A BIRDS WING.

[St. Nicholas.]

Did you ever look at a birds wing carefully and try to find out out from it the way in which it is used? People usually suppose, either that a bird flies because it is lighter than air, like a baloon, or that it rows itself along as a boat is rowed through the water. Neither of these suppositions is true. A bird is not lighter than the air, nor does it float; for when a bird is shot on the wing it falls to the ground just as quickly as the squirrel. On the contrary, a bird flies on its own weight, and could not fly at all if it were not heavier than the air.

Look at a quill-feather, and you will see that on each side of the central shaft or quill,there is a broad, thin portion, which is called vane. The vane on one side of the shaft is quite broad and flexible, while that on the other side is narrow and stiff; and by looking at a wing with the feathers in their places, you will find that they are placed so that they overlap a little,like the slats on a window blind. Each broad vane runs under the narrow vane of the feather beside it, so that, when the wing is moved downward, each feather is pressed up against the stiff, narrow vane of the one beside it, and the whole wing forms a solid sheet like the blinds with the slats closed. After the down stroke is finished and the up stroke begins, the pressure is taken off from the lower surface of the wing, and begins to act on the upper surface and to press the feathers downward instead of upward. The broad vanes now have nothing to support them, and they bend down and allow the air to pass through the wing,which is now like a blind with the slats open. By these two contrivances—the shape of the wing,and the shape and arrangement of the feathers—the wing resists the air on its down-stroke and raises the bird a little at each flap, but at each up-stroke allows the air to slide off at the sides, and to pass through between the feathers, so that nothing is lost.

A PAGEANT IN SIAM.

[Rev. J. Wilson, Siam.]

The rice crop this year is a bountiful one, and the people are rejoicing over it. The second king came in from the country on Sabbath morning. He had been out on his fields threshing his rice. Returning,he arranged for the yearly procession that is made at the close of the harvest. The first gong had rung for our religious service just as the procession reached the lower compound. The noice of bells on the elephants,and the chanting of the riders, together with the music made by the king's band, made it necessary for us to delay the ringing of the second gong until after the procession had passed. I had not supposed it was to be so great an affair. A large number of elephants had passed before I began to count, but I counted 110 as they passed along one by one. I was told there was 170 in all the procession. One of the largest wore trappings of the brightest silver. The howdas contained rice. All these were decorated with green branches. The procession was in honor of the guardian spirits that preside over the rice crop. Those that could see the procession in its whole length considered it the most imposing one that has passed for years.

A "DEVILFISH" CAPTURED.

[From the San Francisco Chronicle, June 17.]

An octopus, or "devilfish," was captured on Tuesday by some Italian fishermen while fishing near the Farallones, and placed on exhibition in Centre Market,where it was viewed by hundreds of persons yesterday. One of the fishermen came near losing his life in attempting to land the monster, which had fouled in his lines, and on coming to the surface fastened three of its long tenacles around the man's neck, and would have drawn him overboard had not one of his companions severed the arm from the body. The monster is a cephaloped mollusk, having a round purse-like body about a foot and a half long. It has eight arms or tentacles, measuring twelve feet from the tip of one tenacle to the tip of another. It has no fins, and swims backward and forward by the aid of its arms, something after the manner of the jellyfish.

A TRAIN STOPPED BY CATERPILLARS.

Colonies and India quotes from a New Zealand paper the following story:—In the neighborhood of Turakin an army of caterpillars, hundreds of thousands strong, was marching across the railway line, bound for a new field of oats, when a train came along. Thousands of the creeping vermin were crushed by the wheels of the engine, and suddenly the train came to a dead stop. On examining it was found that the wheels of the engine had become so greasy that they kept on revolving without advancing—they could not grip the rails. The guard and the engine driver procured sand and strewed it on the rails, and the train made a fresh start,but it was found that during the stoppage caterpillars in thousands had crawled all over the engine, and all over the carriage inside and out.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F.

International complications are threatened by the statement of the commander of a French war vessel off the west coast, that residents of the French shore of Newfoundland, where the French have liberty to catch and dry fish, cannot be legally constrained to pay custom duties. The duties on this part of the coast have been collected on some occasions at the point of the bayonet.

The Great American Remedy for COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, BRONCHITIS, LOSS OF VOICE, HOARSENESS AND THROAT AFFECTIONS.

GRAY'S SYRUP OF RED SPRUCE GUM.

Prepared from the finest Red Spruce Gum. (Delicious Flavor.) Balsamic, Soothing, Expectorant and Tonic. Superior to any medicine offered for all the above complaints. A scientific combination of the Gum which exudes from the Red Spruce tree—without doubt the most valuable native Gum for Medicinal purposes.

Every one has heard of the wonderful effects of the Spruces and the Pines in cases of Lung Disease.

In France the physicians regularly send their consumptive patients to the pine woods and order them to drink a tea made from the Spruce tops.

In this preparation the Gum never separates, and all its antispasmodic, expectorant, tonic, and balsamic properties are preserved.

This Syrup, carefully prepared at a low temperature, contains a large quantity of the finest Robed Gum in complete solution.

Its remarkable power in relieving certain forms of Bronchitis, and its almost specific effect in curing obstinate hacking Coughs, is now well known to the public at large.

Sold by all respectable chemists. Price, 25 and 50 cents a bottle.

The words "Syrup of Red Spruce Gum" constitute our Registered Trade Mark, and our wrapper and labels are also registered.
