Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE. The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city ionary in New York, and broth of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1862.

Messras. J. C. Ayer & Co., Gentlamen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite in above-named disorders. My appetite was short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were aloc cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, in 'il it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I stribute these results to the use of the Sarsaparrilla, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Your respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER's SARSA-PARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising med vitality. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scropu-lous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheu-matism, Cutarrh, General Debility, and all ude of all right thinking men. Saved by an Albatross. A singular story, says the Sidney Telegraph, has been related to us by which arrived from London last Satur day. On the 22nd of last month while the vessel was in latitude 42 de grees south and longitude 90 degrees east, a seaman fell overboard, from the starboard gangway. The barque was scudding along with a rough sea and moderate wind, but the alarm of 'man overboard" being given she was rounded to, and the starboard ife-boat was lowered, manned by the chief officer and four men. A search for the unfortunate man was made, but owing to the roughness of the sea he could not be discovered; but the oat steered to the spot where he was last seen. Here they found him floating, but exhausted, clinging for dear ing, but exhausted, chinging for deal life to the legs and wings of a huge albatross. The bird had swooped down on the man while the latter was struggling with the waves and atstruggling with the waves and atstruggling with its nower. tempted to peck him with its powerful beak. Twice the bird attacked its prey unsuccessfully, being beaten off tross,—both greedy and insatiable, For the third time the huge white form of the bird hovered over the seaman, preparatory to a final swoop. The bird, eager for its meal, fanned its victim with its wide spread wings. Suddenly a thought occurred to him that the huge form so close to his face might become his involuntary rescuer. Quick as thought he reached up and seized the bird, which he proceeded to strangle with all his might. The huge creature struggled with wings and paddles to free itsel: In the contest the sailor was beaten black and blue, and cruelly lacerated. bird quivered and died. The carcasfloated lightly on the waves, its feathers forming a comfortable support for the exhausted man, who had so nar rowly escaped a lingering death. But another danger awaited him. He was not much of a swimmer, and the excitement of the extraordinary conflict began to tell upon him. He was faint and grew giddy. But with one arm around the albatross's body, under the wing, and one hand clutching the bird's feet, the sailor awaited his around the albatross's body, under the wing, and one hand clutching the bird's feet, the sailor awaited his

Our Washington Letten. (From Our Regular Correspondent.) WASHINGTON, Dec. 17, 1883 The National Capital is now in holiay attire. The streets are gav with erry throngs of shoppers in warm, bright colors that lend an added charm to the clear winter atmosphere which seems to infuse a spirit of felicity into everyone. The air is full of the sup-pressed murmur of gift secrets that will burst forth into full bloom on Christmas morning. Pennsylvania Avenue is transformed from a homeward channel for Government clerks, and a fashionable promenade, into a live, busiling, crowded thoroughfare nown which, at the noon hour of the lay, you must almost elbow your way hrough a bright and busy multitude. But it is a real pleasure, for one fond of the beautiful, to walk on this broad ousiness and political centre these surny afternoons during shopping nours. If he is not charm beautiful matrons and belies of Washington society, who find recreation from their social duties in this Christmas shopping, he will at least be atracted by the glitter of the shop win dows. It is in these windows that the stir in the pulses of trade is most manifest. Art has been spent to supplement the attractions of commerce autil it is hard to tell which it is that exercises the most potent temptation -the artistic design and arrangement, or the flush of colors, the sheen of satin, and the shimmer of silk. The holiday season at the Capital seems to begin earlier every year, and never before in the history of Washington have the stores glowed with such wealth, such delicacy of fabrics, such mingled harmony of beauty and use

Washington is fast absorbing the best social element of all the leading cities, and all section's of the country send their fair representatives—ladies who are distinguished in society here for their elegant manners, many for fications, their womanly attributes, and their virtues. Since the election of Mr. Carlisle to the speakership, the latest incursion in social circles has been from the Blue Grass region. One would be surprised at the number of Kentucky's daughters now at the Capital. They are of course led by Mrs. Carlisle and Mrs. Beck, the latter a grand-niece of George Washington, and I could recall a long list which would almost consume my space. It is said that Kentucky leads all the other States, excepting New season, and first among these is the pleasant prospect that the rather vulby the desperate sailor, battling with gar profusion of food and general by the desperate sallor, batting with two enemies,—the water and the alba-dinner parties for some seasons past will shortly give way to more simple bills of fare and severer but more truly elegant style in the manner of serving and decorations, floral and otherwise. There is one condition of society at he Capital in which reform is much meeded but for which there is no preent prospect of improvement. It is becoming more and more impossible tor anybody engaged in steady employment to go much into society, the hoars are becoming later and later until a ball means almost an all night affair. The fault of this lies in the fact that all are afraid of being the but he held his own, and slowly the first to enter the house that has been swept, garnished, garlanded and lighted for a ball. Usually guests do not begin to arrive until about ten o'clock. It is claimed for Washington that it is the only American city where "socie-

1 happened in the room of the Board of Appeals of the Patent Office on Saturday, and there the central figure was a large white-haired man gesticulating awkardly with a tele-phone. It was Roscoe Conkling, and he was making an argument for Edison in the big telephone interference with Bell and others. The ex Senator has clothes were the talk of the Senate an country. But now the fact is Mr. Conkling is under dressed rather than swered Mr. Bullion, "and I think I an over dressed man. He had on a know what the trouble is. With all loose, ill-fitting business suit, baggy your fine furniture and brick-back, at the knees, and altogether a sawk as a saw mill. Now, maybe, you see London tailors.
