BELLEISLE.

Campbell Willett, Robert Engleson and Reginald Longley left last Saturday to spend Christmas with relatives in Massachusetts.

Miss Minnie Elliott, of Mount Hanley is spending the holidays here the guest of her aunt, Miss Annie Bent.

Ernest A. Ray, of the M. S. F. M., Waverley, Mass., came home on Saturday last to see his father, who is very seriously indisposed.

One of the very best Christmas presents that could be came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Churchill L. Goodwin on Sunday last. Congratulations—a boy.

Mrs. N. K. Clements and daughter, Mary, of Yarmouth, will spend Christmas with her brother Charles Wade.

Miss Agnes Gesner, of the Normal School, Truro, and sister Lizzie, who is teaching at Greywood, are spending their Christmas vacations home with their parents, Capt. William Y. and Mrs. Gesner.

Harry L. Bustin, principal of the High school, Bridgetown, and Mrs. Bustin will spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Bustin, at his old home here.

NORTH WILLIAMSTON.

The special services have been postponed until next Monday evening.

A pie social will be held in the Union hall on Friday evening. If stormy, on Saturday evening. All are cordially invited. Proceeds for the benefit of the hall.

We are sorry to report that Mrs. Oliver DeLancey met with quite a serious accident last Friday. During the heavy gale she went out to feed her poultry and as she started to return to the house she was driven with such force by the wind to a post near by, as to cause the fracture of her ribs.

Miss Emma Hiltz returned home last Saturday from the United States.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Stevenson entertained a large number of relatives on Christmas day.

MT. ROSE.

A merry Christmas and happy new Year to the Monitor and its staff.

Our school closed on Friday for the holidays. On Friday afternoon our teacher, Miss Anderson, gave a Christmas tree for her scholars and a well prepared program of readings and recitations for the older ones. After the program had been carried out, Miss Anderson presented her scholars with gifts of dolls, candy, nuts, etc., which we know was highly appreciated by them all. Miss Anderson also received several presents from the scholars. The gifts to both scholars and teacher show the love they have for one another. We congratulate our teacher for the noble loving way she has conducted our school. We all join in wishing her a merry Christmas and happy New Year. At the close God Save the King was sung.

William Messenger, principal teacher at Westport has arrived home to spend his vacation with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Howard Messenger.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Foster, of Carleton Corner are spending their holidays with their parents and other friends here.

Mrs. John Miller, who was taken ill at the home of Stephen Foster, was moved to the home of her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Stark, where she still lies in a very critical position, being helpless. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

About Digestion

It is not the quality of food taken but the amount digested and assimilated that gives strength and vitality to the system. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets invigorate the stomach and liver and enable them to perform their functions. The result is a relish for your food, increased strength and weight, greater endurance and a clear head. Price, 25 cents. Samples free. For sale by W. A. Warren, Phm. B.

For any of the ordinary diseases of the skin Chamberlain's Salve is excellent. It not only allays the itching and smarting but effects a cure. For sale by W. A. Warren, Phm .B.

PARADISE.

Rosie Starratt, of New York, is visiting at the home of his sister, Mrs. G. L. Pearson.

Mrs. Croscup, Miss Croscup and Miss Robbee, of Granville, are guests of Mrs. F. W. Bishop.

Our schools closed on Friday. A suitable program was given. This together with a Christmas tree and treat made the occasion a very enjoyable one for the children. The teachers, Miss Onley and Miss Daniels are spending their vacation at their homes.

H. D. Starratt loaded two cars with apples for the English market last week.

W. H. Longley, of Yale University, and T. D. Ruggles, of U. N. B. are home for Christmas holidays.

We wish to correct an error made last week. The Literary Society will meet with Mr. and Mrs. J. McCallum on the evening of Monday, January 7th, instead of December 31st.

TORBROOK.

John Gillis left for Londonderry on Saturday last.

Joseph Judge and family, arrived in town last Thursday and will occupy the house owned by B. S. Banks at Torbrook Mines.

W. Bernard Foster, Acadia 08, is home to spend his Christmas holidays.

Miss Ethel H. Wheelock, who is taking the domestic science course at Normal school, arrived home last week.

Sidney Wood intends doing considerable lumbering on the Wheelock and Banks properties. About 300,000 feet will be sawed.

A number of cars loaded with ore left the track at the safety switch last week. In the frosty weather it is difficult to make the brakes work on a steep grade.

H. F. Putner, boss at the mines, spent Christmas at his home in Hants Co.

How Diphtheria is Contracted.

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly susceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted. For sale by W. A. Warren, Phm. B.

Do You Think For Yourself ?

Or, do you open your mouth like a young bird and gulp down whatever food or medicine may be offered you?

When an intelligent thinking woman, in need of relief from weakness, nervousness, pain and suffering, then it means much to you that there is one tried and true honest medicine of known composition, sold by druggists for the cure of woman's ills.

The makers of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of weak, nervous, run-down, over-worked, debilitated, pain-racked women, knowing this medicine to be made up of ingredients, every one of which has the strongest possible indorsement of the leading and standard authorities of the several schools of practice, are perfectly willing, and in fact, are only too glad to print, as they do, the formula, or list of ingredients, of which it is composed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper.

The formula of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will bear the most critical examination of medical experts, for it contains no alcohol, narcotics, harmful, or habit-forming drugs, and no agent enters into it that is not highly recommended by the most advanced and leading medical teachers and authorities of their several schools of practice. These authorities recommend the ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the cure of exactly the same ailments for which this world-famed medicine is advised.

No other medicine for woman's ills has any such professional endorsement as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has received, in the unqualified recommendation of each of its several ingredients by scores of leading medical men of all the schools of practice. Is such an endorsement not worthy of your consideration?

A booklet of ingredients, with numerous authoritive profesional endorsements by the leading medical authorities of this country, will be mailed free to any one sending name and address with request for same. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

CHIPS PICKED UP.

[illegible] of what is commonly [illegible] on account of the dangers [illegible] subject to the question as to whether it is right or wrong [illegible] religious organizations to receive and appropriate money obtained by such means as [illegible] and courage to carry on that work—assuming of course that the vast sums accumulated by these men were gathered by reasonable or honest methods.

Why should not the grasping hands even of unprincipled men be wrested from them—especially when willingly surrendered—that they may be appropriated as the men to do good means for promoting the interests which make for the uplifting of humanity—for the promotion and extension of Christ's kingdom in the world, rather than to be hoarded over to even more unprincipled men for the promotion of still greater evil?

The man who for his own selfish purposes and to gratify his greed of gain, appropriates that which is not rightfully his own, is guilty of sin against the laws of God and men, and he who for the same selfish purposes accepts of such acquisitions is doubtless alike guilty—but no blame can be attached to those who for the furtherance of religious philanthropic or educational purposes, accept the voluntary contributions of men whose methods if unquestionably scrutinized, are questionabbl but are yet within the limit of the law, and who hold their treasure by the power of inherent right. To their own master they must stand or fall.

One might imagine the arch deceiver who watched at the gates of Eden to thwart the purposes of the Almighty, insuring vigilancy to this much mooted question, waiting eagerly the issue thereof—will they take the munions with which I purpose to carry nefarious schemes for the solving and harvesting of all evil that shall forward the downfall of humanity and hinder the purposes of the Most High.

The multi-millions heaped up by cool calculating, even unprincipled men, are yet a mighty force, which no possibility can prevent existing a power for the promotion of good or evil, according to the purpose of those in whose hands they are held.

It is said a curse follows ill-gotten riches. No curse rests on the good, which is God's good gift to men, but—the words of the wise men are true—"The wealth of the sinner shall be laid up for the just." Let it be gladly accepted and wisely used for the promotion of truth and righteousness—for all good and noble purposes which have for their aim the progress and advancement of the race towards higher and nobler attainments.

Some four or five years ago an old German standing idly on the streets of Chicago exclaimed excitedly, "Vell, vell, What's the matter wid the women?" as thirty thousand American females with banners and leader, laughter and song, marched with them, walking delegate at their head, through the streets of that much besterred city—the representatives of the various trades unions.

And still, what's the matter with the women—English women, perhaps some Canadian women, for the echo of the cry of the suffragists is both loud and long. We cannot but admire the courtesy and dignity of the premier, Campbell-Bannerman when the long procession of vigorous and determined female agitators invaded the foreign office, demanding the right to vote or they die. But it is easy to imagine his amused expression as he watched their retreating footsteps, indignation and dissatisfaction manifested in every movement from the crown of the head to the sole of the foot.

The clamor for woman's suffrage is after all only maintained by a small minority—but there are doubtless earnest womanly women who look upon the extension of the franchise as a powerful and for the correction of many existing evils both social and civic.

These are not those who clamor loudly for their rights, or protest so vociferously against the selfishness and deprivation of masculine law makers—but who faith in humanity, the humane impulse [illegible] have wider scope for their womanly influence and wield greater power for the general good.

Are these women prepared to take upon themselves the cares and responsibilities which such a position invokes? Women's suffrage means much more than going to the polls and giving a ballot in favor or against this or that measure. Much time and thought, much care and labor are involved in order to the wise and intelligent use of so great a responsibility.

Have they not already greater obligations resting upon them than they can humanly discharge? Are there not more wide open doors which they may enter for public and private good, which they are daily passing by and neglecting? Laws over-moral and civic reforms are needed—better laws might be enacted, but if the ballot were granted to women, while there are some right-minded women who would intelligently use this power, there are as many who would use it carelessly, without motive or thought or as their inclination, ambition or fancies directed, so that the prospects of better results seem scarcely perceptible.

After all the state of society is not so much the result of imperfect law making as it is of the imperfect character of the units of which society is composed—and though it may be easier and more important to sit in committee in city or convention, and frame constitutions and pass resolutions, even to go to the polls and vote for or against this or that, rather than to work quietly through the silent potent influences which as powerful leaven move and uplift vast forces; yet the latter is the only sure method.

Let the women of this twentieth century stand fast by the principals which is the foundation of all womanly greatness—let themselves for their royal prerogative—develop their womanly greatness in ways that He who in the beginning created them made and remade seem best suited to the creatures He had made—discharge faithfully the duties which meet them on every hand. To do this will be greater than ruling the state—higher than to grasp the grave responsibilities which suffrage might they ever attain to, would confer upon them.

From an article published in Harper's Weekly written by Rupert Hughes entitled, "Small We become with Us," the Canadian magazine quotes some startling facts which must, to say the least, be very distasteful to the loud exclaimers of spread eagle oratory and the high mightiness of the greatest nation on earth, but rather soothingly to Canadian ears, so long accustomed to the garbled accounts and suppressed facts contained in United states school histories and other reports of the year of independence and that of 1812. And so it may open the eyes of the youth of our land to the greatness of our own high heritage, and the debt we owe to those who fought for it and paid it for our inheritance.

Canadians who know what their loyal forefathers suffered will be pleased at the frank admission of the sufferings and mortification they received during the war of the Revolution, which lasted seven years, and which he plainly declares would have failed but for the intervention of France! Think of Yorktown with the French fleet away. Think of the salvation French money rendered our fruitful treasury."

The writer in the Canadian magazine remarks: "A Canadian who has read the accounts given by American school histories of the war of 1812, can recall his irritation at the failure to chronicle the affair at Queenstown Heights as well as other events in which American forces were not brilliantly successful."

But Mr. Hughes, patriotic American though he declares himself to be, makes ample amends.

"I remember," he says, "being taught in school, that we won the war of 1812 gloriously. Also I remember my dismay on finding the true details. There was a land campaign in which cowardice vied with inefficiency in which our capital was captured by the British and in which the only respectable victory—that of New Orleans—was won after a treaty in which peace for which we went to war.

He speaks in brighter terms of their naval history, but reminds them that in 1814 we had not a single vessel on the sea—every one, being captured, sunk or blockaded in port.

Mr. Hughes speaks with no uncertain sound of the political life of his country when he says: "Our political life has always been a source of shame to ourselves and a consolation to foreign monarchies. There has always been a time when our political life has not given off a foul stench."

Surely he is a brave man and has the courage of his criticisms.

It is a source of regret that in so many of our Canadian homes bookshelves and tables are littered with purely American literature, setting forth in burning headlines the great achievements, great institutions, the altogether great doings of the really great Republic to the exclusion of the knowledge of the thrilling records of our own historic story—our unequalled resources of the splendid possibilities of this great Dominion as well as a greater knowledge of the mighty empire—"Our Mother's House" by which God grant we may ever abide."

And now, once again the call of the ages comes to the dying year and placing his record in the archives of heaven he robes himself in his icy garments and goes out to lie down with the innumerable hosts of the dead years hidden away in the vast sarcophagus of the universe.

Another milestone passed in our journey towards the silent sea—another account to be rendered—when the books are opened.
