Green Fields and Pastures New.

WALKER STIRRING THINGS.

Said Mrs. Leonidas Mortimore Rice:
"I will refurnish now with everything nice,
I say it's a shame that the fields are so green,
And not a thing here that's fit to be seen.
I'll carpet the hallway, the parlor, the stairs,
I'll buy some new sofas, and cushions, and chairs,
And portieres, and brackets, whatever they cost;
For good things, I'm certain, can never be lost.
"Yes, I know what you say, dear, money is tight;
But, still, I've no reason to live like a fright
When all that is beautiful, stylish and new,
I can get just by paying a small weekly due.
I'm sure we can do it, if other folks can.
It's not, dear, unpleasant, this instalment plan.
Walker has furnished for half of the city,
And, if we don't buy now, I think it's a pity.
"To begin with, my dear, it saves like a bank;
To drowning ones this is a fortunate plank;
It's simple and easy, so I have heard say;
To my mind, of all it's the easiest way.
You are willing, I know, to allow me my wish.
I'll get everything we need, to the very last dish.
Walker has everything heart could desire,
And nearly for nothing—all dealers are higher.
And Mrs. L. Mortimore Rice was a prophet
Walker has a grand stock, and makes little off it.
He gives you your choice, whatever you need;
His terms are so low, there's no lower, indeed;
He dotes on interiors, dainty and fine;
He furnishes everything there is in his line—
Baby carriages, carpets, stoves, all things of wood.
And dishes—instalment, that's quite understood.
Yes, go now while there is time; avoid the later greater rush, which is bound to come—
Walker's Weekly Payment Store is a great institution in Toronto,—what can you not get there and for weekly pay? The richest, the poorest, all buy of

Walker's Weekly Payment Store,
107 QUEEN-STREET WEST.

P.S.—Ladies please note that Walker keeps a full stock of silks, cashmeres and other dress goods, jackets, jerseys, mantle cloths, tweeds, etc., all of which are sold on time.
