PLAY PROGRESSING IN O. H. A. SERIES

Toronto World Picks London to Take This Group From Paris Intermediates.

WOODSTOCK IN JUNIORS

Baby City Has Pulled Fine Team Together and Should Show Well—The Standings.

The Toronto Sunday World says:

The ending of the week finds the O. H. A. well on their season's play. Two senior matches were disposed of, one last Saturday night between Eatons and Rowing Club, which was won by the big store, while St. Michaels broke their hoodoo by defeating Stratford at home by 5 to 3 after a grand struggle.

The intermediate series is uncovering some fast teams. Mention might be made of Trenton in Group No. 1. This club is going along very nicely, and from reports will be hard to beat. Whitby are doing well; also Broadviews and Drumbo; the latter look to have their group cinched. Preston are still unbeaten, and several people expect to see Midland down the champion Collingwood team. London showed improvement during the week, and should win their group.

The Junior Teams.

Several nice games were played in the junior series, and the Varsity team appear a great aggregation. Oshawa and Peterboro have nice junior teams, and Jim Sutherland's pets are jogging along nicely. Teddy Marriott met with a bad reverse with his Simcoes, but says they will come back. Preston Juniors have now four victories without a defeat, and continue to play fast hockey. Mention should be made of the fast Woodstock Juniors; this town has gathered together a bunch of boys to be proud of. Seaforth also are proud of their junior team, and Gravenhurst are looking forward to championship honors. Taking everything into consideration from the present standpoint the O. H. A. finals will be games well worth seeing, and it should be one of the greatest seasons of Canada's premier hockey organizations. Club standings:

"DIRTY WORK" IN THE RING WHICH THE REFEREE SOMETIMES MISSES

BUTTING.

The ways and wiles of the "fast boxer" are many and varied. The tricks resorted to by the men who have the game of biff and bang down to a science would compare favorably with the ways of that "heathen Chinee," Ah Sing, to whom the creator of "Truthful James" and other characters passed the palm for trickery and deceit.

Not content to land blows upon an opponent with the padded fists permitted under the rules framed by the sporting marquis, the shifty men have added to the repertoire, so as to use the bony portions of their anatomy to render an opponent helpless.

A NASTY TRICK.

The recent Welsh-Driscoll bout in England, which was stopped and the decision given to the former because Driscoll persisted in butting, recalls some of the tricks known to ring followers as clever work and to the unbiased fans as "dirty work."

In the above illustration, some rough stuff is shown in the third picture, in which one man is "heeling" his opponent, heeling being the gentle art of jabbing the base of the palm against the other fellow's chin and forcing his head back. While in this strained position, unable to defend himself, a boxer is open to severe punishment. This trick, worked quickly and smoothly, is often not noticed by the referee, and more than one man has lost a fight through punishment that started while he was being heeled.

HEELING.

In the first photograph, the butting tactics of Driscoll are demonstrated. This butting is resorted to by rough-house fighters who are prone to lean their foreheads against an opponent's chest, while tearing into his midsection. Nelson was one of the foremost exponents of this style of battling, although he seldom had to resort to butting to win. Still, with the crown of his head against the other fellow's chin, it was mighty hard to resist the temptation to butt. A good hard jolt from a head like that on the Dane's shoulders, to the point of the jaw, is apt to stop an opponent rather suddenly.

USING THE ELBOW.

The second picture shows Brock's little trick of chopping an opponent on the jaw with the wrist or bone of the forearm. In a fast mixup, such a blow, even if seen by the referee, might be accepted as accidental. It is a stunner, and Brock is said to have it down to a science.

It was "Elbows" McFadden and Jim Corbett who developed the science of the elbow. Both were adepts at missing hooks with either hand and then jolting their opponents a lightning swipe with the sharp point of the elbow alongside of the jaw. This, worked so quickly that the eye of the referee could scarcely follow it, played havoc with the opponent, and after stopping a few of them, a man was generally in a condition to accept a sleep punch with equanimity.

LONDON SENIORS PLAY TORONTO TOMORROW

Local Y. M. C. A. Basketball Crew Arranges For Game—Ladies in Preliminary Contest.

Tomorrow evening in the local Y. M. C. A., two fast games of basketball will be played. The London seniors meet the Toronto Central Y. M. C. A. team, who are champions of Canada, and Centennial Church (East London) ladies' team will meet the Normal School girls in what promises to be a spirited game. The Toronto Central team will come here from Detroit, where they play tonight. Their line-up is as follows: Forwards, Latimer and Neate; centre, Tompkins; guards, Hunter and Swanson; spare, Sivert. The local line-up is: Forwards, Morris and Jones; centre, George; defence, Hamilton and Shaw; spare, Shortt.

May Play Maudsley.

However, there is some possibility that London may be able to play A. Maudsley, the fast forward who was disqualified some time ago. Secretary Crow, of the C. A. A. U., will call a special meeting tonight to consider the question of Maudsley's reinstatement. Should it be granted, he will play on the forward line with Morris, with Jones as spare. This ought to be by far the best game here this season, and it is certain to be animated throughout. Both of the local ladies' teams have been doing some hard practice, and they promise an interesting contest when they come together in the association gymnasium on Tuesday night.

Louisville Boy Wonders Why National Axe Falls After Two Seasons.

Louisville, Jan. 14.—Steve Kane, the local boy who has been umpiring in the National League for the past two years, has just received notice of his release from President Tom Lynch's staff. The notice came as a great surprise to Kane, who was assured by President Lynch at the close of last season that his work had been satisfactory, and that he would be retained this year. President Lynch gave no reasons for his action, and Kane is at a loss to know why he was turned adrift on such short notice.

DAVE SKEELS IS SOLD TO SEATTLE

The Tiger Recruit Twirler Wants To Play Near Home.

Detroit, Jan. 15.—Dave Skeels, a right-hand pitcher, who joined the Detroit club near the close of last season, was yesterday sold to the Seattle, Wash., team.

He pitched in but a few games last year. He is young and husky, but knows little about the finer part of the twirling art. He needed more seasoning, felt so himself, and wrote President Frank Navin, of the Detroit club, to that effect. He asked the Tiger boss to send him somewhere near his home town, which is Addy, Stevens County, Washington, where Skeels lives with his mother.

The officials claim a record which never before has been equalled under similar racing conditions.

Gambling On the Alleys

Sporting Editor, Advertiser:

I would like to say a few words in regard to match games for money, and gambling on bowling alleys. Playing for money is one of the surest ways of spoiling one of the cleanest, best and finest indoor games of the day. It not only creates a jealousy amongst the players, but nine out of ten of those who desire to participate in money games are not in a monetary position to do so, and when it comes to settling with the proprietor or manager, their money is all gone, and they have to charge the account, and invariably their custom is lost to the alley, or betake themselves to other quarters where their credit is still good, and in almost every case in the long run, this results in them dropping the game. Exhibition games by good players help to create an interest in the game, but challenges for money thrown out indiscriminately by aspiring champions and others that are making a living at the game, will eventually be a detriment instead of a betterment. I believe that most of the bowling alley managers in the country will agree with me on this point. Now, boys, let us get together to improve the game instead of throwing out challenges to parties who are not at all interested in money games or gambling practices, as far as bowling is concerned. Gambling not only degenerates the players, but lowers the sport, and keeps many self-respecting people from participating. Thanking you for your valuable space, Yours truly,

W. H. BELL,
Manager L. B. and A. A.
