FIRE ON THE PRETORIAN

Greenock, Scotland, Jan. 12—On the Allan line steamer Pretorian, from Philadelphia for Glasgow, which reached here this morning, flames broke out in the smoke room on the upper deck yesterday morning when the liner was about 130 miles from Malin Head. The fire assumed alarming proportions and there was excitement, but the prompt work of the crew arrested the spread of the conflagration.

NO NAVY BUILDING; NATIONALISTS HAVE CARRIED THE DAY

Ottawa, Jan. 12—(Special)—There will not be any money provided in the naval estimates this year for the construction of vessels. The reduction in the naval appropriations by one and a third millions is accounted for by the lack of a constructive programme.

The elimination of this vote, it is understood, satisfies the Nationalist allies of the government at least until such time as a definite naval policy is announced.

AT DIPPER HARBOR.

Reports as to the damage done to the breakwater at Dipper Harbor are greatly exaggerated, according to E. T. P. Shewen, resident engineer of the public works department. An engineer of the department has just arrived from Dipper Harbor and reports that the damage done is not so extensive after all. The wind on the night of the storm was blowing eighty-four miles an hour, and the strong tides stirred up the foundation of the breakwater somewhat, moving it out about seven feet. The work of repairing the wharf will be started soon.

ESTIMATES $80,000

The engineer said that they could not expect as good service this year for the same amount of money. He also mentioned that he had inadvertently omitted an amount of $2,000 for repairs to King street east, which are greatly needed.

It was decided to proceed with the other items before taking a vote.

Ald. C. T. Jones protested against the proposed sale of a horse belonging to the fire department, saying that it could be used by the public works department.

The engineer said that they did not need another horse at present.

The engineer said last year's expenditure for machinery was the cost of a sweeping and dust collecting device which had arrived too late for use this season. He wanted to secure some ice levelling and removing machinery, and some more mud-scrapers for the streets.

Ald. J. B. Jones asked the cost of snow removal, suggesting that with a comparatively small additional expenditure the city would be able to clean the sidewalks as well as the streets.

The engineer replied that the cost had not been kept separate, but he thought the additional cost would be from $5,000 to $10,000.

Estimates Exceeded

The expenditure on public grounds last year exceeded the estimate by $649; Bridges and fences also exceeded the estimates by $27. Asphalt sidewalks also were $1,535 greater than estimated.

The engineer said that the amount for retaining walls would only pay for a small amount of the work which was needed.

Ald. C. T. Jones protested against increased expenditures on cobble-stone gutters, on the ground that asphalt was more sanitary and effective and cheaper to install and maintain.

The total expenditure last year was $364 above the estimates. As they realized from $451 from sales of materials, etc., they still had a balance of $87 on hand.

Ald. Elliott asked why some sidewalks in Victoria street, ordered by the board, had not been laid. He was informed that the money had been exhausted, but that the work would be done in the spring.

Ald. Hayes made a blanket motion to the effect that the estimates be the same as last year with the exception of additional amounts of $4,000 for debentures interest and $1,000 for contingencies, making the total $80,000. This was carried.

King Street East

Ald. Elkin wanted some assurance that King street east be repaired. The engineer said that he would do what he could but could give no guarantee of what would happen after May 1.

Ald. Keirstead also spoke of the need of repairs to King street east. He said that the width of the street and the long neglect justified a bond issue for this purpose. He suggested that the streets should be boulevarded somewhat like Germain street, although a cheaper and better pavement might be secured. He had spoken to some of the residents, and they had all been willing to bear a portion of the cost. He also suggested that the end of King street east could be improved and made attractive for visitors, with little expenditure. He moved that plans be prepared by the engineer for the improvement of this street.

Ald. J. B. Jones suggested that other streets needed repairs as badly, and said that every alderman should have the privilege of recommending what work was needed and then undertaking the matter on a larger scale.

Ald. Hayes said that the motion did not commit them to the expenditure, and he would not approve of undertaking the work without a petition from the residents and an agreement to share the cost; similar applications from other sections would receive the same attention.

The motion was carried.

To Sell Dredge

The committee appointed to consider the application of J. S. Gregory for the hire of the dumping scows used in connection with the city dredge, recommended that tenders be called for the purchase of the dredge and two scows.

Ald. Smith moved the adoption of the report, with the amendment that the sale be by public auction.

Ald. Hayes drew attention to the need of a separate walk for pedestrians on the Wall street bridge, saying that some accident would occur possibly at a time when steam and smoke from shunting engines made it impossible for people to see clearly.

Street Railway Service

Ald. Elliott asked if the street railway could not be compelled to give a better and more adequate service to the north end at the rush hours.

Mayor Frink said that there was no method at present to compel the railway to do anything. It might be feasible to pass a resolution of protest asking for the improved service, and if it were not given a bill might be presented at the coming session to amend the company's charter.

Ald. Hayes suggested that a small committee be appointed to see the directors and this would probably be all that is needed.

Ald. Green said that the company was asking concessions in connection with the new car barns and this would be a good time to deal with them.

Ald. C. T. Jones raised the question of teamsters' wages, and Ald. Green asked why the engineer could not increase the teamsters' pay as well as that of the street foreman.

The engineer said that this was done by order of the board.

On motion of Ald. Smith the wages of the west side teamsters were raised from $10 to $11 a week. The meeting then adjourned.
