MC2035 POOR DOCUMENT

A GOOD PLACE TO BUY GOOD CLOTHES

THE FINISH OF

Gilmour's Sale

This month positively ends our sale of suits and overcoats.

While our line has, of course, been greatly reduced the opportunities now here are proportionately increased in value to the man who is looking for unusual bargains.

Suits have now been discounted still further to close them out immediately.

The remaining Overcoats have suffered similar reductions.

To those who are looking for an opportunity to get genuinely good clothing at about half the usual price, we say, "Don't hesitate another instant. Call at Gilmour's today or tomorrow at the very latest, and get your share of the few remaining bargains."

THE ISLAND STEAMERS.

A telegram received today by George Carvill, of the I. C. R., said that the steamer Earl Grey had managed to cross to Georgetown, but the Minto was still at Pictou, as the ice was too heavy.

SOCIAL LAST NIGHT.

In the school room of the Mission church, Paradise Row, last evening, the Bible class conducted by Rev. Fr. Convers had a pleasing social. An informal programme was carried out, and those present thoroughly enjoyed the numbers given by several gentlemen present. The social was for the men only.

EVERY DAY CLUB.

The mock trial at the Every Day Club tomorrow evening will be a very entertaining affair. The legal end of the proceedings will be looked after by Messrs. Tait, McLean and Carr, and they held conferences with the witnesses last evening, and selected the court officers. The trial will begin at 8 o'clock, and all men are welcome.

WERE FROM CITIZENS' COMMITTEE

There appears to have been a mistake regarding the visit of two men at the office of Leonard Bros., Lower Cove, on Monday last. Someone in the office had the impression that they were soliciting funds on behalf of the Telegraph and Times in connection with the campaign in favor of the commission form of government. It has been learned that the men who called were accredited representatives of the citizen's committee and that nothing was said to indicate that these papers were connected with the idea at all. Walter Leonard, a member of the firm, said he had no idea that the men were other than they represented themselves to be, and he had informed them that they would have to see his father about a subscription.

THE PURPOSE OF STORES!

Some stores are kept alive by the people who look for cheaper goods. Other stores are kept alive by the people who are tired of these so called cheap goods and want better goods. That is where we fit.

The people expect better Boots, Shoes and Rubbers at our Stores and they get them.

FINED $40.

James Adams, charged with assaulting his mother, and breaking a window in her house in Prince William street, has been allowed to go on paying a fine of $20 with another of $20 standing against him. He was told that he must stop drinking and was advised to leave the city.

WORDS OF THANKS.

Mrs. Thomas I. Parker, of Main street, North End, desires to thank the physicians, supt. and nurses of the General Public Hospital, for many acts of kindness to her while a patient there. She was successfully operated upon, and has been practically cured by her treatment at the hospital.

SMOKER THIS EVENING.

The members of the St. John Power Boat Club will hold their last smoker of the season this evening in their cosy clubhouse rooms, Cedar street. A choice programme has been prepared, beginning at 8 o'clock, and as it is hoped to make the evening a banner one with the club it is desirable that all members who can do so, should attend.

BACHELOR GIRLS.

In the school room of the Exmouth street Methodist church last evening the concert given last week by the Bachelor Girls was repeated to another large audience. Mrs. F. C. Macneill in solo work won applause, as did Misses Maida Baskin, and Winnie Myles. The Bachelor Girls appeared in a pretty sketch entitled "The King's Daughters," in three well arranged scenes. During intermission the Mandolin Club played pleasing numbers. Home-made candy was sold by young ladies dressed in Japanese costume.

INDIAN CHIEF DRINKS HAIR RESTORER AND DIES RAVING MANIAC

Spokane, Wash., Feb. 23—Drinking copiously of liniments and a concoction of alcohol and cocaine, used by the Indians as a hair restorer, proved the undoing of George Moses, friend of the early white settlers in eastern Washington and Oregon and northern Idaho and foremost in the councils of the Nez Perce tribe.

Moses, who a few days before had proclaimed himself a Messiah, died a raving maniac in his home on Tom Beall creek, six miles from the Indian agency at Lapwai, Idaho. He was roped and strapped to his bed when the end came. Mrs. Moses, who also had used the drugs, is violently insane and may not recover.

Funeral services were accompanied by the ceremonials of the tribe. The sermon was delivered by Rev. James Hayes, a native pastor of the Indian church, in the Indian Presbyterian church at Joseph. The funeral was attended by Indians from many parts of the northwest, also many white men and women. Burial was made in the little cemetery on the bank of the Clearwater river.

Several days before his death Moses summoned the indians to his throne and pronounced judgment on each, decreeing that some should be blessed and others consigned to purgatory. Many of the Nez Perce Indians believe that Moses was possessed of supernatural powers.

Moses was looked upon as second to Chief Joseph, declared to be the ablest man the Nez Perce tribe has produced. He was identified with the Lapwai faction, which refused to join Chief Joseph in the hostilities against the whites in 1877-8, when the reds led General O. O. Howard such a lively chase in the northwest.

THE TAX ON LAND RATHER THAN ON THE IMPROVEMENTS

(Ottawa Journal)

The campaign of education in favor of transferring city tax collection more to land values and less and less to building and improvement values, is progressing generally. The satisfaction with which the western Canadian cities have viewed this new taxation method and the progress they have made under it, is certainly a strong recommendation in its favor.

Last session of the Ontario legislature some four hundred different municipalities of Ontario appealed to the Ontario government, not indeed to put this taxation system into wholesale force, but simply to allow individual municipalities to adopt it, after a vote of the people of the municipality had indicated a desire in this direction. The legislation followed the proportion of tax on land and building to be regulated as the individual municipality saw fit. That is a municipality which was doubtful could start by taxing land at 60 per cent and buildings at 40 per cent, and then if the plan was found desirable, could gradually transfer the taxation from buildings till it all bore on the land values.

This legislation failed to pass last session, and the additional information which Ontario now has in this connection may do much to remove hitherto existing prejudices.

* * *

Rev Chas. Anderson Scott, of Cambridge, England, a recent Canadian tourist, writing to the Manchester Guardian, an important English newspaper, of conditions in Vancouver, B. C., says:—

"If one were to ask some of the leaders of local politics what were the further causes of its prosperity, they would at once refer to the single tax and the principle of taxing unearned increment on land. The benefit to the city is seen in part in the determination of the owners of the land to put it to the best possible use. Undeterred by the fear that the capital cost of improvements will become the basis of future assessment, they build with a new freedom. They readily scrap old buildings and already much of the old property in the heart of the city has been replaced by structures of a very different kind. On the other hand, those who are not prepared to make economic use of their sites are discouraged from holding them up. Urban land that is unproductive to the community soon becomes too expensive for the owner to keep."

This simply confirms what is the natural expectation of any intelligent man who takes the trouble to find out what the principle means and the equitable considerations on which it is based. The assessment of urban land at its true market value is fair to every owner.

The Toronto World, a strong advocate of the new principle of taxation, as in fact are most of the important newspapers of the province, without reference to party affiliations, in commenting on this statement says:

"This pithy summary of the public advantage gained directly from the taxation of land values and the exemption of improvements is its best commendation. It gives the owner the strongest inducement to make the most of his land or to dispose of it promptly to another who will. Vacant land is utilized, mean buildings are replaced by structures which at once benefit the city and the owners themselves. The burden of taxation thus becomes relatively lighter, improvements are encouraged and become constant—the whole community shares in the general advancement and trades and industries of all kinds expand and prosper."
