RAN AMUCK IN CROWDED DEPOT

Navajo Chief Murders Two in St Louis Union Station.

BURIES KNIFE IN WOMAN'S BACK

Seized With Mad Frenzy While on His Way to Reservation With Sioux Warriors.

Cincinnati,, Feb. 22.—With an earsplitting warhoop, a Navajo Indian war chief ran amuck in the Union Station yesterday, and fatally stabbed and cut Mrs. Anna Devord, of Huntington, W. Va., and Max Meyers, of Cincinnati, and seriously wounded Joseph W. Gordon, of Cambridge, Ill., The Navajo, with four Sioux chiefs from Kansas, alighted from a crowded Chesapeake and Ohio train. As the passengers stepped from the train the Indian, with a yell, drew a long knife and started through the crowd, slashing right and left.

Mrs. Devord was walking along the station platform, with a child in her arms. The Indian buried the blade in her back and then slashed her across the body and arms. She fell insensible to the platform. The child was not hurt.

After the Indian had attacked Meyers and Gordon, passengers rushed on the madman, and hurled him prostrate to the platform. He was taken in charge by the police.

The Indian, who had been to Washington to see the secretary of the interior, was sullen while in the train, passengers say, but he evinced no signs of frenzy until the passengers were leaving the train.

HOLLAND WAS DAVID NEWHALL

Arrested at Philadelphia Charged With Forgery and Embezzlement.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—When Christopher M. Holland was arrested today in Philadelphia by Detective Welsh, and identified as David Newhall, of the Newhall engineering firm, who for the past few weeks has been issuing bogus checks on a number of Toronto banks, and who got away with a marked check for $5,000 from the Yonge and Queen street branch of the Imperial Bank.

A forged letter of recommendation from Thomas Bros., St. Thomas, bearing the date on which the Dominion Express Company in that city was victimized, was found by Inspector Duncan.

Holland will fight extradition.

Detective Mackie went to Philadelphia Friday night with the bank officials, who positively identified Holland as the man who had got the money.

Holland will also be charged with the theft of a Canadian Express book of money orders obtained from the company on Aug. 11 by means of an order forged in the name of White Bros., Limited, Toronto. Of these, it is claimed, he cashed a number throughout Ontario to the extent of $1,000.

In addition to this, Holland will be charged with obtaining at St. Thomas on Aug. 7, 1908, a book of Dominion Express orders on a forged order purporting to be signed by Thomas Bros., Limited, Of these $2,500 were forged and cashed in different parts of Ontario. He is also said to have operated in London.

The man arrested was thought to be in London ten days ago, and the local detectives were keeping a close lookout for him. All local banks were notified both by the detectives here and from their head offices, to keep a close watch for the certified check which he had obtained and which it was thought he would present.

"TOO MUCH SICKNESS"

New Yorker Who Suicides at Toronto Leaves Note of Explanation.

Toronto, Feb. 21.—At 6 o'clock tonight the body of a man about 37 years of age was found at the foot of Triller avenue, on the Lake Shore Road with a revolver bullet wound in his head.

A note found on him read:

"Too much sickness, which I cannot stand any longer."

The body was identified as that of a man named G. Parken, who registered at the Queen's Hotel on Jan. 29 as from New York. He had four meals at the hotel on the day mentioned, and was not seen there again. He paid for his meals and had no baggage.

The body had evidently been at the spot where found for several days, but had been covered by recent snowfalls, which had melted during the thaws of the past few days.

ONE MAN LEADER IN RELIEF WORK

Deputy Micheli Says Survivors of 'Quake Are Dead, So Far as Reason Is Concerned.

Rome, Feb. 16.—One man at Messina did more for the earthquake sufferers and afforded more practical aid than all the government and army officials who were sent there to organize the rescue work, distribute food, clothe and shelter the survivors and mitigate as far as possible and in the quickest way the effects of the great disaster. This man was a member of Parliament, Deputy Michell of Párma, a very modest farmer and a fervent Catholic.

He did such good work at Messina that even the anti-clerical and Socialist newspapers praised him highly, an unprecedented thing in Italy. Signor Michell has now returned to Parma.

Survivors Morally Dead.

The earthquake, said Signor Michell, killed Messina and all its inhabitants outright. Of course there were survivors, but these were morally killed, too. They lost completely all energy and hope. The suddenness of the disaster killed the reason of all the survivors; many are still mad, while others, the majority, remained dazed under the blow.

The panic, the lack of clothes, food and shelter, the horrors of the surroundings, the looting, crime and the iron heel of a military rule meant to be adopted in a conquered country, not a dead one, crushed the survivors and drove away every human sentiment and feeling from them. They were dead to all intents and purposes. All the efforts made to help them were useless.

Last Stroke Averted.

They fought over their food like animals. The prohibition to recover their dead or search for their missing relatives exasperated them; the order to evacuate the ruined city drove them to fury. Signor Micheli compares the state of the earthquake survivors at Messina to that of a tree shattered by a storm, its leaves scattered far, its branches broken, but its roots still clinging to the soil. The tree is not dead, and if left by itself, gradually, under the action of the sun, will put forth new leaves and slowly but surely live again green and strong.

The evacuation of Messina would have amounted to a crime. It was like taking the life out of the shattered tree. Yet it was decided on. The last stroke which would have killed the soul of the ruined city had all but fallen when a handful of men—Signor Micheli, Count Zileri of Parma, and an old, infirm priest, the archbishop of Messina—decided to avert it.

Proposal Abandoned.

They made the survivors hope. Little by little the survivors were induced to work at building huts with lumber picked from among the wreckage, and gradually a new city rose in the midst of the dead one. In Plazza San Martino many huts were built and the survivors inhabited them. Gradually the encampment grew.

Those who fled in the country return and settled, a new life sprang up, the numbers increased day by day until the evacuation of Messina became an impossibility and the proposal was abandoned by the military authorities. Then Signor Micheli returned to Parma. But for him Messina would have been bombarded and its remaining inhabitants scattered all over Italy instead of being engaged in rebuilding the city.

So much clothing has been sent to Italy from all over the world for the earthquake sufferers that if it were properly distributed every person in Sicily and Calabria would be provided with new clothes. Still, strange to relate, the survivors in the devastated area and the refugees scattered over the country are complaining that they are not provided with sufficient clothing.

In the case of the survivors in Calabria and Sicily, many of whom are still wearing military overcoats, the fact is explained as follows: A naval officer who is in charge of the distribution of clothes reported to headquarters that the women refused to accept any colored garments and insisted on having black.
