CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

ONTARIO PULMONARY INSTITUTE.

125 CHURCH STREET, TORONTO, ONT.

M. Hilton Williams, M.D., M.C.P.S.O.,

Proprietor,

Who personally receives patients at the Institute for the cure of all the various diseases of the Head, Throat and Chest, including the Eye, Ear and Heart. We treat all diseases of the breathing organs by the inhalation system of practice, which is acknowledged by all physicians and people to be the only system by which these diseases can be cured. In consequence of the fearful mortality at present from throat and lung diseases, we present the following letter on

CHRONIC BRONCHITIS.

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the mucous membrane of the bronchial tubes, and is one of the most common of the pulmonary affections. Chronic bronchitis more often occurs later in life. When a cold settles on the lungs, the disease either ends in bronchitis or pneumonia. If it ends in bronchitis, it usually passes off as a cold in the chest, and still the patient does not feel entirely well. He feels tired and languid, and is incapable of taking his usual amount of exercise, and experiences a shortness of breath, with more or less warmth in the palms of his hands. Soon after this a cough appears, accompanied by an expectoration of thick mucus, followed by a hectic flush, loss of flesh and strength and night sweats continue, when the patient assumes all the appearance of having a genuine case of consumption. But this is simply catarrh of the lungs or chronic bronchitis.

In the latter stage of the disease, the mucous membrane of the larger bronchial tube softens, while in the smaller tubes and air cells of the lungs the mucous membrane becomes congested and inflamed. There are no cavities or tubercles in the lungs, but merely a wasting away of the larger bronchial tubes, and death takes place from the obstruction of the bronchial tubes and air cells of the lungs. The patient dies from exhaustion and suffocation, being unable to expectorate the mucus which accumulates in the passage leading to the lungs, which in some cases is sticky and small in quantity, but more commonly copious, of a light straw or yellowish green. Oftentimes streaks of blood make their appearance in the mucus, and at times there is a disagreeable smell. Persons thus afflicted are very liable to take a cold, at which time the mucus becomes clear and frothy, and it is not uncommonly the case that the patient dies in one of those attacks.

By this system of Medicated Inhalation, thousands of cases are cured after all hope of cure is past. And thousands are to-day living witnesses of the very fact.

If possible, call personally for consultation and examination, but if impossible to do so, write for list of questions and Medical Treatise. Address
