ORGANIC CHURCH UNION.

Conference on the Subject Between Toronto Ministers.

Anglican, Presbyterian and Baptist Views on the Subject.

TORONTO, Jan. 23.—An important conference on the subject of church union took place this morning between a committee representing the Anglican Ministerial Association and the Ministerial Association proper, representing Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists and Congregationalists. Rev. Wm. Frizzle, president of the association, occupied the chair, and the attendance was large.

Rev. Jas. Grant presented the views of the Baptists on organic union. He thought there should be little difficulty in finding some means of amalgamation between the Baptists and Congregationalists. But, however, the Baptists would just have to possess new sentiments and opinions on the subject of baptism, a matter which was to the members of the Baptist community a matter of faith. The teaching of the Baptists were that the ordinances were means of grace only as they accentuated gospel truths. Baptists could not enter the proposed union without abandoning their belief as to the subject fitted for baptism.

Provost Body dealt with the matter from the Anglican standpoint. He was glad to be able to discuss with his brethren of the Ministerial Association, and referred to the meeting of Presbyterians, Methodists and Anglicans at the first conference held in the city three years ago. He was quite certain that the proposed movement would ultimately result in success. Beyond question the trend of Christian thought was toward Christian union. The Anglican Church was not seeking to put out an independent panacea of her own. Things which were non-essential should not be allowed to block the way. The Congregationalists, he had heard, had found it almost impossible to dispense with some system of central government. As to doctrine, it had not appeared at previous conferences that doctrinal differences would prevent harmony. Those having divergent views might be brought together.

Rev. Dr. Caven said he believed real spiritual union would manifest itself in outward forms. It was a mistake for anyone to say it was a good thing that there should be denominational differences. But if union could not be brought about without every Christian being conscientiously satisfied it would be a bad thing for the church as a whole to have it come. The whole Protestant doctrine could be found in the New Testament, and could not be found in its purity anywhere else. For that reason he thought the Presbyterians held the correct doctrine.

Rev. Dr. Langtry said there were no doubt many in the audience who would consider his remarks as coming from a "mediæ val, narrow-minded bigot." "No, no!" cried many. The reverend doctor went on to tell how the Anglican Provincial Synod had in 1888 made the first advances toward inter-denominational union. The resolution embodying this had been moved by the speaker, Dr. Langtry. He regretted the belief had got abroad that the Anglicans were opposed to organic union. He had not heard before that the Baptists had a like reputation, but took the opportunity of showing that the allegation, as regarded the Church of England at least, was wrong. The Anglicans did not go in for confederation because as honest men they could not. Confederation would be nothing but an armed truce. What was needed was one body—not an alliance. It was not a question of church government. If that were the question there would be room for a fairly balanced division of opinion.

The conference adjourned to a date to be chosen later.

Nothing impure or injurious contaminates the popular antidote to pain, throat and lung remedy and general corrective, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It may be used without the slightest apprehension of any other than salutary consequences. Coughs, rheumatism, earache, bruises, cuts and sores succumb to its action.
