TUESDAY January 14, 1919.

ON GUARD!

Within a week, the inaugural sitting of the Peace Conference will be held, to be precise on Saturday next, January 18th. It is not made clear in the despatch, announcing this date, whether there will be any German representatives present at this session or not, neither does any subsequent dispatch announce the personnel of the late enemy's delegation. Nothing has been cabled from across to show that a Constitutional form of Government exists in Germany, or that the Ebert administration has been placed in power by the exercise of the peoples franchise. In fact we are kept very much in the dark concerning many things, which in the public interest should be made known. This is not due, however, to any disinclination on the part of the home authorities to permit the passage of news over the cables to America, but it is doubtless because of a reluctance on the part of those endeavouring to control the situation in Germany to let the real truth be known.

However enough has come through to show that the last state of our late enemy is worse than her first. Socialists, Bolsheviks and Spartacans are at each others throats, each faction struggling for the mastery, and the country is in the throes of revolution, which is rapidly communicating itself to the main centres of industry and paralyzing the efforts of those who are willing to begin the process of industrial reconstruction.

What is the real object of the present revolutionary movement in Germany, is a question frequently asked, but not readily answered. It is impossible to answer it offhandedly. Since the very day of the signing of the armistice, there has been an evident intention on the part of the German form of government to embarrass the carrying out of the conditions, the delays which have occurred being to their advantage. Unusual procrastination has marked their conformity to the terms, and having secured one prolongation, they have applied for and been granted another. What their purpose is in this, it should not be difficult to perceive. They are stalling off the Allies with some deep scheme in view. In peace as in war the Hun is tricky and utterly unscrupulous, and if his object is to sow dissension, at the Peace Conference, against Britain, regarded by all Germans as their arch enemy, and doubly hated because of her part in the war, and the checkmating of Germany's world game, he is not likely to be over squeamish about the course to pursue in this respect. There is plot and counterplot in Berlin, where to all appearances everything is confusion, but underlying the chaos there is a significant something. In proof of this comes a cable from London via Rotterdam, stating that the organizers of the Berlin coup so arranged their plans that in the armies demobilization, the troops who were released from service, consisted only of those who were not affected by any revolutionary spirit. The soldiers remaining with the colors, be it noted, are in perfect sympathy with either one or the other group of factionaries. The consequence is that the German Army not yet demoblized is largely a Red army, which has announced its intention to ignore any national assembly, and as it holds the reins of power, and has arms in its hands, it is in a position to enforce its usurpation. Against this armed force there is the Ebert group, which at present appears to control the National Government, and with which party, the Allies are apparently dealing, so far as we know. Ebert himself has great influence among the organized workers of Germany, and may possibly be animated by the best of intentions now, but it must not be forgotten that when Bethman-Holwegg in 1914 proclaimed that "necessity knows no law," and that Germany was "hacking her way through Belgium," Herr Ebert was one of the Socialist majority in the Reichstag which cheered itself hoarse over these statements.

Considering the sorts and conditions of Germans with which the Allies have to deal in finalizing Peace terms they, and especially the British, will have to be continually "On Guard."

The Evangelists.

The evangelistic services now being conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Demarest, were continued at Gower St. Church last night, where a large and devout congregation of worshippers assembled to hear Mrs. Demarest's discourse on Prayer. That the Song Service which lasts from 7.45 until 8.15 is enjoyed to the full, and is a very real source of blessing, is amply demonstrated by the deep interest shown and the whole-souled participation in the inspiring hymns which are sung at those services. Last night Mrs. Demarest very beautifully rendered a verse of "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me," while Mr. Demarest, with much expression, sang "Have you Heard the Glorious Tidings, Jesus Saves from Doubt and Fear," a hymn which was written by Mrs. Catherine Booth Clibborn, mother of Mrs. Demarest, after which Mrs. Demarest proceeded to address the congregation on the subject chosen for the evening, namely, "Prayer," taking as the basis of her sermon the command "Pray without ceasing." It is impossible to do anything approaching justice in this article to the able and impressive manner in which the evangelist dealt with this all-important theme. Prayer was shown to be the "breathing of the spirit." The ministry of prayer is a power of unlimited influence, and that it is indispensable to the soul. Prayer may be divided into three classes; first, supplication; second, communion; third, praise.

The first is essential. The prayer of the transgressor, "God be merciful to me, a sinner." Supplication is also the prayer of the Christian, for are we not told to "ask and we shall receive," and "eye hath not seen nor ear heard, neither hath entered into the heart of man the things which God hath prepared for those who love him." Some Christians never get beyond the prayer of supplication, are so wrapped in self that it is me, me, me, from beginning to the Amen; such prayers do not get beyond the ceiling, and are an offence unto God who was so unselfish as to lay down the life of His only begotten Son for the salvation and redemption of the world.

The second class—communion—is a prayer of exchange, an exchange of thought, an exchange of love and service, a reasoning with God, having an audience with the King of Kings, to be in constant fellowship with Him. God needs our fellowship, for during the terrible agonies of Gethsemane, He said, "could ye not watch with Me one hour?" God's ways are higher than our ways, and His thoughts higher than our thoughts; we need to be in constant communication with Him in order that our lives may be lived in harmony with the perfect pattern, Christ.

The third kind of prayer, namely, praise, was shown to be the most perfect form of worship, while supplication is the lowest type. No prayer is possible in a soul that is in rebellion against God. The first condition of prayer is repentance, and humility. We must approach God with clean hearts, and take the name of God on pure lips. Communion with God is only possible through consecration, and praise can only follow open and free communion with Him, for in order to praise God we must know how praiseworthy He is.

The discourse from beginning to the ending was highly profitable and deeply impressive, and those whose whose privilege it was to listen to the cultured and eloquent evangelist could not but be convinced of the tremendous importance of prayer, the utter indispensibility to the soul of the worthy Christian of close and constant communion with the Father through the hallowed fellowship of the Son.

At the close of the address and opportunity was given to those who felt their need of re-consecration and re-dedication to the Master's service, to kneel together at the communion rail, an opportunity which was availed of by many of the worshippers, for only "those who serve Him best are conscious most of wrong within," and feel their need of leaning on the "Everlasting Arm." To-night Mrs. Demarest speaks on "The Lily."—W.D.

Col. Bruce Porter, K.B.E., C.M.G.

January 13th, 1919.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Information has been received from the Pay and Record Office, London, stating that Col. H. E. B. Bruce-Porter, C.M.G., has been honored by the King by being made Knight of the Order of the British Empire. His Majesty's recognition of the services of Col. Bruce-Porter will be especially pleasing to officers and men of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment.

As the Officer Commanding 3rd London General Hospital, Wandsworth, he has at all times shown especial kindness to all ranks of our Regiment. I feel sure that the parents and relatives of all Newfoundland soldiers who have had the fortune to be in the 3rd London General Hospital will appreciate the distinction which has just been conferred on Col. Bruce-Porter.

I should be very glad if you will intimate to the public through the columns of your paper the distinction which I refer to above.

J. R. BENNETT,
Minister of Militia.

Killed in Action.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kennedy, of Harbor Grace, received the sad news on Jan. 4th, that their son, Corporal J. Thomas Kennedy, of the Machine Gun Battalion, U.S. Forces, had been killed in action on October 4th, 1918. "Tom," as he was familiarly called, left Harbor Grace about six years ago for New York, where he resided up till the entry of the United States into the war, when he enlisted and went overseas with the first American troops, June 26th, 1918. His many friends will hear with deep regret of his sad death just one month previous to the signing of the armistice. Corporal Kennedy was in his 24th year, and is survived by his parents, two sisters Mrs. W. N. MacNeill, Carbonear, Miss Lulu at home; also two brothers, Alexander, R.N.R., and Clarence at home.

Flour Dealers Meet F. C. B.

With the chairman of the Food Control Board presiding, the flour dealers, wholesale and retail, met at 4 o'clock in the Board of Trade Rooms, yesterday afternoon. On behalf of the committee of flour importers, Mr. Jos. Peters reported that, after holding many meetings, they had found the disposal of substitutes beset with many difficulties. The F. C. B. had helped in the matter. Clear heads are necessary to extricate us from the mess into which the war has left us. The chairman then spoke to some length, referring to the institution of substitutes at the command of Canadian authorities. Charges that the present situation did not call for substitutes were preferred against the Board. He went to some pains to disprove this. Our problem is different from our neighbours. Two-thirds of our coastline is blocked with ice during a portion of the year and the majority of our people have to get their supplies in the Fall, necessitating dealers to have in big supplies, which are still on hand. The U. S. A. has one and a half million barrels of substitutes now on hand, and is vainly trying to find a market therefore. If substitutes are "hog food" then they were hog food all along. The Board had no desire to make people use them any longer than necessary, but had to be fair to those who had large stocks on hand through no fault of theirs.

At the conclusion, Mr. John Browning enquired as to how the regulations regarding substitutes had been carried out here, and was informed that, "as well as the machinery permitted." Mr. Browning wanted to know if a certain bakery going to start shortly would be allowed to manufacture without substitutes, when he had bought up a large quantity. The reply was that the new concern will be dealt when it comes. Others speakers were Mr. J. Maher, on behalf of A. Harvey and Co.'s bakery; Mr. W. Campbell, Mr. Peters, Mr. G. R. Williams, Hon. M. G. Winter, Hon. F. McNamara and Mr. Moore.

At present the F. C. Board is trying to get rid of the substitutes with a minimum of loss. It will recommend to the Government that the regulations be lifted after Feb. 1st.

Prospero Arrives.

The S. S. Prospero arrived from the northern route at 1 o'clock this morning. The trip was one of the stormiest in the captain's experience, a succession of storms, with the mercury frequently below zero, being met with. She was frozen in at St. Anthony, and considerable dynamite had to be used to blast the ship out. All the harbours are frozen solid, and the bays are filled with slob ice. She brought a full cargo of herring from Green Bay, and the following passengers came by her:—Messrs. Patey, Gill, Levy, Blandford, Pte. Hearn, Watson, Martin, Pte. Andrews, Hearn, Paddock, Campbell, Pte. Taylor, Dr. Kellin, Pte. Taylor, Winsor, Byrne, Manuel, Pte. Roberts, Howlett, Guy, Rideout (2), Pte. Spence, Pte. Gidge, Pte. White, Pte. Rice, White, Pte. Sexton, Cobb, Holmes, Payne, Jones (2), Bowers, Anthony, Sergt. Bishop, Thompson, Pte. White, Young, Burton, Pte. Hunt, Capt. Kean, Master Kean, Churchill, Templeman, Brown, Verge, Lodge Rice, Strong Corpl. Mursell, Fleet, Hiscock, McDonald, White; Mesdames Willin, Wills, Pickford, Cobb, Holloway, Churchill; Misses White Mursell, Saunders, Taylor, Primmer, Wells, Kean, Gill, Taylor, and 30 in steerage.

Dramatic Company.

One of the funniest comedies ever staged in tS. John's by local artists will be presented at Canon Wood Hall, on Monday, January 27th, by the Llewellyn Dramatic Company. The play which is in three acts and is entitled: "A Tangled Skein," or "Doll's Deception," is just one continuous laugh from beginning to end. The characters are being taken by Messrs. S. R. Steele. B. B. Rendell, W. E. Stirling, J. C. Fitzgerald, C. J. Oke, Miss E. Coaker and Mrs. W. E. Stirling. The entire proceeds will be devoted to charitable purposes.

The Old "Ding Dong."

We are tired of the same old talking,
We are sick of the old ding dong,
Our eyes are weak and weary,
From reading those letters long,
All telling the same old story,
All promising glorious things
Of the housing schemes quite hoary, hoary,
They've been promised for several springs.

Oh quit the writing and talking,
And take up the shovel and pick,
Let us hear the sound of a hammer
A making a sill from a stick,
Let us see one upright-erected,
'Twill banish our trouble and care,
Do something, for the truth I will tell you,
We are sick of this blooming hot air.

Association Meets.

The Nfld. Poultry Association held its eighth annual meeting last night in the Board of Trade building. H. W. LeMessurier, Esq., C.M.G., President of the Association, was in the chair, and Mr. J. Calver was present as Secretary. The President submitted the annual report for past year. It showed how influenza and other causes had prevented the annual exhibition last fall. Those interested in poultry had formed a branch association at Bell Island, and President LeMessurier and his committee on their visit to the Island on Empire Day were entertained by the Dominion Iron and Steel Co. The financial report showed a sound balance. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. President—Geo. W. Gushue, Esq.

Hon. Vice-Presidents—Sir William Reid, Percie Johnson R. B. Job and Hon. J. A. Clift, C.B.E.

President—H. W. LeMessurier, C.M.G.

1st Vice-President, Geo. R. Williams.

2nd Vice-President—Stanley White.

Secretary—J. F. Calver.

Asst. Secretary—Harvey McNeill.

Treasurer—W. R. Butler.

Directors—Messrs. E. E. Payne, S. Emberley, A. G. Carter, John Duff and Thomas Lynch.

Owing to demand for eggs the increase in the number of birds kept by poultry men, will probably be large in the year 1919.

Christmas Tree

AT ST. FRANCIS.'

The first Christmas Tree held at the new parish of St. Francis (Logy Bay, Outer Cove and Middle Cove) was a striking success. The sum of $2,000.00 was netted. This result is entirely due to the generosity and enthusiasm of the people of the parish, and the pronounced harmony and tranquility evident upon all sides. Unity is strength and peace invigorating; hence the unprecedented success, which, for a Christmas Tree, would appear to constitute a record that will require an effort to surpass.

When it is borne in mind that the parish of St. Francis numbers not more than seven hundred souls, and that 95 p.c. of the proceeds emanated from the purses of the parish, the splendid generosity and enthusiasm, as well as the thorough method and system employed, will be readily realized and understood. Furthermore, in justice to these large-hearted and devoted people, it may be briefly stated that in the short period of eight months approximately $20,000.00 in cash have been subscribed by them (or largely by them) for various objects, chiefly, of course, for parochial purposes, including dues. In addition to this splendid showing there are gifts of lumber amounting to several thousands of dollars, and also, which speaks volumes, not less than ten thousand dollars representing free labour. Thus, as can be seen at a glance, the new parish is progressing very satisfactorily, though very quietly; and all, pastor and people, are eagerly looking forward to the late Spring or early summer when His Grace the Archbishop will be present to bless and open the beautiful new church; and also bless the splendid new presbytery; for His Grace's keen interest in the parish, and his appreciation and encouragement at all times are keenly appreciated by all.

To all who assisted in any way during the year just concluded both pastor (Fr. O'Callaghan) and people are deeply grateful.

Secures Big Agency.

Mr. B. Page, Gower st., has been appointed Sole Newfoundland agent for the MacMillian Publishing Co. and the Times History of the war The MacMillian firm is one of the best and certainly the most well-known in the world, while everybody has heard or read of the Times History of the War—which contains a history of Newfoundland's part in the war, written by F. A. McKenzie the famous war correspondent, so that Mr. Page is very likely to meet with a warm reception, and do a good business.

Welcome to Veteran.

Peter's River and St. Vincent were gally bedecked with flags on Xmas day to welcome home one of our heroes, in the person of Pte. Edward White who arrived at St. Vincent by carriage at 2 o'clock. He was heartily welcomed by numerous friends. Volley after volley was fired, which could be plainly heard at Peters River and Middle Gut 3 miles distant. After a short interviesw he left for his home, Peter's River a large number accompanied him. He was met half way by other friends; when he reached home a right royal reception was given him. A bountiful repast was served to 80 persons or more, every one doing full justice to the good things provided. Dancing was kept up until the "wee sma hours" of the morning. Pte. Edward White enlisted in the 1st Nfld. Regt. and was taken a prisoner of war in 1917. He is feeling in the pink and is glad to be able to be home to the old fire-side once more and tells brief tales about Germany and wonders why he was treated so well.

Second Lecture.

The second of a series of lectures by Rev J. Brinton on "Church History" was given last night in the Synod Hall. The lecturer stated, and backed up his statements by lantern slides, that the church founded in Britain in the early centuries was not destroyed by the Anglo-Saxon races, but the church was driven into Wales and Cornwall. Later the Anglo-Saxons were converted to Christianity. The speaker referred to St. Aidan, St. Augustine, Wilfred, Chadd and others who had played an important part in the Christianizing campaign. In the time of Theodore, the first Archbishop of Canterbury, the English Church was amalgamated under one head, the work of Bede as an historian could not be over-estimated. Scenes of churches built at this period were shown. Rev. Canons Bayley and Smart were present, and the former proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer which was given. The singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting.

Schooner Safe.

A message received from Britannia yesterday by the Minister of Marine and fisheries stated that the schr. Inez G. had arrived there safely.

The schooner left here Saturday, and rode out the gale sheltered under Green Bay Head, below Trinity Harbor. She sustained no damage.

Much anxiety is felt far another schooner, the Portia, owned by Samuel Short and Sons of Hant's Harbor, which left here on Saturday. However it is presumed that it is the Portia which was anchored during the gale at Western Bay. If so she will probably get home to-day.

Truckmen's Union.

The St. John's Truckmen's Union held its regular quarterly meeting last night. Several candidates were made members.

During the discussion the subject of motor trucks, being driven by Union men, came up and it was decided that as the use of motor trucks did not help the tuckmen, but vice-versa, then no Union man or truckman should work with any firm employing one of these motor trucks, nor could he be the owner of such a vehicle.

GERMAN DILATORINESS.

LONDON, Jan. 13.

[...] to-day's session of the Allied [...]ary advisers in Paris, presided [...] by Marshal Foch, the suggestion [...]nade that the Allies occupy some [...] the German ports. According to [...]xchange Telegraph Company de[spatch] from Paris, the occupation [...] be undertaken as a guarantee [...]he carrying out by Germany of [...]rmistice conditions, and as pun[ishme]nt for Germany's dilatory meth[ods] in complying with some of the [...]tice terms.

PARIS, Jan. 13.

[The] armistice question, as taken up [by th]e Supreme Council yesterday, [led to] a more difficult one than was [anti]pated, and as this was the press[ing] matter, the armistice delegates [have] been summoned to meet at [...]s on Tuesday and Wednesday, [...]thing had to give way before it. [The] question was not only one of the [...]ry methods of the Germans in [drag]ging out the conditions relative to [the] handing over of material, etc., but [also] her considerations of a more [...]an character. The attention of [the] Council was particularly held by [r]eports of internal conditions in [Ger]many, and the Revolutionary sit[uatio]n that had developed in Bremen. [In] this connection also, the Council [exam]ined the Polish situation. The [...]ans contrary to the stipulation of [the] armistice, with re[gard] to the Eastern front, are reported [to] manoeuvering in every possible [way] to impede the Poles in organiz[ing] their country, and in defending [them]selves against the advance of the [Bol]sheviki forces. It is understood [that] as the result of the various re[...] the Council decided that fur[ther] guarantees would be required o[f Ger]many for the renewal of the ar[mistic]e. The guarantees it was said [would] be both economic and military. [In] exchange it was added the pro[...]ing of Germany might be con[sider]ed. The subject of these new [guara]ntees demanded careful study. [It] was this fact that led to th[e meet]ing together of the experts this [morn]ing. The result of their de[liber]ations were to be submitted t[o the] Council this afternoon, at which [it] was hoped it would be possibl[e to] draw up the new terms which [Marsh]al Foch would present to th[e Germ]ans at Treves.
