LOCAL SUMMARY.

ATHENS AND NEIGHBORING LOCALITIES BRIEFLY WRITTEN UP.

Events as Seen by Our Knight of the Pencil.—Local Announcements Rolled Right Down.

House to lot on Reid street. Apply to G. W. Brown.

The Rev. J. E. Thurlow, of Delta, will occupy the pulpit of the Methodist Church on Sunday next.

The series of revival services now being held in the Baptist Church are largely attended every evening.

The trotting stallion "Young Warrior" was sold under a chattel mortgage on Friday last, by auctioneer Dowsley. Frank Clow was the purchaser, at $425.

On Saturday evening last Mr. John Wiltse entertained the members of the choir of the Methodist Church (and their husbands and wives) at a sugar party. A very pleasant social evening was spent.

The band treated our citizens to an open air concert on Thursday evening. Their music was much enjoyed and appreciated by a large number of promenaders. The band is an organization of which the villagers should feel proud.

An excellent programme is being prepared for the public entertainment of the High School Literary Society next Friday evening. Besides readings, recitations, songs, duets, and instrumental music, the first number of the High School Journal will be read. To defray current expenses, a silver collection will be taken at the door. Doors open at 7.30; concert at 8.

The Rev. Mr. Wilson announced on Sunday last that owing to the continuance of the special services in the Baptist Church, the special services in the Methodist Church would be deferred. In making the announcement the reverend gentleman asked the members of his flock to show their brotherly kindness by attending the Baptist meetings as often as they possibly could.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed at the Presbyterian Church Sunday evening. The Rev. J Pullar, pastor, preached an eloquent and practical discourse from the words "But we see Jesus," found in Hebrews. ii. 9. The address preliminary to the sacrament was very impressive, and all present were affected by the deep solemnity of the simple Presbyterian ceremony.

Dr. W. P. Chamberlain, assisted by his father and Dr. McLaughlin, performed two critical surgical operations on Tuesday. The operations consisted in removing parts of the bone, and are said to be much more difficult than amputation. Dr. W. P. spent the winter in the New York hospital getting points in surgery and these operations were performed according to the latest scientific method and the patients, Messrs. King and Weaver, are doing well.—Morrisburg Herald.

THE MODERN GOTHAM.

Interesting Letter from New York. Its General Features.

All who are interested in the prosperity of their native town and its institutions must hail with pleasure the success of the publishing industry of Athens. Your lively paper is one of the best proofs that Athens can hold up, to demonstrate that she is wide-awake and bound to develop in every branch of art and literature. Long have her educational institutions shed a lustre over Eastern Ontario. Within these two branches must be generated the steam that shall utilize her natural resources. Her unlimited building capacity, her natural resources, her resorts, her energetic citizens, her well managed institutions, the purity of her surroundings, and the deep religious spirit which actuates so many of her children, are all living germs which must, in the very nature of things, develop into a healthy and flourishing corporation. But, as the growing child requires great care, so each citizen should be ever on the alert to guard her growing interests, that in every department a full, natural development may result. Deep and wide has the foundation been laid for the future Athens, and we, her offspring either by birth or adoption, even at a distance look with pride upon her continued progress. You will pardon, I hope, Mr. Editor, this long preamble; the feelings which actuated it arose spontaneously, and patriotism is almost too strong an emotion to curb.

New York city is built upon an island situated in the mouth of the Hudson river. Jersey City lies to the west and Brooklyn to the east of New York proper, the separation being made by the two branches of the Hudson.

Crossing the East River is Brooklyn Bridge, one of the wonders of the age. The middle span is half a mile long, and its cable towers are elevated away above the two vast cities, and afford a view almost unequalled in America. To and fro thousands of human beings are passing daily, either on foot or in the cars, elevated 135 feet above the level of high water. Away beneath, the river is dotted with sea going vessels, ferry boats, river steamers, tug boats and craft of every description.

The island on which New York is built is 18½ miles long by about a mile wide. The whole island is now a mass of buildings, ranging in height from one to eight stories. The business portion of the city is situated on the lower end of the island. Here the streets are very irregular, being both crooked and short, and to a stranger very confusing. The upper part of the town, where all the business men reside who live in the city, is just the reverse. The streets there cross each other at right angles. There are thirteen avenues, which run nearly the whole length of the city. Four of these have elevated railways, over which regular trains pass every few moments. About every fourth street there is a station built up above the streets, leading up to which are covered staircases. To a stranger it seems odd to see trains packed with people gliding along in mid air, but he soon finds that by the aid of the elevated roads he can rapidly pass from one part of the city to another.

Fifth Avenue is noted for the magnificence of its private residences and for its grand churches; Broadway, for its mercantile establishments, and Wall street, for its stock exchanges and vast financial operations. These three streets are the most widely known, as representing the social and commercial features of this great metropolis of the United States.

THE SCOTT ACT.

[Communications for this Department must be short and to the point.]

Open Letter.

To J. P. Wiser Esq., distiller, of Prescott, and all others who are concerned in promoting the repeal of the Canada Temperance Act in Leeds and Grenville:

GENTLEMEN—By signing, circulating and forwarding to the Hon. the Secretary of State of Canada a petition to his Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, in Council, praying that the votes of the electors of Leeds and Grenville may be taken for and against the revocation of an order-in-council, according to which the Canada Temperance Act is now in force in the said united counties, you have raised the burning question as to whether the traffic in intoxicating liquors is worthy the endorsation of the elector of these counties.

This is therefore to inform you that a series of public meetings is now being held at which it is strongly asserted, and, as we believe, proven, that the business you uphold and for which you seek the sanction of law is unworthy the support of the electors, being opposed to the moral and material interests of the commonwealth.

And this is further to invite and challenge any of you, your agent or agents, to come before the electors at our meetings, and to discuss the question upon its merits, as becometh free and responsible citizens, in a fair and dispassionate manner.

I will be happy to have your favorable reply, and to arrange that you may have the full opportunity of establishing the claims of your traffic, if any, to public confidence and regard.

Assuring you, gentlemen, that the supporters of the Scott Act are willing to abide by the results of such discussion, crystallized in a free and independent ballot, I remain yours sincerely, S. D. CROWN, President of Scott Act Association Leeds & Grenville.

Spencerville, March 23rd.
