a double and a single. Onslow cut in with only one hit, but it meant a run.

Umpire Lewis was in hot water thruout the whole game. He was sadly off in his judgment and both teams had plenty of cause to complain. It looked at times as if serious trouble would break out over some of his decisions.

Heitman had considerable luck, for his team mates got him a run in the opening inning and there was a lot of luck attached to it. Kolseth doubled and scored when Wagner booted Reeves' roller.

Lear put the Leafs in front in their half. Wagner singled and then Lear came thru with the longest home run drive of the season. The ball fell into the bleachers well down centre field. The big crowd gave him a hearty hand.

A single and a triple tied it up again in the fourth. Then the Leafs went right to work and won it again in their half. Lear doubled, a screaming hit down the left field foul line. Purtell flew out and then Onslow popped the hit to centre to score the run.

A lot of excitement was crammed into the remaining innings, but no score resulted. The Leafs cut off a grand chance for Irwin in the seventh with a double play, and repeated the dose in the ninth.

The Leafs captured the second game by the same score, 3 to 2, and King Lear was again the bright, shining light. The second-sacker stole home with the winning run in the ninth. Heitman elected himself for duty in this game also, and went well, but was forced to retire when he took Wagner's throw on the back of the neck at second base in the eighth inning on an attempted double-play. Brogan finished the game, and it was while he was winding-up in the ninth that Lear stole.

Justin was in his very best form, and the visitors were let down with three widely-scattered hits. It was another up-roaring contest, with the interest at fever-heat until Lear stole home with the winning run. The Leafs gathered five hits, and a total of ten off Heitman in the two games.

Heitman again had the breaks early, and, with the Leafs unable to connect at the right time, the two-run lead secured by the Hustlers in the first four innings looked big. Their first came in the second, and it was a gift. With two down, Menze walked, stole, and scored when Lear let O'Neill's roller get away from him.

The second and last Rochester run was another cheap one. Estes singled in the fourth, was sacrificed to second, moved up to third on a wild pitch, and Justin supplied another wild heave to let him score.

This made the Leafs mad, and they went right after the Hustlers. In our half of the fifth Dan's boys gathered themselves two runs. Onslow doubled, and Callahan made himself solid with a screaming double to count Onslow. A balk let Callahan to third. Fisher and Justin fanned, but Kolseth messed up Reilley's roller and Callahan scored.

Heitman was hurt in the ninth. He singled and was forced at second by Menze. Heitman got in the way of Wagner's throw to try and complete the double-play. Heitman took the count and retired from the game.

Brogan went to the mound for Rochester in the Leafs' ninth. Walsh booted Whitehouse's roller. Lear walked, but Purtell forced Whitehouse at third. Onslow fanned and Callahan walked to fill the bases. Lear stole home with something to spare while Brogan was winding-up to give Fisher a curve. It was a great ending to a thrilling game.

Callahan looked a high-class performer in this game. He stepped into the ball nicely and grabbed off two short line drives back of second in nice fashion.

Catcher O'Neill looked very handy behind the bat for Rochester.

Hank Gowdy Learning To Gas the Germans

Ed Reulbach, former big league pitcher, who is now associated with the Submarine Boat Capacity, is in receipt of a letter from Hank Gowdy, former Boston Brave, who has been "doing his bit" in France for some time.

The letter, first published in Speed Up, the official weekly publication of the submarine corporation, elicits the news that Gowdy is being schooled in the use of gas and is acting as a non-commissioned officer in that division. He enlisted in the artillery. The letter follows:

"We have been kept busy, and we have been at the front now just about four months. Just returned from gas school. Am acting as regular gas non-commissioned officer, and it's very interesting. A Boche plane was brought down here yesterday. It was on fire, and two Germans just about burned up. One of them jumped out. The club (meaning Boston) is going bad and in last place, according to the Paris paper. I hope they do not stop baseball, because it would sure hurt the game, and, another thing, the people need it. But some of the fellows that are of age should enlist. I cannot understand how they can stand back. By the way, give my regards to Arthur Irwin. He is a fine fellow."

Soon after the United States became involved in the war Hank tossed aside his catcher's back and glove and enlisted with an Ohio regiment.

He was among the first big league stars to answer his country's call. Before he left for France he held a sergeant's commission, and, judging from his letter to Reulbach, he is on his way to higher honors. He has been "over the top" and has been recommended for bravery.
