THE GALLANT THIRTEENTH

NOT FAVORABLE TO JOINING IN TORONTO SUNDAY PARADE.

The Thanksgiving Field Day Matter Discussed But Not Settled—Street Railway Receipts—The Trouble Over a Bogus Gold Piece—Coal Barons Putting on the Screws.

Hamilton, Oct. 13.—The proposal for the Thirteenth Battalion to take part in the Sunday church parade in Toronto when General Gascoigne will inspect the Toronto regiments is not received favorably by the Thirteenth officers, who would prefer the general to inspect the Thirteenth here in the morning, and leave for Toronto, arriving there in time to inspect the Toronto regiments. At a meeting of the officers the proposal to take part in the field day on Thanksgiving Day was talked over, but the matter was not definitely settled.

Street Railway Receipts.

During the quarter which closed Sept. 26, the receipts of the Street Railway Company exceeded all previous records. Yesterday the city clerk received the company's cheque for $3976.16, made up of $2483.32 percentage and $1517.84 mileage, from which was deducted $25 for work done on Herkimer-street.

A Bogus $20 Gold Piece.

Joseph H. McKague, Maple Park, Ill., who was arrested a few weeks ago for trying to pass a $20 gold coin, was tried on Saturday at the Assizes. Sergeant McKenzie, Ed. Davidson, Norman Sutterby and Percy Heming had all pronounced the coin spurious. Miss Annie Campbell, R. B. Spena and William Applegath testified to the prisoner's attempts to pass the coin. Sergeant McKenzie said when he opened McKague's valise it contained a revolver, a number of shirts, three small crucibles for melting metal, a quantity of borax, a couple of steel holders and a couple of bottles containing liquid.

E. Davidson, jeweler, said the crucibles were similar to those used for melting gold and silver. Borax was used by jewelers to produce a white heat. Regarding the coin in question, he thought two sides of a $20 gold piece had been placed on a piece of lead, which was afterwards rimmed with gold. In all there was about $3 worth of gold on the coin. The prisoner said he had obtained the coin from a stranger on a train, in exchange for bills, and did not know it was spurious. On his behalf a gentleman calling himself Rev. Elder Wickham of Chicago testified that McKague was a respectable Chicago tinsmith. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

To Raise the Price of Coal.

The local coal dealers say that the Pennsylvania Coal Company and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Coal Company will endeavor to compel Hamilton dealers to advance the price of coal 50 cents a ton on Nov. 1, making the price $5.25.

Notes.

Senator MacInnes will leave next week for a European trip.

All the Ward foremen except the men in charge of the Third Ward have been ordered to reduce their force to two men.

On Wednesday, Sept. 18, at Cape Girardeau, Mo., Dr. Percival W. Murton, son of Sheriff Murton, was married to Miss Minnie E. Moore, at the residence of Dr. A. Pelronuet, the bride's grandfather.

A Toronto man has identified the man who acted so strangely at the Assize Court the other day as Isaac Judson Metcalfe, of Plattsville. The stranger was a school teacher, but recently was studying in McMaster University, and it is supposed he went insane through hard study.

MELBA'S COUSIN IN TORONTO.

Her Name is Ellen Mitchell and She is Engaged as a Domestic.

An interesting incident in connection with Melba is one which well illustrates the devious ways of fate and the smallness of this old world in which we live and move and have our being. Melba has in Toronto, although unknown to herself, a first cousin of the same maiden name, Ellen Mitchell, who is a domestic servant in the family of a well-known judge of the Supreme Court, who died a few years since. Two brothers in England by the name of Mitchell emigrated. One went to Australia, a mason by trade, he was successful and from masonry launched out into contracting. Fortune smiled on him. He made money and became opulent. To him was born a daughter endowed with promise of a glorious voice, to develop which she persuaded her father to send her to Paris, where she studied under the best masters and decided on an operatic career. It is said that on her debut she was recalled no less than 13 times. She took for a nom de guerre a name symbolical of her native city, and called herself Melba.

The other brother Mitchell came to Canada, took up land, knew little of agriculture, lost what little he had, and his upgrowing family had to shift for themselves.

Thus it happened that one daughter is in domestic employment in the same city where her first cousin, in the zenith of her fame, makes a most notable public triumph.

CHICORA'S LAST TRIP THIS YEAR

Made the Occasion of a Presentation to the Steward.

The steamer Chicora on Saturday afternoon made her last trip of the season, and the occasion was taken advantage of by about 300 Torontonians, including many of prominence. When the boat left Niagara it was amid cheers and salutes of cannon shots that she steamed from the wharf. On the return journey the crew, to the number of 35, together with their friends, partook of a farewell supper, the excellent menu leaving nothing to be desired. Sandwiched between the courses came the presentation of a handsome gold-headed cane, by Second Engineer Osborne, on behalf of the crew, to Mr. R. W. Main, who, as steward, has contributed so greatly to the comfort of passengers during the season. This followed a long toast list, during which Captain Harbottle presided. Everybody on board spent an enjoyable time, and with song and dance the time passed rapidly, until the Chicora moored at Yonge-street. Among those present were: Capt. McGriffin of the Chippewa and Capt. Loames of the late Cibola.

The Chicora goes into winter quarters at the Northern docks this morning.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFORTE HERE.

Britain's Ambassador to Washington Regards the Sackville-West Incident as Indiscreet—Banqueted at the Grange.

Among the distinguished visitors in the city at the present time are Sir Julian Pauncefote, Her Majesty's ambassador at Washington, D.C., and the Earl of Westmeath, an attache of the British embassy at Washington, who arrived from the east Saturday morning. The gentlemen are domiciled at the Queen's, Sir Julian finding very comfortabe quarters in the historic "red parlor" of that hostelry. Though a resident of this continent for six years past, in the interests of Her Majesty's Government, this is the ambassador's first visit to Canada, press of diplomatic business and a desire to constantly guard the welfare of his Government being given as an excuse for this seeming neglect.

The Earl of Westmeath, who suffers by comparison with the doughty Sir Julian from a physical standpoint, has been seen in Toronto before and spent the greater portion of Saturday in the company of friends and acquaintances acquired on the occasion of his former visit.

Traveling for Rest.

Sir Julian spent a portion of the day in driving about the city and visiting many of the more prominent points of interest, and expressed himself as highly pleased with all that he had seen, though deploring the miserable condition of the weather, which rendered a more complete tour undesirable.

In an interview with the writer, Sir Julian stated that his presence in Canada at this time was in no manner connected with diplomatic matters, but was solely in the interests of rest andrecreation and to satisfy a longing desire to learn for himself the extent and condition of one of his own country's most promising colonies. With the country and cities east of Toronto where the distinguished gentleman has been traveling since his entry into Canada, he expresses himself as highly pleased, the city of Ottawa and the scenery along the St. Lawrence River and in the vicinity of Quebec, being particularly marked among his many pleasant recolections.

Sackville West was Indiscreet.

Sir Julian was particularly reticient when approached on the subject of Lord Sackville-West's recent pamphlet, explanatory of the famous Murchison letter and his difficulty with the powers that be at Washington, and would only say that it was to be regretted that a document intended to be private should have become so notoriously public.

Expects to go to Russia not Paris.

The question of succession to the very comfortable berth now occupied by Lord Dufferin, at the head of England's governmental affairs at Paris, was another question upon which Sir Julian had but little to say, notwithstanding the rumors to the effect that he himself would be chosen for the position when Lord Dufferin retires to other fields in the early spring. Sir Julian has had no intimation that he will be offered an opportunity to spend a few years in gay Paris, and is inclined to believe that the land of the Czar will be the destination mentioned in his next set of passports.

Compensation for Sealers.

The question of compensation to Canadian sealers now so long standing, will come up at Washington shortly after Sir Julian's return to that city and the gentleman is hopeful that the matter may reach a final settlement.

Banqueted at Goldwin Smith's.

Sir Julian and the Earl of Westmeath were dined by Prof. Goldwin Smith, at that gentleman's residence, "The Grange," on Saturday evening, the other invited guests being: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Galt, cousins of Sir Julian's; Mr. and Mrs. Cockburn and Judge Burton.

Sir Julian and his companion left at noon Sunday for Niagara Falls, returning via Philadelphia to Washington, at which city he expects to arrive on Saturday next.

SHIPBUILDERS' STRIKE.

The Trouble at Belfast Looked Upon as Trades Union Blackmail.

New York, Oct. 13.—Harold Frederic cables from London: Although there has been a good deal of muttering in the past few weeks in the ship-building trade, nobody seems to have believed that there would be serious trouble, and the strike at Belfast is in the nature of a surprise. It is an extremely unwelcome surprise, too, for it threatens a good deal more than a local industrial dislocation. For once there is practically a universal feeling that the strikers are behaving badly. They have been earning excellent wages and were treated irreproachably in other respects, and their demand for an increase of wages, simply because there is a temporary flurry of activity in the ship yards, comes distinctly under the head of trades union blackmail. Unless they come to their senses very soon they will work a lasting injury to Belfast, where the shipbuilding industry has been slowly built up by the energy and courage of employers like Harland, Wolff and a few others, into importance, but a deadlock of a month or two will suffice to hinder the work of years. It is not forgotten that a big and flourishing industry in shipbuilding on the Thames, in East London, was completely smashed by a similar idiotic strike, and there is a not unnatural terror lest a sympathetic movement spread to operatives in the great Clyde and Tyneside yards, which would mean the total paralysis of shipbuilding in these islands. Thus far, opinion in Glasgow and Newcastle leans to the belief that sober counsels will prevail in the unions, but the younger hot heads are eager for a struggle and the danger that they will stampede the unions is still considerable.

At a Critical Time.

The fact that this insensate trouble comes just at a time when England is more deeply involved abroad than it has been for years, and when the English people are anxiously discussing their ability to preserve command of the seas in case of war, makes it all the harder to bear with patience. To cripple the British shipyards at such a nervous juncture as this seems like treason as well as folly, and even if nothing grave comes of it, it will be remembered here in England against the Belfast operatives for a long while. They will hear from it when they next get up Orange riots to show how superior Ulster is to the rest of Ireland.

THE SITUATION IN TURKEY

HASTY RETURN OF LORD SALISBURY TO LONDON.

Mr. Goschen Also Arrives Unexpectedly From Switzerland—France and Russia Not Sincere in Supporting England—Affairs Believed to be Less Critical Than They Were.

New York, Oct. 13.—Mr. Isaac N. Ford cables from London:

Lord Salisbury's return to England was probably hastened by the Turkish situation. Mr. Goschen has also arrived from Switzerland unexpectedly. These two facts are promising rather than ominous. It is at least a safe inference that the heads of the Foreign Office and the Admiralty in their consultation yesterday afternoon had something to say about the expediency of some movement of the fleet in Turkish waters. Six powers have addressed an urgent note to the Porte on the dangerous condition of the public excitement in Constantinople, and the usual guarded reply has been sent. The Armenian refugees have withdrawn from the churches under the escort of the dragomans of the various embassies, and the situation is less critical than it was.

Another long chapter of diplomacy has been opened, and unless the British fleet moves, notes will be exchanged week aftr week until the recent riots have passed entirely out of mind. It is the presence of this fleet off Lemnos that keeps the Sultan in a state of nervous tension. Punch tells the story in Sir John Tenniel's way by depicting the unspeakable Turk as looking with scared face over a high wall, while Lord Salisbury sets his dog on the Chinese dragon. A naval demonstration may force the solution of the Armenian question; diplomacy will accomplish nothing, when France and Russia are alike insincere in supporting England. The Sultan takes the view that in the Constantinople riots, as in the Sassoun massacre, the Armenians alone were to blame, and has thanked the Softas and street rowdies who butchered them. He evidently believes that Europe will not resort to coercion, and that Lord Salisbury is only trying to frighten him. Possibly he also dreads the Mahometan spirit, which is resenting Christian advice to Mussulmans.

Harold Frederic's Comments.

Harold Frederic cables from London: Lord Salisbury did not complete his holiday abroad after all. He was to have returned to-day, but Tuesday he privately crossed the Channel by the least travelled route, and went without observtaion through to Hatfield, where his secretaries were awaiting him with despatch boxes. It was not till the evening of the next day, after he had put in a long and arduous day's work at the Foreign Office that it became known that he was in England at all. The next day Mr. Goschen returned from Switzerland quite as precipitately, and was closeted all day at the Admiralty with Salisbury. These signs of urgency naturally gave rise to rumors that the situation abroad had assumed a grave character, and bred a circumstantial report that there would be an emergency Cabinet meeting early next week. This is now denied, but the public uneasiness is by no means allayed.

As regards the immediate situation at Constantinople, matters seem less alarming than they were. An understanding exists in various quarters that the Sultan has conceded to the combination of all the six powers most of the things which he deemed it safe to refuse to the original three intervening powers.

Interest centres rather on the development of the differences betwen Russia and England. That they have any common ground for working together nobody now believes. Everything, on the contrary, is showing now what these despatches have insisted upon from the beginning, that their ostensible partnership is nonsense. Their interests are antipodal, and now that the whole Turkish question stands re-opened, their mock relations to each other must give way to real ones. This re-arrangement has really been immensely facilitated by the Stamboul riots. These compelled the Triple Alliance to interfere and join the other powers in common representation to the Porte. When this party of six separates, I fancy it will be found that England has shifted her position and has retired by one door with Germany, Austria and Italy, while Russia and France have passed out through the other door. This, at least, is what the immense majority of Englishmen are hoping for.

The Mad King Madder Than Ever.

London, Oct. 12.—A despatch from Berlin to The People says that a few days ago Baron Von Crailsheim, President of the Bavarian Council of Ministers, made his periodical visit to the insane King Otto. He found the condition of the King worse than ever. He even goes naked and jumps about like an animal on all fours. He eats incessantly, taking his food off the ground. The windows of the place where he is confined are built up to prevent the entrance of light, which the mad king hates.

The Wedding Postponed.

London, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Alexander, wife of the Right Rev. Alexander, Bishop of Derry and Raphoe, died this evening. She was the author of several popular hymns. The marriage of Miss Keown, a niece of Bishop Alexander, to Mr. T. W. Russell, Parliamentary Secretary to the Local Government Board, will be postponed on account of Mrs. Alexander's death.

Toronto Aid Asked for Mrs. Maybrick.

Dr. Helene Dinsmore of London, England, the president of the Women's International Maybrick Association, has been in Toronto during the past week. Her object is to raise $125,000, and she says:

"The money will be expended in rousing public opinion in England to a proper appreciation of the Maybrick case. We will rent halls, secure the services of able speakers and circulate the story of Mrs. Maybrick's case all over the kingdom. We will compel the newspapers there to recognize us by paying for space in them at advertising rates. Heretofore the newspapers would publish nothing concerning the Maybrick affair, but if we can arouse public opinion we can compel them to give it some attention."

Osgoode Legal and Literary Society Elections.

The Lamport ticket is as follows: W. A. Lamport, president; F. C. S. Knowles, 1st vice-president; H. H. Shaver, 2nd vice-president; J. F. Kilgour, secretary; O. A. Langley, treasurer; D. Stuart Storey, secretary of committees; E. H. McLean, H. C. Becher, J. D. McMurrich, committee. The elections take place on Saturday.

$7000 Worth of Butter.

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 12.—Advices from Renfrew intimate that all the butter in storage at the creamery there has been secured by a Montrealer for shipment to England. The exporter personally inspected the butter at the creamery, and declared it to be as fine as anything ever produced in Canada. His purchase reached $7000.

No family living in a bilious country should be without Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. A few doses taken now and then will keep the liver active, cleanse the stomach and bowels from all bilious matter and prevent ague. Mr. J. L. Price, Shoals, Martin County, Ind., writes: "I have tried a box of Parmelee's Pills, and find them the best medicine for Fever and Ague I have ever used."

Incendiarism at Regina.

Regina, Oct. 13.—Two more incendiary fires were started yesterday, but slight damage was done. William Curran has been arrested on suspicion.

CANADIAN COPYRIGHT.

A Correspondent in London, England, Argues Against the Contention of the Canadians.

New York, Oct. 13.—This letter to the editor appears in to-day's Tribune:

Sir,—Will you kindly permit me to add a few remarks to the very comprehensive resume of the Canadian copyright question which your London correspondent submitted to your readers in his letter of July 31? The great international agreement, drawn up and approved by the Berne Convention or 1887, is the outcome of fifty years' struggle to protect fully the legitimate rights of literary and artistic property in every part of the world. It has been adhered to by Great Britain and her colonies, France and her colonies, Germany, Belgium, Spain, and their respective colonies, Italy, Switzerland, Tunis, Hayti, Luxemburg and Monaco. The following nations likewise are on the point of signing the agreement, viz., Austria and Hungary, Russia Sweden, Norway and Denmark.

Canadians Must Forfeit.

By the adoption, however, of the manufacturing clause in their Act of 1890 the Canadians must inevitably forfeit all the protective rights afforded by the Berne Convention; and the more one reflects upon this the clearer it becomes that the Canadian legislative body cannot have realized the importance of their decision. It is, of course, possible—though by no means certain—that Canadian printers may make larger gains, and that their industry may become more important. But what would this advantage be in comparison with the removal of all international copyright protection in every part of the world for all the Canadian publishers?

The interests, too, of the Canadian author, painter, sculptor, musical composer, designer, engraver, lithographer, photographer, architect and scientist seem to have been totally overlooked. As a result of the final adoption of the new Act in its present form—and Canada's consequent isolation from the Berne Convention—all copyright productions issued within the Dominion could be freely pirated by foreign countries without any hindrance whatever.

The prospect can hardly be gratifying to Canadian industries in general or to the Canadian printers in particular. Fortunately, has already spoken his mind, and states "that the Canadian writers were not consulted about the Act, nor had they anything to do with it; that it was carried by the influence of a few interested individuals or firms through a Parliament not highly qualified to legislate on questions of this kind." He further adds: "That all the Canadian writers with whom he has had an opportunity of speaking are opposed to the act."

I sincerely hope that other influential men in the Dominion will come forward and make their countrymen see that the printers' interest is far from being the only one to be considered. Concessions once made in favor of Canada could not be withheld from Australia and other British colonies, and any attempts to exclude these from the Berne Copyright Act would inevitably lead to international dissensions.

Mutual Reciprocity.

The conditions of the Berne Convention are essentially based upon the mutual reciprocity of nations. France, Germany, Spain and other contracting parties, together with their various dependencies, would certainly have cause for complaint—and very justly so—if any such partial exceptions were introduced. In what positions would British authors find themselves if, for instance, such important book-manufacturing centres of Germany as the Kingdoms of Saxony, Bavaria, Wurtemburg or the Grand Duchy of Baden determined, on the same plea, to free themselves from the restrictions imposed upon the whole of Germany by the Berne Convention? These restrictions have, doubtless, told very hardly in certain localities, considering that the people engaged in the production of books and various printed matter in any one of these countries exceed by far those similarly occupied in Canada.

There are analagous cases in nearly every country. The French and Spanish colonies might, likewise, deem it advantageous to follow in the wake of Canada, but it is pretty certain that their respective home governments would not tolerate such exceptions. So, in the same way—now that Russia and Austria have signified their intention of joining the convention—the printers of Hungary, Poland and Finland might seek, in their own selfish interests, to free themselves from the restrictions imposed by this convention if the predominant governments were ever weak enough to permit of such infringements. If such exceptions are to be allowed, piracy, I fear, would soon be again the order of the day. The people who would suffer most would be the authors in English-speaking countries. Is it, then, possible that the British Government will be so shortsighted as to sanction a measure fraught with so much mischief and danger?

The Berne Convention may possibly require modification, but the endeavor of every honest person should be to strengthen this "International bond," which, like the "Postal Union," should take effect in nearly every country of the world.

A Tenor Seriously Ill.

London, Oct. 12.—A despatch from Varez, Italy, announces the sudden illness of Signor Tamagno, the famous operatic tenor. Signor, who was visiting Varez this morning, suddenly fell to the floor and when picked up was found to be unconscious. It was at first thought that he was suffering from an attack of apoplexy, but a subsequent examination by physicians showed his illness to be a cardiac affection. All his engagements were cancelled.

Death of Mr John Marvyn.

Another old-timer in the person of John Marvyn, for 54 years a resident of Toronto, departed this life at his late residence, 96 Portland-street, yesterday, at the ripe old age of 83 years. Mr Marvyn came to Toronto from County Monaghan, Ireland, in 1841. He was for 25 years in charge of the Local Government works in this city and elsewhere; was engaged in the construction of the most recent additions to the Queen-street asylum, and for many years occupied a chair in the Board of Separate School trustees, as the representative of St. Andrew's Ward.

We have no hesitation in saying that Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial is without doubt the best medicine ever introduced for dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera and all summer complaints, sea sickness, etc. It promptly gives relief, and never fails to effect a positive cure. Mothers should never be without a bottle when their children are teething.

Unequalled—Mr. Thomas Brunt, Tyendinaga, Ont., writes: "I have to thank you for recommending Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil for bleeding piles. I was troubled with them for nearly 15 years, and tried almost everything I could hear or think of. Some of them would give me temporary relief, but none would effect a cure. I have now been free from the distressing complaint for nearly 18 months. I hope you will continue to recommend it."

NEW MANAGER OF G.T.R.

TO BE APPOINTED AT THE ANNUAL COMING MEETING.

Vice-President Hayes of the Wabash Said to Be the Coming Man—Mr. Seargeant Will Retain Connection With the Grand Trunk With no Loss of Prestige—Other Changes Spoken of.

St. Louis, Oct. 12.—Vice-President and General Manager Hayes of the Wabash Railway has resigned his position to accept that of general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway.

Believed in Montreal.

Montreal, Oct. 12.—The report that Vice-President Hayes of the Wabash will become general manager of the Grand Trunk, is generally believed here. A despatch to this effect was shown to one of the highest officials of the Grand Trunk this morning, and he said that at the approaching meeting of the shareholders in London, Eng., some important changes might be looked for. Mr. Seargeant's position will be changed, but he will still retain his connection with the company, holding another position, with, however, no loss of prestige.

Being asked as to what truth there was in the appointment of Mr. Hayes to the general management, he thought that it was very likely that such would take place, but until the meeting referred to took place, it was premature to speak positively. Other changes, he understood, were contemplated on the staff, but none of any great importance. Mr. Hayes, according to an official of the C.P.R., is one of the cleverest western railway men, who for a long time was an employe of the late Jay Gould; holding important positions on the Northern Pacific and other Gould lines. He has made rapid advancement and is yet a comparatively young man.

The Report Confirmed.

Later.—The appointment of Vice-President Hayes of the Wabash to the general managership of the Grand Trunk Railway, is confirmed, and another important announcement is made regarding the future management of the Grand Trunk. When Sir Charles Rivers Wilson became president he was new to railway work, and the other members of the Board were in about the same position. The president felt at once that there should be a man on the directorate possessing a perfect knowledge of the affairs of the Grand Trunk and of the position of Canada as well, and the president went to work upon his arrival in Canada to find such a man.

Mr Seargeant to Go to London.

After looking over the road and taking in the situation, Sir Charles Rivers Wilson offered this highly honorable position to Mr. L. J. Seargeant, who after due consideration has accepted the well-earned promotion, and will leave Canada within a few months in order to take up his permanent residence in London. The correspondent understands that Mr. Seargeant will be elected to the Board of Directors at the coming annual meeting and from that time will continue to give the president and colleagues the benefit of that ripe experience gained during five years as assistant manager and 22 years connection with the Grand Trunk in Canada.

Some other changes may also be expected, now that the president of the road has reached London, and it is understood that Mr. Barker of Hamilton will come to Montreal and assume the financial duties connected with the general manager's office, but which all along have been considered too heavy for one official to perform.

Earthquake in Italy.

Rome, Oct. 13.—Three shocks of earthquake were felt yesterday in the Verona district. The disturbance was very severe in Malcesino, where a number of chimneys were thrown down and fissures made in the walls of houses.

Look at the people you pass on the street. Their faces tell the story of their lives. They tell the story of penury or plenty, of refinement or coarseness, of health or disease.

Three-fourths of these people are not "exactly well." They are not all "sick," perhaps, but many of them are, and few are quite hale and hearty. Consumption has set its stamp of pallor and emaciation on many of them. Dyspepsia has drawn lines of fretfulness and worry about their eyes, and mouths. Impure blood is showing itself in blotches and pimples. One man has "a little trouble" with his kidneys. Some of the women have chronic constipation, and the other ills that constipation brings. The most pitiful of all faces is the consumptive one. Very likely it has been through the other stages and has at previous times shown dyspepsia, sallowness and bad blood. Consumption doesn't come all at once. It is a creeping disease. It comes on gradually under cover of a hundred differing symptoms. It is the most dreadful of all diseases, but it can be cured if you begin in time. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure it. It will cure all the things that lead to consumption. It is not guaranteed to cure consumption of long standing. There is a stage at which consumption is incurable.

If you will send six cts. to cover postage, with this notice, we will send free a large book (160 pages) that tells exactly what Golden Medical Discovery will do—what it has done in hundreds of cases. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.
